OUR LOCAL DEPARTMENT.

ANNUAL COMMENCEMENT OF WASHINGTON COLLEGE.—The commencement exercis s of this old Institution were held in the court room on Wednesday evening last. The procession of Visitors and Governors, Professors, Officers, Students and Alumni, headed by the Cornet Band of Middletown, Delaware, entered the room about half-past eight o'clock, and took seats on the platform. After music, and prayer by Rev. A. W. Milby, the following original orations were delivered by the graduating class: "The living strive, the dead are glorious," by C. Cook, of Caroline county: "Palma non sine pulvere," by T. Currey, of Delaware: "The old world and the new," by S. H. Jones, of Worcester county: "Ancient Philosophy," by Julius Hunt, of Kent county: and the "Valedictory," by N. R. Johnson, of Delaware. The orations were productions of very considerable merit, and judging by them, we may predict for the young gentlemen, with continued perseverance and application, a useful future.

Certificates of Proficiency were delivered by Professor Berkely, to the following students:

Johnson, N. R., Delaware.

Clinton Cook, Caroline county, Thomas Currey, Delaware, Julius Hunt, Kent county, S. H. Jones, Worcester county, and N. R. Johnson, of Delaware, received Diplomas and the degree of Bachelor of Arts.

Judge Joseph A. Wickes, the President of the Board of Visitors and Governors, addressed the graduates after they had received their diplomas, impressing upon them the importance of continued industry and perseverance in the prosecution of their studies. The Judge's theory was that society generally awarded men their merits, and that what might be called fortuitous occasions were generally presented to those who were ready to avail themselves of them.

The room was filled to overflowing by a very brilliant audience and the occasion was a very interesting one.

The Diamond State Band, from Middletown, Dela., enlivened the exercises with most excellent music.

The audience was dismissed by Rev. R. Scott Norris, with the Benediction.

☞ MYRTLE LODGE, No. 46, K. P. of Chesterville, are arranging for a grand excursion from Georgetown, on the Sassafras River to Baltimore and return, on the 16th instant. Tickets $1,25. The affair promises to be a very pleasant one. The committee of arrangements are doing all in their power to make the trip one of pleasure to all, and an entire success. For particulars see bills.

THE FOURTH.—There was no public demonstration in our town on Independence day, but we seem about to take up the custom of making the day hideous with fire crackers, just as the cities are making the most strenuous efforts to suppress the dangerous custom. In the lower part of the town, next to the river, the citizens were disturbed at daybreak by a continued bombarding of fire crackers of the largest kind, accompanied by the yelling of dogs; and as late as eight in the morning we noticed burning paper blowing about the streets. It is only a miracle that, owing to the tinder-like condition of everything, something was not fired. This was continued at intervals during the day, relieved by the firing of a small cannon, which made a report something louder than a gun. At night fireworks were shot off from the trees along the pavements. There is an ordinance against such proceedings: we are not advised whether it was suspended for the day.

This firing of crackers is not only a nuisance, it is dangerous, and we hope the practice is not to be resumed.

M. P. SUNDAY SCHOOL EXCURSION.—On Wednesday next the Methodist Protestant Sunday School of this town will have an excursion, on the steamer Law, to Baltimore and Druid Hill Park. Arrangements have been made by which cars will meet the excursionists and carry them directly to the Park, where they will have ample time to examine the beauties of the Park and enjoy the shade of those grand old trees. One of the Park officers being a former resident of this town, very fine lots have been secured for the Sunday School.

EYCURSIONS.—The Baltimore Sun of Saturday, in its local column says:

The steamer George Law, with fully five hundred persons from Chestertown, arrived at Light st. wharf at 12½ o'clock yesterday on an excursion to this city. A large majority of the excursionists immediately upon their arrival in Baltimore hastened to the photograph saloons on Baltimore street, and at 2 P. M. the galleries on Baltimore street from Hanover to Gay were thronged with the visitors. The Law departed on the return trip at 3½ o'clock.

The reporter for the Sun was drawing heavily on his imagination. There could not have been over three hundred on the boat, about twenty-five or thirty of whom were from our town.

RADICAL TICKET.—After a prolonged incubation and much coaxing the Radical party has at last produced the following result:

For Clerk of the Circuit Court—Wm. D. Burchinal.
Register of Wills—James Kendall.
Sheriff—James Willis.
House of Delegates—James M. Ayres, Norris Barnard.
Commissioners—T. A. Jacobs, F. H. Harper, R. S. Emory.
Surveyor—H. H. Gresham.

We wonder what Federal offices these gentlemen are aspiring to that they are thus willing to immolate themselves upon the local altar of Kent county radicalism.

