☞ All contributions, intended for our first page, must be delivered on or before Thursday, to secure an early publication.

ONCE more we unfurl the flag of Democracy, emblazoned with the names of our candidates. They are respected by and we believe well known to the Democrats of Kent, and will receive a hearty support. In our next issue we will speak of them individually. At present it is enough to assure them that we will exert our utmost efforts to secure their triumphant election.

THE Democratic Convention of Kent County which assembled in Chestertown, last Tuesday, was one of the most harmonious meetings ever held here. The unanimity of the proceedings argues well for the merits of the candidates nominated and presages a glorious victory for our party. It is, we think, safe to predict that the nominations will receive the hearty endorsement of the old line Democrats, who from their birth have borne the heat and brunt of many a battle, and also of those who in these latter days have swelled our ranks and shared the honors and emoluments of office. Let every Democrat be up and doing and strike another blow for the grand old Democratic party!

A CENTRAL COMMITTEE FOR KENT COUNTY.

The only subject which seemed, for a moment, likely to disturb the harmony of our Convention, last Tuesday, was the introduction of a resolution authorizing the members of "The State Central Committee," residing in Kent, to inaugurate the appointment, by each Election District, of one person as a member of a County Executive Committee. The propriety of having two Executive Committees, in Kent county, was not appreciated by the Convention, and the Resolution, after a few words pro and con, in the best of humor, was voted down. We rejoice that the Convention saw, as we did, "the poison under the wing," and heartily commend the wisdom of its rejection. What the Democratic Party needs to secure harmony and success, is not an Executive Committee of three or five members to call Primary Meetings or even County Nominating Conventions—that is a small matter and within the compass of a printer's devil; but it does need a large and influential CENTRAL COMMITTEE, representing every neighborhood, in the county, regularly appointed by each successive County Convention, to carry out its views and assist its candidates, by advice and ways and means—the sinews of war.

What a vast assistance it would be, in this present campaign, to each candidate, if he had around him, in his own district, ten or more influential friends and citizens appointed by our Convention, whose official duty required them to aid him to ascertain and secure every possible vote, to prevent illegal voting, and in cases of difficulty and perplexity, were bound to give him, at all times, their cordial personal sympathy and advice. Such are the first and most important duties of a County Central Committee, for upon it would properly rest the burden of the campaign. Another duty would be to see that peace and harmony are preserved in the party during its term of service—and finally to provide for its own dissolution, by calling Primary Meetings and another County Convention.

In our issue of the 7th inst., having had much experience in such things, we expressed our views, at some length, and have been gratified to find them approved by our exchanges. The Salisbury Advertiser, of the 15th inst., published our editorial in full and commended it the consideration of the convention of Wicomico. The Easton Star, of the 18th inst., speaking on the same subject, says:

"The appointment of a county central committee is something the Star has advocated a long time. It is indispensable that there should be some official body in each district to look after the registration and other matters looking to a complete organization of the party. It is immaterial who constitute the committee so that they take an interest in the business and will attend to it."

☞ IN the Republican Convention of Kent County, of the 11th inst, the Transcript was requested to publish the resolutions which were offered by Mr. Thos. E. Norris. The form of the request was objectionable, and while we will not refuse we insist that we have the right to comply in our own way.

The resolutions, Mr. Jos. Turner and Capt. W. F. Hamilton voting in the negative, were adopted, as follows:

WHEREAS, The County has for some years been under the control of a few unscrupulous politicians, and they have had control of the Registration officers and the appointments of the Judges of election; and,

WHEREAS, Said Registration officers do place every obstacle in the way to prevent Republians who are entitled to vote from being registered, and do drop from the lists many Republicans voters, and do refuse to take from the lists many names of persons who are either dead or removed from the county; and a majority of the said Judges of election do allow the said unscrupulous politicians to vote men equally unscrupulous on the names of the said dead or removed persons, to secure a fraudulent majority; and,

WHEREAS, We can see no way to obtain redress for the wrongs thus perpetrated upon Republicans and others, not in affiliation with them; therefore,

RESOLVED, That we recommend that the Republicans make no nominations for county officers, but to support the State ticket as best they can.

We suppose Mr. Norris intended these resolutione to be construed in a Pickwickian sense, but we regard them as a gross slander upon the Registers of Kent county, who are gentlemen of unquestioned integrity. It reminds us of the old song "overpowered by numbers" and the refrain "masked batteries." Under any honest registration the Republicans are in a vast minority in this County. We think that when a patient is moribund, all the Doctors in the world cannot save him from the effects of congestion of the brain or corruption of heart. All that the Republican party can hope for is an easy death.

