LOCAL NEWS.

Orphans' Court.

Present Judges Nicholson, Shallcross and Willson.

The last Will and Testament of Thos. Peace was admitted to probate and ordered to be recorded.

The release of W. S. Harper to F. H. Harper, late guardian, was filed and ordered to be recorded.

Thomas C. Parsons, admr. of John D. Walraven, returned his second and final administration account, with dividend.

F. N. Sheppard, admr. of John M. La Due, returned an additional administration account, and received an order authorizing him to distribute one half of the net surplus of the estate to C. and A. LaDue, and to deposit the residue in Bank, subject to the order of the Court.

Sewell Hepbron, guardian to P. A. M. Brooks, received an order authorizing him to dispose of the wood, blown down by storm, in the woods of his said ward.

The Register of Wills was directed to give notice, by advertisement, that the Court would adjourn until Tuesday the 29th inst.

THERE is scarcely a town of any size on the Eastern Shore of Maryland, except Chestertown, whose streets are not lighted at night. We know of no one thing which would give so much satisfaction as even a few lights about in the darkest parts of the town. Indeed we might have the benefit of a few private lamps if the town authorities would protect them. The boys of the town are permitted to make targets of all the lamps put up by private citizens.

There was a time in the history of our town when boys did entirely as they pleased, and men too; built bonfires at all hours of the night, to the terror of good citizens and the danger of their property. We are fast lapsing into the same condition of affairs. The sober citizens place obstructions in the streets utterly regardless of the town ordinances. Every one who wants a short cut builds a dam or dike of coal ashes wherever he pleases. Some one has recently erected one of these dams just in front of the Transcript office. Whoever the party is, we suggest that he complete the work by a tumbling dam or a set of flood gates. These coal ash dams ought to be abated. One or two fines would create a healthier sentiment. If the engineer of this Court street dike has the permission of the Town Commissioners for this great work of municipal improvement, they certainly deserve to go on the same page in history with the members of the last legislature of Maryland.

[redacted] Mr. Jos. [redacted], our enterprising butcher, will have in market to-morrow, one of the finest animals we ever saw. It is a young cow, raised by Mr. Josias Ringgold, Jr., and for which Mr. Brice paid him $101.00

LEAP YEAR PARTY.

MR. EDITOR—I had the pleasure of attending a Leap Year Party, given by some ladies of our town, in the room above Hines & Burchinal's store, on the evening of the 11th inst.

The ladies, taking advantage of the season, adopted the role usually performed by the gentlemen; and proceeded to select partners for the coming quadrilles—surpassing the latter in their courtly gallantries, and manifesting a vim characteristic of the sex.

The gentlemen were fully alive to the honor conferred upon them, and accepted the polite attentions of the ladies with becoming grace and dignity—their "attitude one of modest awaiting." Refreshments served during the evening were very invigorating, and the dance continued afterward with increased zest and enjoyment.

The music was what might have been expected from the hands of experienced performers, and enjoyment was depicted on the countenance of every one present. The dance was commenced at 8 o'clock and continued, with but one short intermission, to 3 o'clock. PARTICEPS.

BEECHER DENOUNCES BOWEN.

At the Plymouth Church Friday night prayer-meeting Mr. Beecher spoke in relation to the charges of Henry C. Bowen. After referring to the length of time that the latter had been a member of the church, he said:

"Now, I don't propose to argue this question to-night. It is not fit that I shall do it. I only propose to say one or two words on the matter, and one is, that if for the last fifteen years and more Mr. Bowen has been in possession of such facts as he now alleges in his letter, and never mentioned them to me nor communicated them to an officer of this church, nor in any wise brought them to the knowledge of the church itself, he deserves to be expelled from the church for violation of his covenant. If I am what I am alleged to be, and have been what he alleges I have been, and he knew it and permitted it without word or warning to me or to the church, he has committed a crime against this church and against morality, and if it was not so, and the allegation is a lie—and it is a lie, before God I pronounce it—then he was guilty, I will not say of a more heinous crime but another yokefellow, black, both of them, and both of them from the pit." In another place he said: "And since the matter has been published in the newspapers, and his name is attached to it, he has got to produce his evidence. And as for myself, I have only this to say: I pronounce all the insinuations and allegations that he has made as false, and, with Almighty God before me and the judgment day, I arraign him as a slanderer and a liar!"

☞ The New York Tribune puts the strong points of Mr. Johnson's character very forcibly when he says that his death will be a "source of profound personal grief to many who never sympathized with his political views, and had little in common with many of his personal associations. That he was a very great lawyer, a liberal statesman and a chivalric gentleman everybody knew. On these points his reputation is secure. Long before his death he had come to enjoy that sort of posthumous fame that is to be found in the universal and consenting judgment of his cotemporaries of all parties and creeds. In the Supreme Court, since the death of Judge Curtis, of Boston, there was no man named beside him. In the Senate, in the old days, all parties united in recognizing him as, on a large class of questions, an absolute authority. In the cultured society of the two great capitals he was for many years one of the central figures; and there are many circles, absolutely removed from politics and law, where the news that Reverdy Johnson is dead will be received to-day with more sadness than the story of a national calamity would inspire. He was a great jurist, an honest man—true to his State, his country, his friends and every duty—the soul of honor and of generosity. He made his mistakes, as everybody does—his diplomatic career, especially, was full of them—but the men who differed from him most earnestly will be to-day among his sincerest mourners."

