To Advertisers and Correspondents.

Advertisements and Communications should be received at this office by Wednesday's mail. The Transcript is issued on Friday but printed on Thursday, and we go to press before Thursday's mail arrives. Any thing received by Thursday's mail, must, consequently, lie over until the next issue.

LOCAL NEWS.

New School Commissioner.

C. J. SCOTT, Esq., of Galena, late one of the Judges of the Orphans' Court, has been appointed and has accepted, the position of School Commissioner for Kent county.

Washington College.

The Senior Examination was concluded on Tuesday. The programme of Commencement Exercises for July 12th will be announced next week. The Examination of the remaining classes will begin on Monday next.

The Centennial Anniversary.

Before another issue of the Transcript the hundredth anniversary of the declaration of American independence from the British crown will have passed: and while we see in fact, nothing to distinguish it from the ninety-ninth or the fiftieth anniversary, it seems to be so regarded, and it is proper to note the occurrence.

We had hoped that the coming anniversary would have heralded the final obliteration of all disabilities growing out of the late civil war; but we see nothing now to warrant such a conclusion. While the International Exhibition, now in progress, is proclaimed as the grand scheme for drawing together and cementing the bonds of the Union, the great political party which has for years controlled the affairs of the government makes a bitter appeal to sectional feeling for its continuance in power. The Northern conquerors, after the manner of the Romans, seek to amuse their provinces by the grand show of the Amphitheatrum—proclaiming equal rights for all men in their councils, denying the first men of some of the States all participation in the government, and seeking to control by the sword the efforts of the people for freedom.

There will not as at present advised be any public celebration of the day in our midst, not because of the sentiments we have advanced above—for we speak only for ourselves—and in our town, the devotees of Grant, and Sheridan, and Butler, and Blaine, and of the martyred Brown, whose "soul is marching on," hold both the numbers and the purse. Knowing these things one would suppose that we should have had here the grandest outburst of patriotism since 1876—but we are not disappointed

My Maryland.

Geo. P. Rowell & Co's. Centennial Exhibition gives a great variety of interesting information about newspapers, and what will probably surprise some of the New Englanders in our midst, Maryland prints annually a larger number of copies, a greater number for each inhabitant, and a greater number for each square mile than either of the New England States except Massachusetts. Maryland—total copies, 38,761,896. Average No. for each inhabitant, 50; aver: g: area for each publication, 95 square miles. For Maine, total No. of copies, 12,084,-526. Average No. for each inhabitant, 17; average area for each publication, 95 square miles. New Hampshire—total copies, 7,485,920; average No. for each inhabitant, 24: average area for each publication, 143 square miles. Vermont—total copies, 5,557,372; average No. for each inhabitant, 17; average area for each publication, 162 square miles. Massachusetts—total copies, 115,853,116; average for each inhabitant, 79; average area for each publication, 23 sqare miles. Rhode Island—total copies, 9,387,272: average No. for each inhabitant, 43; average area for each publication, 48 square miles. Connecticut—total copies, 14,-020,376; average No. for each inhabitant, 26; average area for each publication 47 square miles.

From our Special Correspondent.

PHILADA., June 27, 1876.

In my letter of the 5th inst., I began a description of the buildings that dot the Centennial exposition grounds, and promised then that I would continue it in my next It was my intention to have written the following week, but many causes have combined to prevent the consummation of my purpose until now, and with your kind permission I will continue and, if possible in this letter, conclude the task commenced over three weeks ago.

The restaurants, about which so much has been said, are now in excellent working order, and it is the fault of the visitor if he is in any manner imposed upon and victimized by extortion. Meals are furnished at a general table or ordered from a bill of fare at specified charges. Printed bills of fare are upon every table, and before ordering a mouthful the price of the meal can be ascertained by any one who is able to read and add a column of figures. The commonest school education will suffice, and if any one is overcharged he has no one to blame but himself.

The principal restaurants are, "The Great American," under the management of two Philadelphians; "The Lafayette restaurant," and the "Trois Freres Provencesaux." The latter is under the management of Leon Goyard, of Paris, who personally superintended the official dinners given by the Emperor Francis Joseph, of Austria, and served all the banquets given to the Sovereigns at the Vienna Exposition of 1873.

"The Restaurant of the South," E. Mercer of Atlanta, Georgia, proprietor, is, I understand, very well patronized. Colored servants are in attendance, and every dish pre-eminently or characteristically Southern can be ordered. Corn bread in its many kinds and forms, Johnny cakes, pones, and I dare say Maryland biscuit, would be furnished if asked for. It was the intention of the proprietor to have had an 'old plantation darkey band' furnish music and illustrate plantation scenes. I am unable to state, however, whether Mr. Mercer has complied with such a promise, if ever made.

A rustic building with garden attached, under the control of the Dairymen's Co-operative Association, is known as "The Dairy." It is situated in a beautiful section of the grounds, not far from Horticultural Hall, and here is furnished milk, cream, cheese, ice-cream, in fact everything made out of sweet and sour milk,

The many lies in circulation as to the extortion practiced in this city upon strangers are being refuted. Board can be had from $5 per week to as many dollars per day, and meals can be purchased from 25 cents to 25 dollars. We have enough of everything for everybody. Provisions are lower than they have been for years. Good butter is 25 cents per pound: it has not fallen to that figure since the war.

