NOTICE OF DEMOCRATIC
Conservative Primary Meetings.

THE DEMOCRATIC CONSERVATIVE voters of Kent County are requested to assemble at the usual place of meeting in the respective Election Districts, on SATURDAY, Sept. 15th, 1877,

at 2 o'clock P. M., for the purpose of selecting Five Delegates from their respective districts, who shall meet in County Convention at the Court House in Chestertown, on Tuesday, the 18th day of Sept. 1877, at 11 o'clock, A. M., for the purpose of nominating two candidates for the House of Delegates of Maryland from Kent County; five candidates for County Commissioners, one candidate for Sheriff, and one candidate for County Surveyor, to be voted for at the ensuing election. Also, to appoint three delegates to represent Kent County in the State Convention to be held in Baltimore, on the 27th day of September, to nominate a candidate for the office of Comptroller of the Treasury of Maryland.

JAMES A. PEARCE,
RICH. C JOHNSON,
R. W. JONES.

☞ All contributions, intended for our first page, must be delivered on or before Thursday, to secure an early publication.

A QUESTION OF IDENTITY.—R. Clay Crawford has written a series of articles in which he professes to be Osman Pasha. The people of Chestertown know that he is brim full of rascality and lacking of brains.

☞ To-morrow the primary meetings of the Democratic party of this county will be held. After the issue of this paper it will be too late for us to express an opinion. We hope that the people will nominate good and true candidates,

☞ There are few campaigns in which the people are more deeply interested than the present. It is a very small matter who are nominated. It is a very great matter whether the candidates shall be good and true men,

☞ Since the Democrats have had control of the Southern States the Northern press has ceased to wave the bloody shirt. We hear no more of Southern barbarism, lawlessness, Kukluxism, or persecution of the poor negro. Sectional hatred, like a wornout garment, has been laid away, for a time. It will no longer fire the Northern heart or electrify into life carpet-bag thieves. Now, that, the Southern States have honest Democratic governments, the people of the North view with longing eyes the fair lands of the sunny South, and will soon begin to emigrate thither. Even the New York Tribune advises its readers, that, "there never was a better time than the present for emigration to the South." There is money in it. That's what's the matter!

☞ The Greenback Party of Massachusetts, has nominated Wendell Phillips for Governor, with a full State ticket.

☞ The Auburn News speaks of the dead Mormon, Brigham Young, as the "distinguished husband." We suppose that the editor has had Bluebeard on the brain since infancy.

☞ The Workingmen's Party, of Baltimore, nominated, Thursday night, 6th inst., by acclamation, Joseph Thompson for Mayor. Mr. Thompson is a blacksmith and the son of a blacksmith. He is a graduate of Baltimore City College, and a man of property and influence.

☞ It is noticed in our exchanges that Col. George Gale, of Still Pond, Kent county, attended the last meeting of the Democratic State Central Committee in Baltimore. Col. Gale has done what very few of us will live to do. He has voted the Democratic ticket for fifty years.

☞ Is the fraudulent Hayes a reformer? It is said that at a recent Cabinet meeting his Fraudulency was very indignant at the prosecution of Senator Patterson, and other leading Republicans, for fraud, peculation, embezzlement of public funds and [illegible] committed against thieves, the secrets of his own elevation to office will escape. It is a good old saying, that, "chickens come home to roost."

OSMAN PASHA'S identity is causing some discussion in the daily city papers. Some writers have contended that he is no less than the escaped Marshal Bazaine. For a time the notorious Baker, of infamous rail road fame, had the credit of being the Pasha; and now the notorious R. Clay Crawford, who once flourished in Chestertown, is said to be the Turkish chieftain. We will see.

WE are indebted to Prof. Wm. H. Zimmerman, of Washington College, for the following extract from the Philadelphia Press of August 29th. Professor Zimmerman has witnessed the operations of this wonderful motor and vouches for the correctness of the description given below.

KEELY MOTOR.

