LECTURE.—The Rev. J. J. Murray, D. D., will, by request, deliver his lecture, "Sunshine," on the evening of Thanksgiving day, in the Methodist Protestant Church. The reputation of Dr. Murray as a lecturer will, doubtless, insure a full house. Tickets are out.

HARD TO BEAT.—Mr. Albert Anderson has left at our office some very fine specimens of the Peach Blow Potato, and two turnips, one 23 inches in circumference and weighing 7½ pounds, the other 25 inches in circumference and weighing 10 pounds.

THE Chesterville Sunday School, M. E Church, South, will have an Exhibition on the evening of Thanksgiving day, (Nov. 28) at 7 o'clock P. M., at the Church. The exercises will consist of speeches and singing by children. No charge for admission, but a collection will be taken up for the benefit of the school. Rev. Samuel Rodgers, P. E. of District, will be present and take part in the exercises. Quarterly meeting will be held on Saturday and Sunday following.

BROKE JAIL.—Thursday morning last, James H. Riley, under indictment for larceny, Henry Miller, imprisoned for an assault, and Samuel Brown, also serving out a sentence for an aggravated assault, all negroes, escaped from our jail. The impression is that a file was conveyed to them in a loaf of bread, with which they removed their irons, and afterwards quietly walked out of the front door. Samuel Brown has been captured, the other parties are at large.

THANKSGIVING DAY.—Governor Whyte has issued his proclamation appointing next Thursday, the 28th instant, to be observed by the people of this State as a day of thanksgiving and prayer. This is the day already recommended by the President of the United States for the same purpose.

1823—1873.—Such are the years of that veteran of the Religious press, THE NEW YORK OBSERVER. All hail! say we to our elder brother, who was valiantly at work long before many of us were learning to peep: and whose pages now exhibit more than ever the vigor and strength of manhood. All hail! and best wishes for another fifty years' course, which is to be initiated with the generous donation to every subscriber of a JUBILEE YEAR-BOOK, commemorating fitly the past, and giving encouraging anticipations for the future. We are always ready to commend the OBSERVER to our readers. True to its faith, and faithful for the truth, it is unsurpassed as a family paper.

[From the Maryland Farmer.]

The Peach--New Varieties.

The Peach interest of our State having enlisted the earnest energies of many intelligent cultivators, has grown to such magnitude that it is hardly second in importance to any of the products of our farms. There is no country in the world where the Peach is grown in such great quantities as in the States of Maryland and Delaware; thousands of acres are devoted to this crop for the supply of the markets of New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore; large growers, raising 10, 20 and 100,000 trees of different ages, and send yearly to market as many beskets of fruit Maryland is peculiarly adapted to the cultivation of the Peach; location, soil, and climate, combine to make her eminently excel in the production of this delicious fruit.

Penetrated by the Chesapeake Bay, with its numerous large and navigable branches, running in every direction, transportation is made easy and cheap to Baltimore, which in consequence of its very large packing interests, is one of the best markets in the country; whilst her Railroad connections enable the dealers to send the products of our orchards to all the principal cities and towns of Central Pennsylvania and New York. The dealers from Washington City are also making very large purchases in Baltimore for the supply of their markets.

That our soil and climate are unequaled, proven by the superior excellences of our fruit. China and the United States are the only temperate countries where the Peach and the Apple both attain the highest perfection in open orchard culture. The Peach is never raised in England, and not generally in France without the aid of walls. Even at Montreuil, near Paris, a village whose whole population is mainly employed in cultivating the Peach for market, it is grown entirely upon white-washed walls. The Peaches of Pekin have long been celebrately as the largest and best in the world, but a recent traveller from this country says they are not near so good as those raised in New Jersey.

It is a curious fact in the history of the Peach that whilst it is a native of Persia and China, and was brought first to Italy in the time of the Emperor Claudius, and was considerably cultivated in Britain as early as 1550, and was introduced to this country by the early settlers near two hundred years ago; yet it is to a skillful and intelligent orchardist of England of the present day, with her unpropitious clime, that the American cultivator is indebted for the production of more valuable new varieties than he has received from any other source. Mr THOMAS RIVERS, of Sawbridgeworth, Herts, England, has six acres of land under glass, devoted to the cultivation of Grapes, Plums, Apricots, Nectarines, and a very large proportion to the cultivation of Peaches These fruits are cultivated for the London markets, and are produced by him in great perfection, and command almost fabulous prices. Mr. Rivers having his whole orchards of these fruits under glass, can control his operations in the production of new varieties without disturbance from storms or insects, the blossoms on every tree being entirely subject to his management, he can work understandingly, and make hybridous varieties, at his pleasure, without risk of extraneous influence. The few new varieties produced in this country are the result of accident, the pollen being carried either by storm or insects from one variety to another, and the seed of the peach from one variety to another, and the seed of the Peach from this bloom thus impregnated, has by chance, produced a tree. This rarely occurs, and when it does the fruit is probably like something that we have already, or not so good as the original, without any change in the time of ripening.

