Orphans' Court.—Tuesday, July 30th. Present, Judges Beck, Scott, and Hepbron.

The Court passed a number of claims against the estates of deceased parties.

W. N. E. Wickes and T. W. Eliason returned their report of the value of the real estate of Samuel W. Canady, which was recorded.

The agreement of Eliza Welch, by her attorney and next friend, C. T. Westcott, and Richard Hynson, admr. of S. W. Canady, that this Court shall arbitrate and decide the matter in controversy between them, arising upon the account of the said Eliza Welch against deceased, for services as nurse and housekeeper: filed and recorded.

The petition of Sarah E. Warner, (wife of Samuel Warner) of Baltimore city, by her attorney, Henry Stockbridge, was received and filed, and summons issued as prayed.

Letters of administration on the estate in Kent county, Md., of Hannah J. Wallis, late of Petersburg, Va., were granted to George Vickers, who gave bond with Richard Hynson and W. A. Vickers as sureties.

Wm. T. Hepbron, admr. of D. W. Turner, returned his second and final administration account and dividend.

FIRE.—The dwelling house of Walter J. Griffith, near Sassafras, was destroyed by fire on Sunday night last about midnight. We learn that a negro man has given evidence that the building was fired by another negro who Mr. Griffith had threatened to remove from one of his houses. Mr Griffith and his family narrowly escaped with their lives, Mr. Griffith himself being somewhat burned. The building, a valuable three-story, was entirely consumed, with everything in it.

KENT COUNTY RAILROAD.—The schedule of the afternoon or market train of this road has again been changed to make connection with the Delaware road. The train now leaves Chestertown at half-past twelve o'clock. The road is making every effort to accommodate the fruit interest of the county; and are distributing poles preparatory to erecting a line of telegraph wires along the road.

Incendiarism and Lynch Law in Cecil County, Md.

[Correspondence of the Baltimore Sun.]

ELKTON, Cecil county, July 30, 1872.

On Sunday night last, 28th, the house of a Mr. Griffith, in Kent county, was burnt down under such circumstances as seemed to warrant the belief that it was done by an incendiary. A negro by the name of John Jones was suspected of having done the act as the day before when discharged by Mr. Griffith he used threatening language to him and went away.—Not only was the act a premeditated one, but it seemed evident that the villain determined to make sure that the house should not be saved, for around the pump was found piles of burning material for its destruction. The house was totally destroyed, and Mr. Griffith with his family, barely escaped. The negro John Jones and his son, with another negro, were suspected of having done the act, and were apprehended and had a hearing before a magistrate, who ordered them to be sent to the Elkton jail for a further hearing. During the examination, or a little while after, the son of John Jones confessed that his father did the deed; that he and himself went together, fixed the material, and then he ran, leaving his father to touch the material off, his father threatening him that if he told on him he would shoot him. A very strong feeling was aroused by the deliberate act of the three negroes, and so while being conveyed to Elkton, on Monday night about ten o'clock, while the wagon containing the party, under the charge of a constable, was passing through a woods about six miles below Elkton, it was surrounded by a party of ten or twenty men disguised, and the negroes were taken from the wagon, and the man John Jones was taken to a tree near the road, and, being already manacled, had a rope tied around his neck, and then by sheer force was drawn up so that his feet did not touch the ground and then left to strangle to death. What became of the other two negroes no one knows. It is surmised that they were taken into the woods and shot, or they were allowed to escape. The pantaloons leg and pocketbook of one of them was found the next morning which gives rise to the belief that they were also made way with, and one lost that portion of his clothes in his efforts to get away. A powerful feeling exists among the people to find out who the parties were who took the law thus in their own hands, though every one thinks that hanging was what the negro deserved for committing such a devlish piece of revenge on a sleeping man and his family.

For the Transcript.

A Union Camp Meeting.

Kent and Queen Anne's Circuits will hold a Camp Meeting at Black's Woods, three and a half miles from Millington, commencing on Thursday, the 15th of August.

