A Night of Horror.

It was night when I arrived home.—There was something so provocative in the darkness and utter quiet in which I found the premises wrapped that I determined to give a lovely surprise, but nature appealing to me in a vital point, I dropped into the dining room with the view of refreshing myself with a bit of cold joint by way of preliminary.

Striking a light, I found that my wants had been anticipated, for there on the table lay the remains of a repast—breast of chicken, cakes, cheese and what not. Being sharp set, I pitched in a glass of old port materially assisting the process of digestion.

All at once, my eye caught sight of a meerschaum upon the mantle. Now, there is nothing very alarming in a meerschaum per se, but when the meerschaum is the property of a stranger, and is found upon one's premises during his absence, it becomes invested with an importance which it could derive under no other circumstance. There was also a paper of Turkish tobacco. "The fellow has taste, at all events," said I, and I filled and smoked, drank a bumper and cogitated.

Now Maria knows I am not in the least bit jealous; knows it had never entered my head to suspect her of an imprudence; but this, to say the least of it, had a very suspicious look. I drank again. Yet I protest I was not at all jealous. At that moment I started and sprang from my seat as if at the touch of an electric battery, for on the settee in the corner lay an impudent looking hat and cane, and even a pair of gloves! To smash the hat into smithereens, to tear the gloves into fragments, to snap the cane in flinders was the work of a moment. I took another bumper, and, folding my arms, glared majestically around. Not that I was jealous! O, dear, no!

I was resuming my seat and pipe, to cogitate over a course of proceedure, when I received another shock. My eye had alighted upon a note which had fallen beneath the table. It was in a feminine hand. "Dear Charlie," it ran, "I'm so glad you've arrived Sammy's away. Don't stand upon ceremony We'll have such such a nice time! Cold lunch and all agreeable. Come over at once."

Sammy's my name. "Perfidious woman! It is thus—"

I threw it into the fire after trampling on it. I fortified myself with another glass, took off my stockings, and started up stairs. On the way I stumbled over a strange cat in the kitchen.

In my ascent I suppose I must have made some noise, for a strange dog set up a furious yell in the back area. It may be as well to go prepared for contingencies, I reflected, as I re-entered the parlor with a view to possessing myself of a poker. Dark as it was, I secured the desired object, and was retreating, when I fancied somebody came in on tip-toe. Holding my breath, I dodged past him, and crept up the stairs like a thief, not that I was jealous, but only to see what was going on. After a pause, during which I could count the beating of my heart, I tried the bed room door. It was not locked, and all was dark within. A gentle snore—not a rough, exasperating, reckless thing but more of a musical moan, came from the bed.

"She is asleep." mused I, "the sleep of the virtuous, and what I thought the step of a stranger's toes was the tread of the cat. Poor, dear Maria! how could I so wrong you?" I disrobed and slipped into bed.

"Charlie, how long you have been!" said a feminine voice.

Gracious goodness!—it was that of a stranger! A cold prespiration broke out all over me as I reflected upon the horrors of my situation. The house I had purchased was one of a pair which had been built exactly alike, and, coming fatigued and sleepy direct from the cars, I must have entered my neighbors mansion instead of my own!

I pounced out upon the floor.

"Excuse me, dear," I whispered; "I think I hear burglers."

"What! again? I think you must be mistaken."

"I'll go and see," said I, and huddling or something. I groped my way to the stairs, descending them a cold feeling all the way down my back and crept into the basement. There I made another appaling discovery—the clothes I had put on were somebody else's and not my own!

Safe on the sidewalk, I glanced up at the house from which I had just escaped, thinking how I should manage to return the borrowed teggery.

And it was my house after all!

Resolved on an explanation, I rung the bell boldly. I heard the tip, tippety-tip of a pair of well known feet, and was at once in the arms of Mrs. Spivins.

"Why, don't you remember, Sammy," she said, in reply to my interrogations, "I told you brother Charles was coming from the country with his new wife, to pass a few days with us. I have given up our own bed-room to them, and it's lucky you rang, or you'd have gone right into their room."

Well hadn't I had been there and got into bed, and stolen Charlie's clothes while he was after burglers? The note to Charlie was sufficiently explained.

I will never be jealous again.

Little Dinners.

From Scribner's Magazine we copy the following sketch on little dinners, which may be of service to many of our lady readers:

The size of the party is a matter of consequence. Some numbers arrange well at table—some ill. Six, ten, fourteen, are favorite numbers. They balance symmetrically, and give a proper alteration of sex. But as a rule, it should be set down that "little dinner party" shall not comprise more than ten. But giving six or ten well selected, judiciously grouped people, a moderate temperature, sufficient light, and a good dinner and what farther provocation does mortal man need to make him agreeable—if agreeability within him lies.

