Charles O'Conor on the Political Trials in South Carolina.

S. P. Hamilton, attorney at law, Chester, S. C., writes to the Columbia (S. C.) Phœnix to say:

"When the military arrests commenced in the county of York, I wrote Mr. Charles O'Conor, of New York, to ascertain whether or not it was possible to secure his valuable services to defend those unfortunate men confined in jail. It was stated in my letter, among other things, that it was well known that many, if not a majority, of those incarcerated were entirely innocent of offense against the law, and that his great abilities would be mainly invoked to shield such from an improper conviction. I also said that any compensation in reason would be at once subscribed, to obtain his attendance at the trials. I have taken the liberty, without his sanction to publish his short reply."

Mr. O'Conor's letter, dated from the Attorney General's office, New York, Oct. 31st, is as follows:

"My Dear Sir: One man cannot do everything and be everywhere. God knows I mourn over the calamities and oppressions your people are suffering, and look with inexpressible grief at the woes which threaten them in the proximate future. But I cannot aid you; nor do I know any one in this region who is both able and willing to do so.

"I could wish that when any man thinks of soliciting my action in a matter of this sort he would not offer pecuniary compensation. But I do not reproach you. Men as good and earnest as I can pretend to be are, of course, compelled to accept such rewards. I am, dear sir, yours truly, CH. O'CONOR."

DUKE ALEXIS "Shadowed"—The Ghost of Murderer Poland will not Down.—The New York Tribune of yesterday say:

Prior to the arrival of the Grand Duke, Minister Catacazy, apprehending violence from disaffected Poles, engaged detectives to watch the movements of prominent Poles in this city.—Nearly all of the 3,000 Poles residing in this city belong to one of four societies. A fifth society, essentially secret in its organization, is composed of fifteen delegates from other societies. The detectives claim that several months ago they knew of the bitter feeling existing, and the possibility of an attempt to assassinate the Grand Duke of his arrival, but they admit that the more decent members of the organization bitterly opposed this action. The detectives claim that the project was fully canvassed by the more violent members, and that they even hinted that it was lucky for Russia that the heir to the throne did not visit the United States. Every precaution has been taken since the arrival of the Grand Duke to prevent any such attempt. When he landed three detectives guarded him; at the serenade on Tuesday night they were near at hand; and they are now quartered at the Clarendon Hotel. When he went to Washington he was accompanied by the three guardians, the scene of whose duty will soon be shifted to Philadelphia and Boston. The detectives seem to fancy that danger lurks wherever he journeys, and will continue to shield him from peril until he shall re-embark for Russia.

New York superintendent Kelso says that he has received no intimation of any such plot, and that he thinks that the rumors originated with those who are handsomely paid to guard the person of the Grand Duke from imaginary assassins.

The Grand Duke in a Ball Room.

If any one is curious to learn the etiquette observed by the Russian Prince in a ball room, he can be gratified by the following report of a Jenkins at the Governor's Island entertainment on Saturday:

The ball was opened by General McDowell and the Grand Duke, Miss Nellie Murphy being the first partner selected for the Prince. The band struck up a lively gallop, and the General, with his partner, started off in good time. The Prince essayed a start, but had scarcely turned around before his feet slipped and threw him out of time, so very smooth and oily was the floor. He quickly recovered himself, and then with some caution he proceeded in good style.—On returning his partner to her friends she complimented the Prince on being a good gentleman to dance with. The Grand Duke, as appeared on the ball room floor after divesting himself of hat and long cloak, revealing his princely head and dark, gold-studded uniform, was entirely becoming to his high rank. Had any stranger stepped into the place, and been asked to point out the most distinguished looking man on the floor, he would certainly have selected the Grand Duke. His was the tallest figure there, and his perfect self possession gave him a graceful bearing, and there seemed to be harmony in every gesture. From all that has been seen of the Grand Duke Alexis, it is evident that he is not a "lady's man."—While acting as escort he is always polite and occasionally gay. But he never flirts. As soon as the ceremony of dancing is over—for it is little more than a ceremony for him—he relives his partner of his company and goes his way, leaving her to go hers.—If he can steal away he will walk off alone, get in a back room, roll a cigarette and smoke it.

MURDERER CONVICTED IN DELAWARE.—Last summer an old man named Mehawney, working as a peach picker, was murdered and robbed on the public road, near Middletown, Del., Soon afterwards Alfred Boice, colored, was arrested, charged with the murder. He was tried at New Castle on the 26th instant. The principal direct testimony against him was that of Chas. White, charged by the prisoner with being the murderer, but held by the State as accessory.—He detailed the circumstances of murder as follows:

On the night of the murder witnes was going from Middletown with a crowd of others, when he was overtaken by Al. Boice between Brady's and the railroad depot. The crowd was singing. The prisoner said to witness. "There is a peach pluck back here, let's go through him." Witness asked how he knew. He said he had seen him. They stopped, and prisoner went up to the old man and said, "Ain't you going to give me them five cents?" Deceased answered that he had no money. Boice then struck him with his fist and knocked him down. The old man half arose, exclaiming, "Oh! look at my face!" and then told Boice to let him up and he would give him all the money he had. Witness called to Boice to "come on." Boice struck the man again, then "went for him." (Witness meant robbed him.) Witness then ran away. Shortly after Boice came up with the crowd again and joined in the singing. Saw Boice next morning and said to him "You have killed that man." Boice said he knew it, but "You need't say anything about it." The jury rendered a verdict of guilty of murder in the second degree.

Attention

THE most elegant mode of perfuming clothing is by placing them in contact with odoriferous substances. This end can be attained by purchasing at the Drug Store of T. W. WICKES the most popular and prevailing perfumes now used. You can also find at his store a most elegant assortment of Combs, Brushes, Soaps, and Fancy Articles, ad of the finest quality, and at city retail prices. The Bachelor Hair Dye, which is used so extensively in Europe and this country, and which has been satisfactorily proven by men of science and taste to be the best Hair Dye in the world, is sold by T. W. Wickes. Natural Mineral Waters for the debilitated, such as Vichy, Kissengen, Saratoga, and other waters. Spices, Ginger, Cloves, Cinnamon, Allspice, Mustard, Mace, Black and Red Pepper, Nutmegs, and ground Sage. Extracts for flavoring, of all varieties. Fine Cigars and Chewing and Smoking Tobacco. Jan. 7, 1871.

SMALL FRUITS,
Plants, &c.

100,000 Strawberry, of the Leading Varieties.
40,000 Doolittle Black Cap Raspberry.