IN Baltimore the people are having a four-square political fight. The Reformers, so-called, are led by Mr. Henry Warfield, a very accomplished gentleman, without the ghost of a chance of being elected. The Republicans, utterly dumfounded and dispirited by custom-house electricity, are sadly in need of the prayers of a congregation, of some kind. The workingmen's party have selected Mr. Joseph Thompson as their candidate, for the Mayoralty. No one doubts his worthiness; but he has not a sufficient following of voters to seat him in the marble palace. The ranks of the Democratic party are firmly compacted and it is generally conceded that Col. Kane and Mr. Philip M. Snowden will be elected by handsome majorities.

FROM every quarter of the State of Maryland come good tidings. The Democrats are putting their best men forward and expect to obtain easy victories, in most of the counties.

FRUITS AND FLOWERS.

CLOSE OF THE EXHIBITION.

The American Pomological Society, which holds an exhibition every second year in some leading city of the United States, and whose culminating display in points of interest and magnitude closed last night at the armory of the Fifth Regiment, has good reason to remember Baltimore as having made good its claim to hospitality of its citizens, and shown a culture capable of appreciating the highest attainment of horticultural skill. During their stay at the Carrollton Hotel, as the guests of the Maryland Society, the delegates from different parts of the United States and Canadas have been shown every possible attention and entertained in a manner that reflects credit upon a city which may be said to enjoy supremacy in the commercial dispensation of the products of the orchard and garden. In extent of transactions in fresh and canned fruits, especially the latter, Baltimore enjoys a deservedly high reputation. It is probable that the significance and importance of the presence here of the leading fruit growers from all parts of the country has not received full acknowledgement from the masses of the people. The direction of the attention of skilled and experienced pomologists to the various indigenous fruits of Maryland, the benefit to be derived by home horticulturists from the study of the products of other States, and the professional and business relations which have been made more intimate, cannot fail to prove of great advantage. The exhibition, while not as numerously attended as it deserved, was equal to every expectation, and those who visited it were greeted with a scene of beauty and a display of nature's fairest products rarely excelled. Whatever else may results from the event, fruit growing and horticulture generally have received an impetus in Maryland that augurs well for the future.

A PROCESSION.

Upon arriving at the wharf at Riverside the visitors were met by Colonel Edward Wilkins, who here for the first time in many years met some of his fellow-growers of fruit on a large scale.—The delegates, members and invited guests then formed in procession, with a band of music in advance, and marched the quarter of a mile from the wharf to the manor. Mr. W. H. Perot, President of the Maryland Horticultural Society, and Colonel Wilkins walked in advance arm-in-arm. The grounds traversed were handsomely laid off and ornamented with box borders, pretty shrubbery and roses and other flowering plants in bloom, upon arriving at the broad lawn, as soft and smooth as though covered by a carpet of green, the company scattered, some taking seats under the fantastic magnolio trees, others taking seats in the halls and piazzas of the large, old-fashioned house, and more again moving about the place examining plants and trees of interest.

DINNER ON THE LAWN.

Mr. R. S. Emory, also a large Maryland peach grower, who assisted Colonel Wilkins in doing the honors, invited all present to a long table under a shady tree where they were initiated into the mysteries of the compound known as "peach and honey," for which the Eastern Shore is especially famous. At noon dinner was served at a series of tables on the lawn, which were loaded down with delicacies, including fresh oysters taken a few hours previously from the waters hard by. Although so early in the season the oysters were of good size, and their flavor was better perhaps than that of oysters which will be caught later. Over two hundred and fifty persons sat down to dinner, and every one had more oysters, ripe fruit and a dozen other varieties at command than they could accommodate. Mr. Perot, of Baltimore, proposed the health of Colonel Wilkins, which was drank standing, and followed by three rousing cheers that sent long echoes over the water.

PICKING PEACHES.

At 2 o'clock P. M., about a hundred of the visitors took conveyances, and guided by Mr. Emory, drove several miles through the surrounding peach-growing country. Col. Wilkins has 1,100 acres under cultivation. His orchards contain 125,000 peach trees and about 25,000 other fruit trees. The crop of peaches this year has not been large owing to a descructive hail storm which occurred last month and wrought sad havoc. From Mr. Wilkins' place the visitors went to adjoining fruit farms, finishing up with Mr. R. S. Emory's fine tract of nearly a hundred acres. Mr. Emory grows pears mostly, and has been very successful in their cultivation, although the hail storm also lessened his crop about one-half. In different fields he has trees of different ages. From his 15,000 pear trees he has averaged 1,500 boxes annually for over ten years. The peaches grown by him are of kinds that he has tested by many years of experiment and found advantageous. From the balcony of Mr. Emory's house the visitors had a splendid view of Chestertown, a few miles away. Driving through the 400 acres of Mrs. Hiram Brown, the Heath and Hale peach trees were found in many instances broken from the immense number and weight of the peaches on the branches.