The dinner need by no means be elaborate. Soup, fish, a joint or poultry, and a pretty dessert, with bright conversation by the way of sauce, is sufficient for any small party. And a dozen such in the course of a year do more toward cementing friendliness, and extending our boundary influence, than any number of "swell" repasts from a confectioner's or even than a bi annual jam of the most recherche kind, presided over by Brown, or furnished by Tauch.

Every table should have a centre—and that centre should not stand too high; be it fruit, flowers, or confectionary, its top should be below the level of the eye.—Nothing interferes with talk so much as to be enforced to dodge this way and that to catch a glimpse of one's opposite neighbor. There should not be too much on the table at a time; a crowded look destroyes elegance. The eye demands room as well as the elbow. Two vegetables with each course are sufficient.

Clean plates; iced water. Blessed duo! Temperature should be studied by every housekeeper. It is all important, and within the reach of all. A cold plate makes a good dinner bad, and a bad one humble. A hot plate (which costs nothing) improves everything. A hot room dulls and stupifies. Conversation wilts with flowers.

To give coloring to the table is a difficult art, now that white china is so generally used. Much may be said in favor of this china. It is neat and pure-looking it conflicts with nothing, it can always be matched. On the other hand, it defaces easily, and gives a colorless effect which is difficult to overcome. Our own preference is for the English china, which is cheap, extremely strong, remarkably convenient in shape and size, quaintly and beautifully decorated, and not difficult of replacement if broken. This, however, is a matter of taste. If the dinner service be white it can be enlivened by various little touches. The napkins may boast a scarlet initial or monogram. Folded napkins with letters in the centre may be laid to receive the dishes in linen of table-mats. Finger-bowls may be arranged to form groups of prettily contrasted tint. Flowers in the centre, or beside the plate of each guest, are prettiest of all. Nothing lends such grace to food as flowers.

A delicate finish should characterize each detail, and a certain amount of ornament. Every dish is susceptible of being made pretty as well as eatable. A bunch of parsley, a circle of sliced lemon, vegetables cut into pretty forms, potato, rice, bread-crumbs, quilled paper, adjuncts neither troublesome nor expensive, may be made to give a look of elegance to simple fare. Above all things, perfect and daily neatness, best ornament of all, and that cordial home-atmosphere which confers savor even upon a dry crust.

All this is so much trouble, some one says, and makes no show, and confers no particular credit. But anybody can give a ball or reception, nowadays, with the existing facilities, and be pretty sure of having it as fine and as dull as the Browns in the next street, or the Jones over the way. But to arrange a smaller party, or one out of the common way, and make it live and sparkle, requires personal talent. And the people who come to your ball and perspire in corners, and get mayonaise on their gowns, go away without caring a button for you, while the select few who enjoy your little dinner carry off an impression of pleasantness and taste which raises your house in social importance. And last, though not least, many of us who possess the hospitable instinct can afford to give the one and can by no means afford to give the other. Wherefore, long live little dinners!

A Rabid Bride.

The Pittston (Pa.) Gazette relates the following:

About eleven weeks ago a young lady named Cox, daughter of Miles Cox, of Stoddardville, went into the yard to kill some chickens. The dog followed her, and picking up one of the chickens ran off with it. She chased him with a stick to recover it, and coming up with him he turned upon her and bit her in the arm, lacerating it fearfully. Her mother and brother, coming to the rescue, were also badly bitten by the infuriated beast. The wounds healed, however, and nothing more was thought of the matter.

The young woman was engaged to be married to a young man living at Goldsboro, named Alfred Kerrick, and the wedding was appointed to come off about two weeks ago.

On the wedding morning, as she was about to perform her ablutions, the sight of the water sent a shiver through her whole system and frightened her, and at the breakfast table the coffee had such an effect upon her that she spilled it over the table. She then complained of feeling unwell, and her friends advised her to remain at home, but she said she did not want to disappoint Al., and accompanied by a sister, proceeded to Goldsboro, where the wedding ceremony was performed.

Immediately after this she was seized with spasms, bearing all the indications of hydrophobia. In one of her lucid intervals she warned the company that she would bite them if they did not keep away from her. "But," said she to her husband, "Al., you need not be afraid: I won't bite you."

In one of her paroxysms she bit a lady who was endeavoring to soothe her.

Soon after assuring her husband that she would not bite him, she was seized with convulsions, and, laying back in his arms, died.

The other members of the family who were bitten by the dog have not as yet displayed any symptoms of the disease, but they live in hourly dread.

Not Worth the Candle.

In bygone days there was a phrase used by courts in ordering sales, and to prevent the auctioneer hastily disposing of articles to favor bidders, to preclude which it was required that the article, if of great value, should be up for competition during the time required by a candle to burn one inch; but where articles were not of value equal to that of the candle consumed, such formality was dispensed with, hence the applicability and use of the term to anything of insignificant consideration—"not worth the candle." In the earlier colonial records of Pennsylvania will be found a decree of court condemning a piratical craft which had been captured, to which is annexed the order "that she be sold by the inch of candle." The antiquity of the usage is doubtless much greater than any illustration our country can present, as in France the proverb, "Le jeu ne vaut pas la chandelle," is of no modern origin.