This beautiful grove is too well known to need any comment—suffice it to say there is fine shade and good water. This is expected to be the largest encampment on the peninsula, and will doubtless be well attended from Kent, Queen Anne's, and adjoining counties. We learn there will be quite a number of boarding tents, and persons wishing to board will find good accommodations, at reasonable rates.

Among the distinguished Ministers expected to be present, are the Rev's. Dr. Register, President of the Md. Agricultural College, Dr. Wadsworth, late of Alabama, and Dr. Samuel Rodgers.

We wish to call especial attention to the fact that there will be preaching on Thursday, the 15th, at 8 o'clock, P. M. We sincerely hope, therefore, that all preparations necessary for the comfort of the meeting will be completed before that hour, so that the stroke of the hammer, the sound of the ax, or the rattling of boards, will not disturb the public service, as is too often the case. A hint to the wise is sufficient.

Cholera Infantum.

HOW THE DISEASE MAY BE AVOIDED.

SIR: The mortality among children in Philadelphia during the past few weeks has been such as to excite the most earnest solicitude for the adoption, if possible of measures, and the promulgation of knowledge thereof, whereby this terrible destruction of life among our little innocents may be arrested, or at least ameliorated. My own convictions, based upon the most gratifying experience, in reference to this important matter are so strong that I feel impelled for the sake of humanity, to give them publicity.

The three principal causes of the disastrous malady, cholera infantum, may be cited, as first, indirectly, the highest temperature of the atmosphere, which predisposes the general system to congestion and inflammatory action; secondly, undue taxation of the digestive function, through injudicious feeding; and thirdly and perhaps, most of all important, the influence upon the system of such water as is generally provided in cities, for drinking purposes. That the latter is one of the essential causes of this disease may be inferred from the fact that cholera infantum is so peculiarly incidental to cities as to be almost entirely unknown in the country, where people are provided with pure water from excavated wells or running springs.

Whatever different theories may be deduced from the repeated chemical analyses of our own city water, and admitting even its purity, in so far as these chemical tests can determine, it is nevertheless, certain that the great supply required by all large communities necessitates for the purpose, the appropriation of large streams, that become the receptacles, in their long journey to their ultimate reservoirs, of a great deal of filth and noxious animal and vegetable matter; and it cannot be doubted, when the subtile character of malarious atmosphere is considered, that water, also may acquire a characteristic condition somewhat akin to that of malaria from these manifold decompositions truly as capable of inducing morbid action in the human economy, though it may not be possible, through chemical tests, to discover the offending peculiarity.

I would not be understood as reflecting upon the water of Philadelphia alone, but rather than this baneful element, aqueous malaria, if the expression be allowed, is incident to all bodies of water more or less stagnant in large reservoirs, and consists of some specific yet impalpable result of decomposition influenced by a high temperature, and perhaps peculiar electric conditions of the air.

Not, however, to go into lengthy details of reasoning upon causes more or less obscure, I will pass on what is most important to those who have little children, namely, recount the general management, in reference to cholera infantum, which, under plentiful observation, has been followed by the happiest results. First of all, it is essential to

KEEP THE CHILD COOL.

This may be best accomplished by means of frequent and protracted bathing in water cooler than the atmosphere. If the temperature of the atmosphere is very high—say about from 80 to 90 degrees Fahenheit, or if it is close and oppressive—the bathing should be repeated a number of times in the course of the day, the water for this purpose being regulated to about 65 or 70 degrees. Sometimes instead of immersing the child in the water, it may suffice to sponge it copiously. Thus treated, the child will feel cool and comfortable for several hours, after which the process may be repeated there being no cause for apprehension whatever, that the little one will be weakened thereby (as is sometimes erroneously supposed), even if kept in the water for half an hour at a time. The

is to substitute a surrounding medium, the temperature of which may be regulated at will, for the atmosphere whose temperature is not so readily modified. Who has not experienced the refreshing effect of a bath, when the weather is very warm, in water of a lower temperature than that of the air at the time prevailing? Is it not very manifest that the same refreshing advantage will accrue to little children?