AN INTELLIGENT "BARONET."—In the pending trial for perjury of him who claims to be Sir. Roger Tichborne it has become necessary to read all or portions of the testimony he gave on the former trial. All this is not very fresh, but some of it is exquisitely droll. We cannot refrain from quoting a small patch of what this fellow said on cross-examination by Sir John Coleridge. It strikes us as exquisitely ludicrous:

You learned mathematics, you say?—Yes. What did you learn? I have no recollection. Is it the same thing as chemistry? My memory does not serve me. What is it—written in Greek or Latin or what? I don't recollect. Did you ever read Euclid? Has that any thing to do with mathematics? I don't recollect; I think not [a laugh.] Has algebra anything to do with mathematics? I have no recollection. Have you read Euclid? I believe I did but don't recollect. Did you ever bear of the Asses' Bridge? I don't recollect it. Did you ever try to cross the Asses' Bridge? I have no recollection of it. Did anboydy try his best to help you over the Asses' Bridge? Did you make gallant efforts, as many of us have done, to get over it? I have no recollection. Do you remember whereabouts it is—how far from Stonyhurst? It is only insulting me.—Do you know it by its Latin name, "Pons Asinorum?" No.

LIBERIA.—The July number of the African Repository contains a good deal of valuable information in regard to Liberia, the present condition and prospects of the colony. The exports to England and this country are on the increase; the last emigrants sent out are reported to be doing well, some being engaged in planting and others in erecting comfortable houses for themselves and their families. New school-houses are being built, and altogether the settlement appears to be in a very flourishing condition. Under the title of "A New Departure," the Repository declares that thousands of the American-born sons of Africa are ready to attempt the redemption of the land of their fathers, and explorations are being made accordingly into a rich and salubrious region, with tribes of superior order of manhood—some of them able to read the Holy Scriptures in Arabic.

☞ Some of the Boston newspapers are earnestly advocating the teaching of the art of sewing to the girls in the public schools. Nothing could be more sensible or practical; and if the same course of study, coupled with instruction in the science of cookery, were adopted in those private schools where too often only fashionable polish is put on the female character, society would be much better and happier.

PENINSULA ITEMS.

CECIL COUNTY.

John S. Wirt, of Elkton, delivered the annual oration before the Societies of St. John's College.

QUEEN ANNE'S COUNTY.

The dwelling house in Centreville belonging to the late P. P. Hopper was sold on Tuesday last, by J. B. Brown Esq., Trustee, for 3,800. Mr. John Wilkinson purchaser.

A negro man named George Phillipps was killed by a wheat reaper passing over him. He seized the horses which were attempting to run and was thrown to the ground.

The Excursionists who visited our town last week, the Citizen says: express the opinion that Chestertown is a fine field for Sunday School Missionaries.

The Citizen thinks the democratic party grows weaker and weaker every day—It is sometimes easy to believe what we wish.

The Observer says:

On Tuesday last two sons of Mr. Wm. H. Smith, residing near Church Hill, and aged respectively about 14 and 10 years, started in a carriage to Church Hill. When they came within half a mile of the village the horse which they were driving became frightened and ran away, throwing one of the boys out and breaking his collar bone. The horse in his fright ran at full force down the hill known as "Medical Hill," near the village, and being unable to follow the curve of the road ran headlong against a pear tree at the foot of the hill and so injured himself that he died the next day. The sudden stoppage of the carriage on the side of the hill capsized it, completely demolishing it and throwing the other young man out, somewhat, though not materially injuring him. Some thoughtless person, hearing a garbled account of the affair, repaired to Mr. Smith's residence (he being absent) and informed Mrs. Smith that her horse had run away and killed himself and both her children. The shock was so great that her mind gave way under it and she became insane and wandered off. When found she was out in a woods wandering about frantic with grief, and insane. She was taken home, her children presented to her, and she, upon seeing that they were not dead as she had heard, became calm and apparently rational for a few moments, but soon became as bad as ever, and at the last accounts she had not recovered, although every effort was made by her physicians to restore her mind and health.

Since the setting up of the above we have been informed that Mrs. Smith has nearly recovered her mind, and her son is doing well under the distressing circumstances.

CAROLINE COUNTY.

The Rev. Mr. Stearns, left Easton last week to visit his friends in Massachusetts. His health is feeble.

The public school of Denton closed its exercises with a public examination which is pronounced creditable to both teachers and scholars.

BALLOONING WITH HOT AIR—DEATH OF LA MOUNTAIN.