Mr. Rivers has been engaged in this business near twenty years, and has produced a number of new varieties. The Salway, a very superior late Peach, now generally cultivated, and very highly esteemed by growers and packers of fruit, was produced by him, beside several other varieties of superior excellence of quality But the peach-growers of this country are more interested in, and will be more particularly indebted to him, for his success in producing an early variety that ripens in midseason.

In the Beatrice we have the result of his hybridizing his very superior Early Silver Peach, with the new White Nectarine, and it is all that the grower can desire in an early Peach, being, though rather small, of beautiful color, agreeable flavor, and a sound, healthy bearer, and possesses remarkable keeping qualities, ripening, whether with Mr. Rivers, under glass, or in this country, where it has been cultivated, fully two weeks earlier than Hale's Early, which has been hitherto regarded as the earliest Peach. He has two other varieties that are second only to the Beatrice, the Early Louise and Early Rivers, both of the fine quality, and in ripening follow the Beatrice in the order in which they are named; and both are earlier than the Troth's Early, which is usually cultivated as the best early variety. These new varieties of Mr. Rivers' have been imported by some of our enterprising peach growers, and will furnish the lover of this delicious fruit an opportunity to gratify their taste much earlier in the season than they could have done but for the skill and enterprise of this intelligent orchardist of England.

Important Legal Decision--Responsibility of the Owners of Vicious Dogs.

On Friday last Hon. Judge Garey, of the Court of Common Pleas, rendered a decision in a 'dog case' which is of decided importance, as showing the responsibility, under the law, of the owners of vicious dogs, or even those who harbor such animals upon their premises. The issue was between William D. Brooks and Mary Brooks vs. Herman Simon, for damages, on the ground that Mary Brooks, a little girl, had been severely bitten by a dog belonging to the defendant. It was shown in evidence that the defendant kept a dairy farm near the city limits, which was visited daily by the little girl to obtain milk. Upon the farm were kept two vicious dogs, usually kept chained by day. On different occasions, however, they were left running loose, and had bitten other persons slightly, thus exhibiting a vicious and dangerous disposition. In May last the girl went to the farm, and was attacked by the dogs and badly torn and bitten. Her father brought suit for damages in his own name, and also for his child, hence the trial.

The defence showed that the dogs were not the property of the defendant, but one of them belonged to his gardener, and the other to a neighbor, and were simply kept on the place to keep off trespassers, hence the defendant was not responsible for the injury inflicted upon the girl.

Judge Garey, after careful consideration ruled that the defendant had no right to keep upon his premises vicious animals that were dangerous to the public. If a trespass was committed upon the premises of a property owner, such owner had redress in a civil action for such trespass, but had no right to keep a vicious animal, a man trap, a spring-gun, or ought else of a similar character upon his premises by daylight, and no matter whether the owoership be vested in the defendant or not, the premises were his, and the dangerous animals were harbored by him, thereby rendering him liable under the law. He therefore orderded judgment to be entered in favor of the plaintiffs, in both cases—for $200 damages in the case of Mary Brooks, and $100 in the case of William D. Brooks, with costs. The costs in the two cases amounted to $75, which, added to the amount of the judgments, made a total of $375 for the privilege of keeping other people's canines upon his premises by the defendant.

The case has an important bearing as applied to Baltimore city, as it settles the responsibility of dog owners upon a new basis. The city ordinances give the mayor the power to order the removal of any dog that is vicious, noisey or annoying to the neighborhood, and if not removed within twenty-four hours after such notice is given he may order the animal killed. No penalty is attached for the biting of persons by vicious dogs, however, and although there are almost daily reports of injury to persons by dogs made at the mayor's office, it has been impossible heretofore to abate the dangerous nuisance. The decision of Judge Garey will probably, however, be beneficial in that direction hereafter.