THE EUREKA

FANNING MILL.

The Greatest Invention

OF THE 19th CENTURY!

FARMERS, LOOK TO YOUR INTEREST.

THE attention of Farmers and Mechanics is particularly directed to the combined economy, utility and practicability of the Eureka Mill, and to the many other advantages it possesses over every other Fanning Mill which has been introduced to the public. It is the fruit of long and patient investigation by the inventor, who has made it his constant study for over twenty years. He has secured several patents for Mills, and has always been rewarded with the best of success. But not feeling satisfied with his former attainments, he determined to reach the climax, and he now believes that his new invention will warrant him in exclaiming in the joy of his heart, like the philosopher, Phythagoras, EUREKA, signifying in the Grecian language, "I have found it." This has given the name to this new Mill.

In this Mill are all the former improvements, to which have been added several more, adding still greater advantages than were at first anticipated, or even thought possible by the inventor himself. It embraces the three great essentials necessary in every invention.

It combines Utility, Economy and Practicability!

THE EUREKA MILL

Is small and lighter, and is capable of doing more and better work in a given time than any other Mill ever invented. It is the only Mill that will successfully remove from wheat such pests as Cockle, Garlic, Oats, Rye, &c.

Should an extra quality of grain for seed or gristing purposes be required, it can be so arranged as to catch in one box perfect grain, and in the other, grain fit for market or mill. Here is made a great saving usually lost sight of: for nearly one-quarter of the grain cleaned in the common Mills is lost when sown, on account of shrunken kernels and inferior grain. The Eureka Mill saves all this, and gives seed every kernel of which will grow when put into the ground, and this saving will, in a short time, pay for the Mill.

HINES & BURCHINAL,

Chestertown, Md.,

Owners of the Mill, are having them manufactured at the Sash Factory and Planing Mill of NOLAND & Co., Port Deposit, Md., which is a guarantee they will be put up in the very best manner.

VINEGAR BITTERS

VEGETABLE FREE FROM ALCOHOL

PURELY CALIFORNIA

DR. WALKER'S

VINEGAR BITTERS

J. WALKER, Proprietor. R. H. McDONALD & Co., Druggists & Gen. Agents, San Francisco, Cal., and 34 Commerce St., N.Y.

MILLIONS Bear Testimony to their Wonderful Curative Effects.

Vinegar Bitters are not a vile Fancy Drink, Made of Poor Rum, Whiskey, Proof Spirits and Refuse Liquors, doctored, spiced and sweetened to please the taste, called "Tonics," "Appetizers," "Restorers," &c., that lead the tippler on to drunkeness and ruin, but are a true Medicine, made from the Native Roots and Herbs of California, free from all Alcoholic Stimulants. They are the GREAT BLOOD PURIFIER and A LIFE GIVING PRINCIPLE, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the System, carrying off all poisonous matter and restoring the blood to a healthy condition. No person can take these Bitters according to directions and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and the vital organs wasted beyond the point of repair.

They are a Gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, possessing, also, the peculiar merit of acting as a powerful agent in relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver, and of all the Visceral Organs.

FOR FEMALE COMPLAINTS, whether in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or at the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters have no equal.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder, these Bitters have been most successful. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood, which is generally produced by derangement of the Digestive Organs.

DYSPEPSIA OR INDIGESTION, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the regions of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms are the offsprings of Dyspepsia.

They invigorate the Stomach and stimulate the torpid Liver and Bowels, which render them of unequalled efficacy in cleansing the blood of all impurities, and imparting new life and vigor to the whole system.

FOR SKIN DISEASES, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ring-Worms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin, of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters. One bottle in such cases will convince the most incredulous of their curative effect.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

PIN, TAPE, and other WORMS, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS AND DEALERS.

The Thorough-bred Stallion, LEGATEE,

Is now making the Season in this county, and it is desirable that he shall not travel much, and as his list is well nigh filled, (having a limited number of mares,) those who wish to breed to him had better communicate at once with Mr. A. L. Vannort, Post Master at Hanesville, who will notify his owner of the same.

Governor Bowie says this horse has no equal in the country, and is breeding his choicest stock to him.

The Turf, Field and Farm, in speaking of LEGATEE, long before he was thought of traveling here, states that "he is the finest bred horse in America, and should make a superior stallion."

LEGATEE has won a number of races, among the rest, the "Restoration Stakes," at Long Branch, purse $5,000, easily beating several celebrated and frequent winners upon other occasions. See handbills.