Last night, at No. 1422 North Twentieth street, in the presence of a number of scientific gentlemen, including R. H. DeBurg, engineer; Colonel Bell, of New York; Professor Wise, the æronaut; Mr. Smyser, Mr. Bickel, and Mr John W. Keely's assistants, Messrs. Moore and Chaunce, and the officers of the company there was a test given of the machine, which has become known as the "Keely Motor." All the tests given were successful, the last one being slightly marred by a split in one of the service-pipes, not at all militating against the experiment as a fact. The description of the machine, as seen by unscientific eyes, will serve as a preliminary to the tests. It is placed on an iron bed-plate, two cylinders, or upright tubes on each end, 8 feet high, the right-hand one 12 inches diameter, that on the left 9 inches diameter, each 3 inches bore on the inside—wrought iron rings are shrunk on these tubes to strengthen them. At different distances, graduated to a gauge made by Shaw, to show pressure on the top and bottom, are compressing valves. In the centre between these cylinders, at the top, is a sphere of fourteen gallons' capacity, with these tubes connecting it with a middle one, smaller, which rests on a chamber, teacup shaped, and it in turn rests on an octagonal box, which is fixed to the bed-plate, known as the expulsion-box of the machine. On each side of the central portion is a shell fourteen inches in diameter, seven inches, resting on a base through which is a three-quarter inch tube. One tube connects the shells with the expulsion-box, and all are bolted strongly together. On a line with the side shells rests what is called the expulsion-lever, and, singular as it may sound to those who have never seen the operation, this lever opens communication with all the parts of the machine, producing vibrating action and the vaper, that impalpable thing about which there has been so much speculation. Connected by small copper tubes, not over three-fourths of an inch in diameter, are two very large spheres of steel, one termed the "register of force," with a capacity of 12½ gallons, and 9 inches thick; the other, 60 gallons, and 6 inches thick—the two becoming reservoirs of the power. The operation of the machine is so simple that those who have laughed at the telegraph and the locomotive will cease to do so the same as they did with those wonderful inventions. A rubber hose, five-eighths of an inch, is attached to the hydrant, and water—about two or three gallons—is passed into the machine. The gauges, with graduated scales, indicate the height of the water column, the result varying, as it does, so far as power is concerned. Air is forced into the upright column on the left, with a pump, the pressure applied being usually about five pounds, sometimes as much as ten pounds. By application of more air, or by "bleeding" of the gauges, the pressure is regulated at will, and the machine is what is technically called "set." The operations merely consists, then, in a motion of the lever already described, and certainly last night its results were wonderful, and demonstrated that the power is made from hydrant water and ordinary chemicals about it, and it will drive an engine and transmit power. The vaper passes from the machine into a steel shell, and into a condencing apparatus, whence it goes to a small tube and thence to the engine. The valves were all opened to show the machine was clear, air introduced, and the lever was lifted, the first move showing 1,750 pounds pressure on the gauge to the square inch, and though the chamber for condensing was open the current did not blow out a match held over it. With 6½ pounds air pressure, the gauge indicated 5,200 pounds to the inch, and then 6,700, on the third trial. On the fourth it lifted a large lever (weighed) registering 5,000 pounds dead weight. The vapor was turned into an expulsion chamber and the cap flew off with a report like a rifle, frightening half those present, and lastly, a five-horse-power engine, with 4-inch stroke and twenty-four-inch fly-wheel, was driven at 680 revolutions to the minute. The skeptical engineers were convinced that the power was there, and that it could be applied. The present machine cost $60,000. One of the engineers said they had produced 14½ vacuum on one experiment, and 15 is perfect, as all engineers know. A public test will be given shortly.

The appearance this year for the first time of the name of ex-Governor Tilden in the Yale College Triennial Catalogue is explained as follows by the New Haven Register: "Mr. Tilden was compelled to leave his class on account of ill health during the latter part of the senior year. In 1875 he received the degree of LL. D. from Yale, and the insertion of his name with those of his class, instead of among the 'Honoarii et alibi instituti,' was eminently proper, and has been done before in similar cases. The name appears in the catalogue issued this year for the first time, because it is the first triennial publ[illegible]

Political Correspondence.

LOCUST GROVE, Sept. 11, 1877.

Col. George A. Hanson:—It is exceedingly gratifying to me, as it should be to all good Democrats, to find that the demand for the Transcript is so great, and is still on the increase. All good Democrats, and indeed all good citizens of our county, should extend to you their hearty thanks, as well as their support, for the position you have taken in encouraging and permitting free expressions of opinion through the columns of your paper. You are the right man, and in the right place. The Democratic party should be preserved in its purity by ridding it of corruption and of all corruptionists; and, Colonel, you have certainly employed the proper means to purify our good old Democratic party by encouraging, permitting and endorsing a free and full expression of opinion. It will have its desired effect of producing a result that the people of our good old county have desired for several years.