The Turkish cafe and bazaar in the grounds attract a deal of attention and are worth a visit. Here we have a thorough representation of Oriental life. The attendants are dressed in their native costumes and converse in their native tongue. The cafe is fitted up in the manner and style of such establishments in the East, and as you recline upon a divan and puff at the chibouk or quaff the mastic liquor you can easily imagine that you are in Constantinople or some other Turkish city. The attendants are very polite and active, and all, with one or two exceptions, speak French. The lady behind the counter is very good looking. She evidently has been prettier, and I have an idea is not thoroughly Oriental. The coffee cots 15 cents a cup, and in my opinion cannot compare for a moment with a good cup of old government Java made at home. It is very thick and in quantity is not more than a gill, but I think all the folks from the Eastern Shore will not find fault with the quantity but the quality: it is very strong, and acts as a narcotic. The tobacco is delicious and very fragrant, and is smoked either in cigarettes, chibouks or hookahs. The chibouk is a red clay pipe, having a very long stem, the mouth-piece of which is a ball of amber. The tobacco is lighted by a cinder taken from the brazier where the coffee is boiled, and is placed upon the tobacco by means of tongs which are carried in the belts of all the waiters.

The Hookah or Waterpipe, is looked upon as a great curiosity, and some consider it a great luxury to pull away at the great machine for half an hour, until the tobacco soothes them to sleep. It is an urn about one foot in height, half filled with water: the pipe or bowl is placed upon the top of the urn and a long winding stem reaches from the urn to the smoker, and as the smoke is drawn from the pipe it touches the water and before reaching the smoker's mouth is quite cool, which in my humble opinion is no advantage, as by this means the flavor is taken from the tobacco. The long hose-like stem is of great use in Turkey and throughout the East as these people are very lazy and enjoy themselves most when they lounge. The urn can be placed in the centre of the room or at the foot of the divan and a man can enjoy his smoke and siesta at the same time. One of the delicacies furnished is Don—dowrma or Turkish Ice Cream.

The Bazaar is in the same building and adjoins the Cafe. Here all sorts of Turkish jewlery, needle work and trinklets are sold, and I may add at no small figures.

About 40 or 50 rods distant from the Turkish Pavilion is the Tunisian Cafe.—I will not speak of the coffee they furnish as it is the counterpart of that spoken of above. The feature of this Cafe is the dancing and musical entertainments given by three men, one woman and a girl. The woman, at a distance, is quite pretty. She has black hair and eyes, fine teeth, and that olive complexion which is peculiar to the females of the East, with the kohul under her eyes, the henna on her lips and finger nails and dressed in a showy picturesque costume she looks as if she had just stepped out of the Alhambra, a relic of the Moors in Spain. She performs what is called the Scarf dance, which is void of any art and beauty, and merely consists in waving two silk handkerchiefs, shuffling the feet and moving slowly from one side of the stage to the other. It is characteristic of the lack of energy of that historic people. The musical instruments are curiosities.—The danse use plays upon a sort of tambourine which resembles a cuspidor, covered with a parchment head. Their selections are not from Beethoven, Mozart, Verdi or Offenbach; in fact, it is hard to tell where they come from, as there is about as much harmony or even melody in their music as in a baby with the colic.

As it is growing late I will have to cut this letter short in order that it may be collected this evening for to-morrow morning's mail.

Great preparations are being made for the 4th of July. A grand civic procession on the evening of the 3d will usher in at midnight the glorious anniversary of the greatest event in our history as a people. I will give a full account of the ceremonies in my next letter.

F. W. C.

TILTON AT HOME.—The New York Sun says Theodore Tilton has returned to Brooklyn from his lecture tour, having spoken 217 nights, or fifty nights more than any other lecturer has done in a single season. His agent says that he has been more successful financially than ever before, and that already an extensive tour has been marked out for the next season. Mr. Tilton has gained twenty-five pounds, has made enough money to pay all of his debts, and has settled down to a summer of hard literary work.

☞ We call attention to the fact that STAM & BRO., Chestertown, have laid in an assortment of wall paper and intend to keep a supply. They are also now supplying nearly all the oil and paint for the new buildings going up in the county. Their assortment is large.

To My Friends and Patrons.

I AM desirous of enlarging and improving my business, and also am owing some bills of already too long standing, which I want to pay, as it is exceedingly unpleasant to be dunned, and consequently I need every dollar due me. This notice, therefore, is to urge prompt payment upon the part of those indebted. If it is not convenient for you to let me have money, give me your note on short time, and that will enable me to be better prepared to accommodate you in the future.

I most positively insist upon an immediate settlement, either by note or cash, of all outstanding accounts, and those indebted will find it to their interest as well as mine to respond to this notice at once.

Respectfully, JOHN N. DODD,

Iron in the Blood

MAKES THE WEAK STRONG.

The Peruvian Syrup, a Protected Solution of the Protoxide of Iron, is so combined as to have the character of an aliment, as easily digested and assimilated with the blood as the simplest food. It increases the quantity of Nature's Own Vitalizing Agent, Iron in the blood, and cures "a thousand ills," simply by Toning up, Invigorating and Vitalizing the System. The enriched and vitalized blood permeates every part of the body, repairing damages and waste, searching out morbid secretions, and leaving nothing for disease to feed upon.

This is the secret of the wonderful success of this remedy in curing Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Dropsy, Chronic Diarrhœa, Boils, Nervous Affections, Chills and Fevers, Humors, Loss of Constitutional Vigor, Diseases of the Kidneys and Bladder, Female Complaints, and all diseases originating in a bad state of the blood, or accompanied by debility or a low state of the system. Being free from Alcohol, in any form, its energizing effects are not followed by corresponding reaction, but are permanent, infusing strength, vigor, and new life into all parts of the system, and building up an Iron Constitution.

Thousands have been changed by the use of this remedy, from weak, sickly, suffering creatures, to strong, healthy, and happy men and women; and invalids cannot reasonably hesitate to give it a trial.

See that each bottle has PERUVIAN SYRUP blown in the glass.
