LOCAL ITEMS.

RELIGIOUS.—There will be service and a sermon by the Right Rev. Henry C. Lay, at St. Clements' Church, on Sunday, the 20th inst., at half-past 10 A. M.

THE CANADY ESTATE.—The Orphans' Court have not formally rendered their opinion in the matter of the petition of Mrs. Sarah E. Warner to have a portion of the personal estate of the late Samuel W. Canady distributed to her as one of his heirs-at-law. But we understand, from the best authority, that the Court will decide that Wm. Y. Pearce was the half-brother of Mr. Canady, and that Mrs. Warner, as his daughter, is one of his heirs-at-law.

THE MASS MEETING.—According to previous announcement the Democratic Mass Meeting for the county took place on Saturday last. The day was somewhat raw, but in other respects was fine, and the attendance was admirable and would have been much larger had not wheat seeding prevented many of our farmers from attending. The stand was erected in front of the Court House door, and decorated with evergreens and a portrait of Mr. Greeley. On Court street side the green was filled with tables for dining the meeting.

The meeting was organized by electing Mr. George W. T. Perkins, Chairman, who made a few well-timed remarks. Two Vice Presidents from each district were also selected.

Philip D. Laird, Esq., the Elector for this Congressional District, was first introduced and made an admirable speech, in the course of which he paid his respects to Judge Spence, showing him up as a cold-blooded, scheming Radical politician.

Hon. E. K. Wilson was the second speaker, and his remarks were received with much enthusiasm.

After Mr. Wilson closed, the large audience repaired to the tables, which were loaded with the bountiful offerings of the Kent county Democracy. We have no means of ascertaining the number who dined, but judging from the number of pigs, shoats, hams, &c., which so soon disappeared, it must have been near one thousand.

In the afternoon the meeting was addressed by General McKaig of Cumberland, Col. Raine, Elector-at-large, Jas. A. Buchanan, Esq., Elector for the Fourth Congressional District, and the Hon. Montgomery Blair, who with a large company from Baltimore, arrived on the George Law about 1 o'clock, the steamer having been generously tendered for the occasion

Speaking was continued at night in the Court House, and the well filled room was addressed by Gen. F. C. Latrobe of Baltimore city, and Hon. Wm. Walsh, Elector from the Sixth District.

Governor Swann was prevented from being present by the sudden illness of his daughter, a letter having been read from him to that effect. The meeting was peculiar for the marked earnestness of the speakers, and the unflinching attention of the audience, evincing an unfaltering determination on the part of the Kent county Democracy. The spirit of Saturday's meeting gave cold comfort to aspiring Radical politicians in our county, and clearly showed that the late fraud in Pensylvania has no more terror for our people than Federal bayonets or United States Marshals.

NORTHERN LIGHTS.—Monday night last there was a most magnificent display of the "Auaora borealis," the flames of which were peculiarly brilliant, stretching from the Northern horizon to the zenith. The Baltimore Sun thus describes it:

The display began at about 6½ o'clock and lasted nearly an hour, illuminating the whole northern heavens with electric light. The aurora was almost vermillion in its brilliant hues and attracted a great deal of attention from those who look upward sometimes. The identity of the aurora borealis or "northern lights" with electric discharges or currents passing through the rarified air above the earth is proved by their effect upon the telegraph wires, the operators of which frequently detach their batteries and work the wires solely with the currents induced by the auroral light. The source of this electricity is probably identical with that of the the thunder clouds, namely, evaporation.

In the arctic regions circumstances are unfavorable to the discharge of this electricity in thunder storms, because the electric currents could only pass with great difficulty through the cold, dense, dry atmosphere. In the temperate zone this can be more readily accomplished, and still more so in the tropics. The electricity generated at the polls is compelled, therefore, to pass towards the moist and conducting air of the tropics by following the conducting stratum of rarefied air, which exists at a height of from ten to a hundred miles above the surface of the earth, and here it is that the display of the aurora borealis takes place, the electric currents flowing out from the poles in this good conducting stratum, situated as it is between the badly conducting lower dense strata of air and the absolutely non-conducting vacuum above. The nature of the color and appearance of the auroral light depends upon the chemical nature of the rarefied atmosphere or gas through which it passes. This is proved by experiments with the instrument called "Gessler's tubes," which was exhibited by Prof. Morton in his lectures winter before last, on light and electricity, at the Peabody Institute. By passing electricity through glass tubes, each filled with a different chemical fluid, the light exhibited a color corresponding to each in its most brilliant hues. The above are the latest conclusions, briefly stated, to which scientific observers have arrived in relation to the origin and composition of the aurora borealis.

A Few Reflections on the Situation.

Dear Transcript:—Though not as rapid as the ups and downs of the schoolboy's play of see-saw, political parties have their rise and fall. The Democratic party has had comparatively few interruptions to its success since the adoption of the Constitution. May it not, however, have sown the seeds of its downfall during these series of years? It has once or twice been depressed and soon rose again: but, it appears to be with the Conservative party, to be to the leeward just now. Bellerophon was once intrusted with a letter which requested the one to whom it was addressed to put the bearer to death. So every party carries with it the elements of its own destruction, or its vitality. Somebody dalls Atilla "the scourge of God." We doubt the fitness of such an appellation. He and Alaric might have been very clever barbarians who possessed like other mortals the innate disposition to retaliate and, which is generally exemplified in every stage of civilization. They paid off with a bloody score the grievous wrongs which every known country received at the hands of Rome. Her hour of retribution had come when she beheld "up the steep barbarian monarch ride." Had she any reason to complain? Noted captives were brought, "to grace her chariot wheels," or to die in gladiatorial combats whilst the Romans looked on with sensual delight. Might not the old Roman have changed his phraseology a little, and spoke with equal truth, "Our Rome will never fall if we are always innocent." Such is the lesson taught by History, and Parties bear illustrations of its truth, no less than Nations.
