SCARING A YANKEE.

The following story is told by the Bos the Commercial Bulletin:

"Say! You! Mister! Look here!" said a specimen of the genus American Yankee, the other day, to a slightly built citizen, who was hurrying past him in the Southern part of the city.

"Well, what is it? be quick—I'm in a hurry," replied the citizen.

"Wall, I s'pose you kin stopp'n arnser civil question, can't ye?"

"Certainly—what is it?"

"Is there much small-pox naow?"

"I think there is; you had better avoid crowded places, and—"

"Yaas, I know, that's what our doctor told me, so I got aout at the Roxbury depo' instid of ridin' into the Boston one, where there's a crowd. I'm pesky feared on it, an, I'm walking daoun because——

"But, sir, I've answered your question and you must excuse me from stopping any longer."

"Shant do no such thing," said Jonathan. "What in thunder's the use of your getting 'uffy about it?"

"Consider be darned! It's your city people that consider yourselves so confounded stuck up, you can't speak to common folks."

"I was about to say," remarked the citizen," that you don't consider the risk you run in stopping a stranger——"

"Resk?" said the man, forgetting his small-pox scare, and misinterpreting the caution. "Resk? why, there's a fist," doubling one that looked like a filch of bacon, "that would knock you into the middle of the next week,"

"No doubt of it," replied the other, drawing back as it flourished in dangerous proximity to his nose.

"Yaas, my little feller," continued Rusticus, laying both hands upon the lappels of the man's coat, and drawing him close towards him, "I could throw you clean over my head if I had a mind tew."

"Take your hands off me, sir. You don't know what you are doing? You don't know who I am."

"Don't know who you be? Wall, who are ye? Governor, or the State Constable?"

"No, I'm one of the nurses from the small-pox hospital over yonder, and I'm going to get some medicines at the doctor's office, and you are stopping me and running something of a risk in doing so."

The Yankee evidently was of the same opinion, for he let go the lappels of the other's coat collar as if they had been red hot, and stepping aside as if he had seen a locomotive coming towards him at a mile a minute speed.

Then casting a hurried glance at the "hospital over yonder," he left in the opposite direction, and was last seen in a druggist's shop negotisting for a pound of chloride of lime and a quart bottle of disinfecting fluid.

THE RATTLESNAKE.

The rattlesnake is perhaps the most sluggish of all the serpent tribe, for even the puff-adder of the Cape, which has that reputation in general, is very active when enraged; but the rattlesnake, excepting just before and just after its winter-sleep, never bites except in self-defence, and does not go out of its way to attack anyone. Unless molested, there is very little to fear from this snake: but the misfortune is, that you cannot tell when you are going to molest it, as, in coming down a bluff, or picking your way in a gulley, you may, with the best intentions in the world, put your foot on a rattlesnake. And then the terrific swiftness of his dart! Not even the cobra, which I had always considered rivaled the very lightning in its movements—movements which I will defy almost any eye to follow—is quicker than the rattlesnake in that one deadly act. Yet, to strike, it must be in a close coil, its head and neck being erect; it throws itself out about three-fourths of its length, supporting its weight entirely on the tail-part. I have, however, known two persons who have trodden on rattlesnakes, and have escaped; a third was still more remarkably fortunate. One a gentleman who has killed more than fifty of them, recognized what his foot touched without stopping to look, and jumped higher than he had probably ever done before in his life; the other was not so quick, and the reptile struck him three times with electric quickness, but his trowsers and long boots saved him. This disposes of a fallacy very generally held, that venomous serpents will not bite twice in succession. There were the three pair of fang-marks quite plainly to be seen in his white trowsers. One young man who was bathing in the river Platte had a more extraordinary escape still, for, on emerging from the water, he sat down, being, of course, completetly naked, on a rattlesnake which was basking in the grass. Whether he sat upon the reptile's head, or whether the creature was too astonished by his sudden descent, can never be known, but certain it is that the affrighted bather leaped up with a shriek, and escaped unhurt.