Colonel, I did not intend saying anything further upon this political question at present, as our primaries have been announced for next Saturday, but in defence of myself and of all others who entertain the same opinions, (which is no small number I assure you,) I will continue to further vindicate our rights as voters and citizens, regardless of the mere subterfuges which have appeared in the two last issues of the Kent News: we consider them entirely from the source from which they have emanated. They are entirely undeserving of any credit from the good-thinking people of this community. They have attempted to misrepresent the two letters of Advocate, which is only a resort to their old trickery, for the express purpose of deluding the minds of the people and distracting their attention from this question, which is of such vast importance to them, and which they—I mean the intelligent editors of the News and the combination that has been and is still continued around them—are afraid to trust in the hands of the people. May God speed the day when the Democrats of this county will rise in mass and declare their rights as sovereigns and shake loose from them the political imposters that have thrust themselves upon them, and who are seeking the very life-blood of our whole people. The News says the first letter of Advocate is full of contradictions. What a palpable falsehood and gross misrepresentation. It is altogether unnecessary for me to enter into any explanation in regard to these letters, as they are before the public for their scrutiny and judgment. They say that the letter of Advocate is a singular if not an unaccountable production. That may be their version of it. I cannot see that it is either singular or unaccounted for; or, admitting that it is singular—as it may be in one respect—it is not at all unaccounted for, as the cause for it is obvious to any one. They repeat a part of my second letter, in which I said I did not expect them to publish the letter, which is a fact. I repeat that I did not expect them to publish it, because it would come in conflict with their interests. That is a fact beyond dispute, for we are well aware that their interests and the interests of the wire-pullers are identical and inseparable. I have no denial to make, thus far; but now we come to a part that has been misrepresented. They say, "and he assigns these as his reasons for sending it to us for publication." I did not assign the above as reasons for sending it to them for publication, but assigned them as my reasons for requesting them to have it left at the office of the Transcript for publication And they say this is impudence in the superlative degree. Well, that is the highest degree that can be attained, so while we are at the top of the ladder let us continue to assert and contend for the rights of the people, for such impertinence and impudence will eventually prove detrimental to the interests of the intriguing politicians and political imposters who infest our county and party at the present time. They conclude their article in last week's issue as follows: "It is time that facts and figures as well as the name of this consequential individual should be given to the public." Now they are coming to the point where we have been trying to get them. If we can only get them to stick to the facts and figures, it is what we want: we have no fear of the result. Nor will we ask them to go farther back than 1860 for the figures to commence with. In their article of exposure that they intend presenting to the people in their next issue, I hope they will give all the facts and figures correctly, thereby saving your humble correspondent the time, as also the trouble, of any addition or correction.

Colonel, I have never had the pleasure of your personal acquaintance, but you are a man after my own heart; and should you ever pass this way, call and see the consequential individual. It would afford me much pleasure to shake you by the hand. Please gratify the editors of the News, in your present issue, by placing my name in full at the conclusion of this letter. Should you pass this way, Colonel, you will find me at the first house on entering our beautiful village, and very likely find me shoving the jack-plane, rip saw, or using some other implement necessary in connection with my business. I am a mechanic, an undertaker, but never killed any one nor buried any one alive. You will be perfectly safe in my company I assure you. I am perfectly satisfied with my avocation in this life, and have never regretted my misfortune, as some persons would term it, of not being sufficiently [illegible] to attain to a higher [illegible] life, through [illegible] political scramble-tion, been appointed to a free scholarship in some of our institutions of learning, my desires might have assumed a different character and might have proved very unfortunate for me, also; for I might, as many others have, been deceived in my intellectual capacity and qualifications. I might have aspired to some profession, perhaps that of Editor, and after finding that I was incapacitated it would have been a source of great trouble and annoyance to me, and might have resulted in leading me to intemperance; and instead of presenting the appearance that I do—being thin of flesh, hardy, and capable of great endurance—would have been corpulent, full of artificial flesh, my intellect shattered, and not worth powder enough to kill me. I have known many cases of that kind in my life, and after careful consideration am perfectly content with my lot, and will continue to fight it out on this line the remainder of my life. I have never claimed to be a politician, nor have ever aspired to any political position, or ever asked for any position within the gift of the people. I have received two appointments from the Governor, as coroner, but paid no attention to either, as they were made without solicitation on my part; and I have never voted any ticket but the Democratic ticket, nor for any candidate whose name was not on that ticket; and no one living within the limits of the second election district can justly assert or prove any thing to the contrary. Yet I am assailed in a very sarcastic manner, by men who are not, nor never were Democrats, from principle, and whose only object is self-aggrandizement. A Democrat who dares to assert or maintain his rights, or the rights of our party and people, is pronounced by them a sorehead, disorganizer, consequential individual, &c. Colonel, my object, and only object, in entering upon this political subject, was to promote the interests of our party, and have exercised as much moderation as I thought consistent with the question that I am dealing with. The onslaughts of these milk-and-cider Democrats have become unbearable, and it is to be hoped that the people will go to the Primaries, on next Saturday, and elect delegates, by ballot, to the County Convention, who will go there unpledged to any one man or set of men. I will close for the present, and await until after the Solomons shoot their big gun in their next issue. Should we survive the shock, you may expect to hear from Locust Grove again.