AS TO DIET,

The most important article of food is milk accompanied, after the tenth month of the infant's age, with a small quantity of crushed water-cracker, soaked in the milk, in the form of "pap." Great care should be taken not to overfeed babies during the warm season; as the function of digestion at such time is just as much averse to being overworked as are the functions of the muscles. Every one knows what a feeling of languor and disinclination for exercise heat produces—in this feeling the stomach participates with due proportion.

THE MILK,

that is used should be as fresh as it can possibly be had. If a cow could be milked every time that the baby needs feeding, it would be all the better. At all events the milk should be freshly drawn from the udder at least twice a day, and to facilitate its preservation should be immediately boiled, and then cooled, and kept on ice in closely-covered vessels. It should be remembered that milk, as contained in the cow's udder, is a living, vital secretion, and has been called liquid flesh; but the moment it becomes seperated from the living body, into an extraneous vessel, it assumes a different character, which, though not as apparent as is the case with the coagulation of blood when drawn from the veins, nevertheless modifies it to some extent as food for the young, and certainly hastens towards decomposition.—It is for the purpose of staying this process to some extent that the milk should be boiled. All the water, too, that is given to infants for drink and, when cooled, and settled, carefully poured off from the top, bottled, and kept on ice. The process of boiling purifies and distils the water, and destroys the vitality, to a great extent at least, of the parasites it may have contained. But to do still more towards neutralizing the injurious effects of the water, a few drops of pure Cognac brandy should be added to every drink given the infant. Sometimes a few drops of lemon-juice (if the child is a year old or over) may be added; a few drops of camomile tea, in the proportion of a teaspoonful to a wine-glassful of the water. A very little sugar, also, should be added.

SHOULD FIRST BE BOILED,

Of water thus modified the child may drink without let or hindrance, guarding only against too large a quantities at a time. In fact, the water thus given will aid in cooling the blood from within, and diminishing its tendency towards congestion, even as the lotions and bathing exert this effect from without.

If these general precautionary measures be regularly and persistently adhered to I confidently believe that cholera infantum, instead of continuing to be the terror and apprehension of all parents, would become almost extinct, except as among the unhappy results of careless nursing or congenital constitutional ability.

A London journal locates Norfolk, Va., in South America.

A JAPANESE NEWSPAPER.—A late copy of the Japan Mail, published at Yeddo, says that the publisher of the Japanese paper in that city, the "Nishingshi," has erected thirteen boards in different parts of that city, each of which has a copy of the newspaper, as soon as published, pasted on it, so that those who cannot afford to purchase a copy may still know the news of the day. The gentlemanly proprietors of the "Nishingshi" are evidently determined that the public shall have the news, if not with money and price, then without. We commend their liberality, though it would hardly do for this country.

WE find in several papers the account of a successful experience in capturing cut worms. By accident a gentleman found three or four of these pests under a small board which had been left by the children on a sweet potato hill. Acting upon this hint he placed some large chips, etc., all through the patch, and trapped the worms by hundreds. The chips must be lifted early in the morning, and in very warm weather again about noon. A little care for a few days will clear the garden.

INTERESTING TO FARMERS.—A series of experiments instituted to test the average loss in weight by drying, shows that corn loses one fifth, and wheat one-fourteenth by the process. From this the statement is made that farmers will make more by selling unshelled corn in the fall at seventy-five cents than the following summer at one dollar a bushel; and that wheat at $1.32 in December is equal to $1.50 for the same wheat in the June following. This estimate is made on the basis of interest at seven per cent, and take no account of loss from the depredations of vermin. These facts are worthy of consideration.

CARD.

ON account of a severe spell of sickness, for nearly two months, and now ordered to leave for another climate, I would ask of my many friends not to delay their settlements on account of my absence. We need the money. We have given orders to sell the stock, which is large and complete, at a great discount and to offer great bargains to repay parties for the trouble of inspection. Gentlemen here on Tuesdays and Thursdays would do well to call and even get samples of bargains to be sold.

Respectfully,

WM. A. VICKERS.