It is told that this particular serpent has a very offensive odor when irritated, and that Dr. Hamilton Roe owed his life to a knowledge of that fact. The physician having opened a box directed to the Zoological Gardens, London, put his hand—most rashly, it seems to me—under the dry moss which appeared, to feel what was there. He touched something alive, and the smell told him it was a rattlesnake. Had he withdrawn his hand rapidly, he would have been bitten to a certainty; but he had the presence of mind to stroke the reptile, which allowed him to take his hand gently away. This is a well-known story; I only refer to it to add that this odor is so powerful and permanent that when a snake is irritated and made to bite the rake or hoe with which it is intended to kill him—and, as may be supposed, this is very often done—the implement smells for months. Once known, it is always recognizable.

As much cannot be said of the sound of the rattle. I have been on the prairie when opinions have been divided as to whether certain clicking arose from the grasshoppers, which were there in great numbers, or a rattlesnake. It is not pleasant, at twilight, to have any doubt on this subject. The chief thing against the rattlesnake theory was, that these reptiles seldom move or leave their holes after sun-down. But I would warn the reader not to depend too much on this, as some snakes are certainly of irregular habits, and have been known to crawl into tents, and into beds within the tents. This was for the sake of warmth. Very often the reptiles will content themselves with coming inside; and so true is it that use doth breed a habit in a man, that I have known men to sleep quietly all through the night when they were perfectly aware that a rattlesnake was within the walls of their tent. They rolled themselves tight in the blanket, knowing that the creature would not touch any one if it were not first attacked, and that, when light came, it would go away. In one instance, a man was bitten at night. He was on the prairie, and sleeping near his horse, which was fastened by a long rope to a log or stone. The horse broke away, and the man feeling after the rope in the grass, disturbed a rattlesnake, which bit him on the back of his hand. He was cured by a remedy which I think I have seen recommended in England. A friend cut with a penknife the skin round the puncture, so as to enlarge the wound and make it bleed; then he put a small heap of gunpowder on the spot, ignited it—no pain attending this—and the man was cured. I would just add here, that the stranger must not depend on always hearing the rattle when the snake moves; it is only violently shaken when the animal is alarmed, or is about to attack, and then the warning and the assault are too close together for the victim to escape.

The rattle has been too often described to need much to be said about it here; it is known to consist of a number of bones, looking like knuckle bones, securely fastened together, yet so loosely that they make a clicking noise when shaken. These grow on the tail of the reptile; and the popular belief is, that the first joint, which is always of a darker color than the others, takes two years to grow, while afterward the snake has an additional joint each year. Some observers contest this, and argue that the reptile forms its rattle much faster than at this rate. The wearing of this rattle in the hat or bonnet is said to be an infallible specific against the headache, and is frequently worn on that account.

☞A well known German florist related, in a state of irritation, his trouble in this way. He said: "I have so much drouble mit de ladies ven dey come to buy mine rose; dey vants him hardy, dey vants him doubles, dey vants him moondly, dey vants him fragrand, dey vants him nice gouler, dey vants him ebery dings in one rose. I hopes I am not vat you calls von ungallant man, but I have somedimes to say to dat ladies, 'Madame, I never often sees dat ladies dat vas beautiful, dat vas rich, dat vas good temper, dat vas youngs, dat vas clever, dat vas perfection in one ladies. I see her much not!'"

SUGAR BETTER THAN THE WHIP.—A correspondent writes: "I have a colt five years old quite fast and high-spirited; but I have never struck him with a whip since I bought him last March. I have taught him to obey my slightest wish by means of a lump of sugar, of which he is very fond. He will ask for it by nodding his head and neighing. When I first had him he would not stand quietly for one to get into the carriage, and I determined to try sugar. I gave him a lump, and from that day to this he never offered to move until I was entirely ready. Wasn't that better than whipping?"

Iron in the Blood

PERUVIAN SYRUP — AN IRON TONIC

MAKES THE WEAK STRONG.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an ailment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low state of the system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building up an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures, to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.

Ayer's
Cherry Pectoral,

For Diseases of the Throat and Lungs, such as Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption.