THE SPANISH MEMORANDUM just sent abroad to be read to foreign governments gives a black eye to the importance of the Cuban rebellion. The bulk of the army of the insurgents, says the memorandum, is formed of negroes, mulattoes, Chinese and deserters, scarcely eight hundred white Cubans being in the organization; and it is led, not by natives of the island, but by foreign adventurers. The Spanish government, continues the note, can make no terms with such a lot. It can only, after gaining a complete victory, grant to Cuba all the liberties she would have enjoyed but for the insurrection, and which Porto Rico now enjoys. It is stated with some show of pride that forty thousand native Cubans are in the royal ranks, and twenty-eight thousand reinforcements, too, have been sent to the island from Spain within twelve months. Yet the "duration of the insurrection is in consequence of the difficulties of the country." Somehow Spanish troops always balk when they come to "difficult country." They gain victories and victories over the Carlists at home until the Carlists get in their mountain fastnesses, from whence they swoop down and in turn make the Alfonsists scamper; and so the years speed by. The fact, however, that the trade of Cuba has increased, as indicating the restricted limits of the insurgents, is perhaps the best argument the Spanish government has for the "hands-off" policy. Let it add to this the reforms so frequently demanded by the United States and so often promised in response, and perhaps the world can afford to let the insurrection live indefinitely in the "difficult country," or die ad libitum.

☞ Landis, who was pronounced insane a few days ago when his neck was in the halter, is now declared to be sane, and he is again let loose upon the community to send another bullet through an editor or anybody else who does not agree with him. This entire proceeding is a burlesque upon justice. He bought a jury to acquit him of the charge of murder, and now he has captured a court. The whole thing is a farce. If Landis were a poor man instead of a rich one he would now be preparing for his last end, instead of being in the way of making the last end of somebody else.

☞ That rare event, a "pearl wedding," will be celebrated by an aged couple in Baltimore this week. Sixty years married.

THERE IS NO USE

"Waiting for something to turn up,"

And we have at last decided to turn it up. The protracted warm spell has materially interfered with the CLOTHING BUSINESS of Baltimore. Hundreds of Thousands of Dollars worth, which seasonable weather, would have sold, remains on Shelf and Counter. It is usual in most business houses to make reductions after the season of demand is over. We have decided to take time by the forelock and make those reductions NOW. Hence our entire stock has been marked Down, Down, DOWN to an after-holiday basis. We will positively stick at no reasonable sacrifice that will turn our great stock into speedy cash.

NURSERY STOCK.

Apple, Pear, Peach and Cherry Trees and Small Fruit Plants by the 100, 1,000 or 10,000.

I HAVE for Spring planting, the most extensive and choicest assortment of Fruit Trees and Plants I have ever before offered to planters.

APPLE TREES.

The growers of this valuable and profitable fruit in Md. generally have been sadly disappointed, in getting trees from the North, as winter varieties there, when planted here, mature their fruit too early in the fall to keep through the winter with us. For this reason, and to secure reliable winter keeping apples, I grew my Apple Nursery on my farm in Va., three hundred miles South of here. I have a choice selection which cannot fail to give satisfaction. I have largely of a variety called Smith's Horse, (not the old Horse apple). The fruit can be picked nearly as early as the Early Harvest, and being double its size, sells readily at from $5 to $7 per bbl.

PEACH TREES.

Almost all my Peach Trees were budded from bearing trees, grown on my own and two adjoining farms, the buds being taken from the trees while the fruit was on them; leaving no doubt in my mind, that my stock is true to name.

I have not a long list of varieties; have budded chiefly, of late, most approved canning sorts, including three (3) very valuable new varieties for canning, very popular in Delaware, ripening with and after Smock.

I also have a large stock of Early Beatrice. I fruited this variety last summer. Several of my friends in Kent saw the fruit, and can testify that it was fully 10 days earlier than Hale's; a high-colored, showy, firm peach. I think it well worthy extensive cultivation.

PEAR TREES.

I have secured a large stock of Standard and Dwarf Pear Trees, from a reliable source in New York; and can furnish, in quantities, of the most approved varieties. No better Pear Trees can be grown anywhere than in New York.

CHERRY TREES.

I have but few varieties of this fruit, and the planter wants but few for profit.

SMALL FRUIT PLANTS.

I have a large supply on hand. I recommend but few varieties. My extensive experience as a fruit-grower, enables me to judge of the merits of the many kinds in the market. I have rejected two thirds of them, as not worthy of cultivation.