The Chicago Tribune has a dispatch from Ionia, Michigan, giving an account of the death by the collapse of his balloon, of La Mountain, at that place, on the 4th of July. He was a brother of the celebrated La Mountain, who, it will be remembered, was a very successful æronaut in the employment of the government during the war in observing from a balloon the movements of the Confederate forces. His balloon was what is known as a hot-air one, and was simply filled with heated air too often. At the summit, where the canvas was sown together, a block some ten or twelve inches in diameter was fastened, and through a hole in this six guy-ropes were secured, hanging down over the sides of the balloon, being at the bottom some seventeen feet apart, and these were tied to the basket by the professor himself. There were no ropes running around the balloon horizontally to keep the guy-ropes from slipping, or to prevent the whole thing from sliding out between the ropes with a gust of wind. At 3.55 P. M. the professor stepped into the basket, and the balloon took a shoot up almost perpedicularly, with the professor swinging his hat to the crowd, all apparently enjoying the sight. In a few moments more, however, the mouth of the balloon was observed to wave about two or three times, then to pass between the ropes, careening over on the side, when the ropes broke out from their fastening at the top, and the fall commenced. La Mountain was noticed to be apparently making some efforts to get the basket above him, and if possible to break the fall, but after the first struggle he fell so rapidly that nothing could be distinguished but the falling body, his hat coming after him, about 100 feet or more behind, the old canvas, nearly collapsed, falling down gradually. The body struck the ground half a dozen feet from the northwest corner of the jail building. It struck with such a terrible thud that it jarred the ground for fifty rods around, and made an indention in the solid ground eight inches in depth. There was scarcely a bone in the whole body not broken into fragments. It was limp as a rag. There were very few fractures of the skin, except the right foot, the bone of the right leg being driven through the bottom of the foot.

The body was laid out on a couch, a circle formed, and a procession of all who wished to view the remains passed around. The professor is a brother of the celebrated æronaut who died two or three years ago. This one's name was Edward La Mountain. He was a jeweler by trade, and lived at Brooklyn, N. Y. He had said just before he went up that he wished to take the train for home as soon as possible after coming down, as his wife was very sick. He himself had not had his clothes off for ten days. There were from 10,000 to 12,000 people who witnessed this horrible tragedy. He was seen by people four miles from the city at an angle of thirty-five degrees. The best estimates make the heighth from which he fell from 10,000 to 1,500 feet. Those who were on the hill back of the town said the strangest sight was to witness the people swaying back and forward like a field of wheat moved by the wind.

CAMP-MEETINGS IN MARYLAND—Where They are to be held.—The number of camp-meetings to be held in Maryland this year is very large. The following is a list so far as announced for the Eastern Shore:

July 25th, Stony Ridge, Dorchester county; (there will be several other camp-meetings held in this county, but so far the date of the commencement has not been announced; one will be held at Hurlock's, on the Dorchester and Delaware railroad, some time during the month of August;) August 1st, St. Michaels, Talbot county; August 1st, colored camp at Joshua John's woods, near Preston; August 1st, colored camp at Hainesville, near Denton, Caroline county; August 1st, Union Corner, Caroline county; August 1st, Tolson's woods, Kent county; August 1st, Chilton's woods, Caroline county; August 8th, Church Creek, Dorchester county; August 15th, Deal's Island, Somerset county; August 15th, Baker's woods near Chestertown, Kent county; August 19th, Woodlawn Grove, Cecil county.

☞ The Dead Letter Office at Washington is quite a curiosity. The variety of correspondence that finds its way there is astonishing. The great bulk of this dead matter may be divided into three classes—illegible, misdirected, and missent. Most of these come from imperfectly educated people—the two first classes of letters almost entirely. A rule adopted lately in Germany in the publib schools, would, it strikes us, be of great benefit here. Directing a letter is in Germany made part of a public school education—a very minute study, but in proportion to the time occupied in acquiring the knowledge, a most important one. It could be taught as a part of the course of writing lessons, and "Virtue is its own reward," and "An honest man's the noblest work of God," with other copybook moralities, might very well give plase for a season to

THE AUTOCRAT OF THE VIENNA EXPOSITION.—Baron Schwarz-Senborn, the autocrat of the Vienna exhibition, has fallen into what may be called official disgrace. He spent money with such a liberal hand that the finance minister began to think the bottom had fallen out of the treasury, and becoming alarmed at the prospect of some millions of deficiency to be made up by the government, which stands sponsor and indorser for the fair, appointed a commission some days ago to supervise the Baron's disbursements, whereupon the Baron took offense and tendered his resignation, which the minister has up to this time refused to accept.