Among the great discoveries of modern science, few are of more real value to mankind than this effectual remedy for all diseases of the Throat and Lungs. A vast trial of its virtues, throughout this and other countries, has shown that it does surely and effectually control them. The testimony of our best citizens, of all classes, establishes the fact, that CHERRY PECTORAL will and does relieve and cure the afflicting disorders of the Throat and Lungs beyond any other medicine. The most dangerous affections of the Pulmonary Organs yield to its power; and cases of Consumption, cured by this preparation, are publicly known, so remarkable as hardly to be believed, were they not proven beyond dispute. As a remedy it is adequate, on which the public may rely for full protection. By curing Coughs, the forerunners of more serious disease, it saves unnumbered lives, and an amount of suffering not to be computed. It challenges trial, and convinces the most sceptical. Every family should keep it on hand as a protection against the early and unperceived attack of Pulmonary Affections, which are easily met at first, but which become incurable, and too often fatal, if neglected. Tender lungs need this defence; and it is unwise to be without it. As a safeguard to children, amid the distressing diseases which beset the Throat and Chest of Childhood, CHERRY PECTORAL is invaluable; for, by its timely use, multitudes are rescued from premature graves, and saved to the love and affection centred on them. It acts speedily and surely against ordinary colds, securing sound and health-restoring sleep. No one will suffer troublesome Influenza and painful Bronchitis, when they know how easily they can be cured.

Originally the product of long, laborious, and successful chemical investigation, no cost or toil is spared in making every bottle in the utmost possible perfection. It may be confidently relied upon as possessing all the virtues it has ever exhibited, and capable of producing cures as memorable as the greatest it has ever effected.

PREPARED BY
Dr. J. C. AYER & CO., Lowell, Mass.,
Practical and Analytical Chemists,
SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS EVERYWHERE.

Every year increases the popularity of this valuable Hair Preparation; which is due to merit alone. We can assure our old patrons that it is kept fully up to its high standard; and it is the only reliable and perfected preparation for restoring GRAY OR FADED HAIR to its youthful color, making it soft, lustrous, and silken. The scalp, by its use, becomes white and clean. It removes all eruptions and dandruff, and, by its tonic properties, prevents the hair from falling out, as it stimulates and nourishes the hair-glands. By its use, the hair grows thicker and stronger. In baldness, it restores the capillary glands to their normal vigor, and will create a new growth, except in extreme old age. It is the most economical HAIR DRESSING ever used, as it requires fewer applications, and gives the hair a splendid, glossy appearance. A. A. Hayes, M.D, State Assayer of Massachusetts, says, "The constituents are pure, and carefully selected for excellent quality; and I consider it the BEST PREPARATION for its intended purposes."

EUREKA
FANNING MILL.

The Greatest Invention
OF THE 19th CENTURY!

FARMERS, LOOK TO YOUR INTEREST,

THE attention of Farmers and Mechanics is particularly directed to the combined economy, utility and practicability of the Eureka Mill, and to the many other advantages it possesses over every othhr Fanning Mill which has been introduced to the public. It is the fruit of long and patient investigation by the inventor, who has made it his constant study for over twenty years. He has secured several patents for Mills, and has always been rewarded with the best of success. But not feeling satisfied with his former attainments, he determined to reach the climax, and now he now believes that his new invention will warrant him in exclaiming in the joy of his heart, like the philosopher, Phythagoras, EUREKA, signifying in the Grecian language, "I have found it." This has given the name to this new Mill.

In this Mill are all the former improvements, to which have been added several more, adding still greater advantages than were at first anticipated, or even thought possible by the inventor himself. It embraces the three great essentials necessary in every invention.

It combines Utility, Economy and Practicability!

THE EUREKA MILL

Is small and lighter, and is capable of doing more and better work in a given time than any other Mill ever invented. It is the only Mill that will successfully remove from wheat such pests as Cockle, Garlic, Oats, Rye, &c.

Should an extra quality of grain for seed or gristing purposes be required, it can be so arranged as to catch in one box perfect grain, and in the other, grain fit for market or mill. Here is made a great saving usually lost sight of; for nearly one-quarter of the grain cleaned in the common Mills is lost when sown, on account of shrunken kernels and inferior grain. The Eureka Mill saves all this, and gives seed every kernel of which will grow when put into the ground, and this saving will, in a short time, pay for the Mill.

HINES & BURCHINAL,
Chestertown, Md.,

Owners of the Mill, are having them manufactured at the Sash Factory and Planing Mill of NOLAND & Co., Port Deposit, Md., which is a guarantee they will be put up in the very best manner.