T. BENTON SUTTON.

A RATHER EXPENSIVE PRACTICAL JOKE.

Since the enforcement of the innkeeper's license in New York the liquor-dealers have endeavored to offset the expense of the additional license by the introduction of a machine which would prove a source of amusement to customers and attract people to their saloons.—It has brought one saloon-keeper to grief, however, and promises to prove rather a costly amusement to him. It seems that on the 13th of July three men, named respectfully Reid, Connor and Weir, intent upon having a little fun, induced a Mr. William Webber, who weighs over two hundred pounds, to go with them to a saloon kept by James Steuart and try how many pounds he could lift on a machine, which Steuart had in his saloon. Webber easily fell into the trap set for him, and on his arrival in the saloon caught hold of the "alleged" machine, when suddenly a powerful current of electricity from a galvanic battery from behind the counter was transmitted into the rings by wires passing under the floor, and from the rings into his body with such force as to raise Webber completely off the floor, in which painful position he was kept for about three minutes, when the electric current was turned off. The effects upon his system are so serious that it is feared he will never entirely recover. Webber has brought suit for $5,000 damages against Steuart, the proprietor of the saloon, and against Weir, Reid and Connor, the men who persuaded him to try the machine.

NOMINATIONS IN CAROLINE CO.—The Democratic County Convention met in Denton, on Tuesday, the 4th of September, and nominated the following ticket:

For State Senator, Hon. Daniel Fields; for House of Delegates, J. P. Maulove, Reynolds Y. Collins; Sheriff, J. Bradford Bishop; County Commissioners, Wm. W. Williamson; Surveyor, Samuel H. Melson. Delegates to the State Convention, Philip W. Downs, M. S. Mutchler, Dr. Henry F. Willis.

Mr. Fields submitted his resignation as candidate for State Senator, whereupon the convention unanimously refused to accept it.

NOMINATIONS IN MONTGOMERY CO.—The Democratic primary election which took place on Saturday last in Montgomery county, Md., resulted in the nomination of George Peter, Esq., for the Senate; Montgomery Blair, Howard Griffith and Wm. Canby for the House of Delegates; Ambrose Clements for Sheriff, William Grady for Surveyor, and the entire old Board of County Commissioners, with the exception of —— Hardesty in place of —— Cissell in the 6th district. The rivalry between the candidates made the contest a lively one.

OSMAN PASHA IS NOT R. CLAY CRAWFORD.

NEW YORK, September 9.—The Turkish minister furnishes the following: "In view of the various accounts circulating about the origin of Osman Pasha, the Turkish legation has the honor to inform the press that the marshal of that name was born in Asia Minor of Musulman parents."

No matter how perfectly adjusted every portion of a fine piece of machinery may be, there is some one part more likely to get out of order than the others, and require skilled attention. So in the human body there is one organ the direct or indirect cause of more physical discomfort than any other, and that is the Liver. When functionally deranged it induces a long series of troublesome and dangerous complaints. Keller's Vegetable Life Drops are pronounced the best remedy for all derangements of the Liver ever compounded.

BALTIMORE GRAIN MARKET

From the Sun of Wednesday.

WHEAT.—The demand for Southern Wheat is less active, and the market is dull, and for all except strictly choice grades prices are easier, closing flat. The sales were 200 bushels prime white at $1 55; 3000 bushels choice to fancy amber at 1 57a$1 60; 5000 bushels prime red and amber at 1 50a$1 56, and 2000 bushels fair to good red at 1 40a$1 45. For Western the market was quiet and a shade easier on both spot and options.

CORN.—There is a good demand for the small quantity of Southern Corn offering, and the market firm, with sales of 1500 bushels yellow at 63 cents. The market for Western is quiet and firm, closing steady.

OATS.—Oats are in good demand and market firm; sales of 250 bushels Southern at 36 cents, and 4200 bushels mixed Western at 33a35 cts. the former for dark.

RYE.—Rye is in small supply and market quiet; sales of prime car loads have been made at 70 cents, and we note today 200 bushels fair at 65 cents per bushel.

Marriages.

BECK—GARRETT.—At the residence of the bride's mother, in Chestertown, on Wednesday morning last, by Rev. W. H. Hutchin, JAMES BECK to Miss MARY E. GARRETT.

Deaths.

GALE.—On the 4th inst, JOHN, son of Isaac and Mary Jane Gale, in his 18th year.