THE RETURN.

When the peach tourists arrived back at Colonel Wilkins' place they were met by those who had remained, who were drawn up in line, and saluted them with cheers, affording a good deal of merriment. Mr. Emory again brought out the "peach and honey," and at 4 P. M. the visitors marched back in procession to the steamer, which started on the return.—During the trip back supper was served by Mr. Robert Rennert. It was a feast varieties, excellently cooked and served in an admirable manner by experienced waiters, under the direction of Mr. Peter Lynch. Champagne and fruits closed the feast The management of the whole excursion was unexceptionally good, and reflects credit upon the committee of the Maryland Horticultural Society who had it in charge. This committee was composed of James Pentland, August Hoen, J. Mowton Saunders, S. H. Corydon and W. D. Brackenridge. Mr. Pentland especially was assiduous in his endeavors to make the affair agreeable to everyone, and did not have a moment's leisure the entire trip.

A BUSINESS MEETING.

A business meeting of the Pomological Society was held on board during the return trip, and various matters were transacted to close the biennial session. Dr. Warder, of Ohio, presided, and Mr. Flagg, of Illinois, was secretary. The question of the nature and remedy of blight in pears was discussed at length by A. J. Caywood, of New York; Professor Brainard, of Washington; Dr. Hexamer, of New Jersey; Mr. Moody, of New York, Mr. Hatfield, of Massachusetts; Mr. Augur, of Connecticut; Dr. Snodgrass, of Maryland; Dr. Howsley, of Virginia, and Thomas Mechan, of Philadelphia. Mr. Mechan's clear and comprehensive remarks on the subject were applauded. The question whether or not the early Kent gooseberry is the same as the Houghton was also discussed by W. F. Massey, of Chestertown, Md., and Dr. Hexamer, of New York, but the matter was not settled. They have points in commen, and may be nearly akin. Col. Brackett, of Iowa, offered resolutions thanking the Maryland Society, Col. Wilkins, Mr. Pentland, Col. Coleman, of the Carrollton Hotel, and others for courtesies attentions to the Society.—American.

OSMAN PASHA.

The lately published statement that R. Clay Crawford, who once figured so sensationally in Kent county, has turned up as Osman Pasha, is without foundation.

Osman Pasha was born in Hungary of Jewish parents named Wolf. He participated in the revolution of 1848, and after the subjection of Hungary he fled to Turkey and adopted the Mohammedan faith. His great powers as a linguist attracted the notice of the Sultan's household officers, and after a brief sojourn he was named a professor in the military school at Constantinople. His course in that capacity gave such high satisfaction that he was soon charged with the superintendence of the education of the Sultan's children. During the Crimean war he conducted all the correspondence between the Turkish, French and English armies, and on the conclusion of peace the Sultan raised him to the dignity of a Pasha, when he assumed the name of Osman. In the early part of the struggle precipitated by the Montenegrians upon Turkey he was given an important post, and was once captured by a body of irregular soldiers in the mountains of Montenegro. This statement is confirmed by his brother Bernhard Wolf, who is at present a leading member of the Jewish synagogue in Pesth, and who says he is in constant receipt of letters from Osman, narrating his varied experiences and defending the Mohammedan faith with all the zeal of an orthodox Turk.—Chesapike.

A sound mind in a sound body is a prime essential to all intellectual and material success, and the close sympathy between the mind and body should compel us to keep the one pure and tranquil, as well as to maintain the other active and healthy. Perverted functional efforts injure the body and react upon the mind, blunting its faculties and feelings; especially does Constipation produce most dangerous effects, bodily and mentally, and this harsh, exacting habit of body should be broken by the judicious and continued use of Keller's Vegetable Life Drops. The attention of those interested is called to the following provisions of the Act of 1876;

The thirteenth section provides that no person shall be entitled to be or remain registered in any precinct or election district, unless he shall have been a resident of the State for one year, and of the City of Baltimore, or the county in which registration be claimed, for six months, next preceding the next ensuing election, at which such registration would be evidence of the right of the person so registered to vote; and in case any county or city shall be so divided as to form portions of different electoral districts for the election of representatives in Congress, delegates or other officers, then to entitle a person to be or remain registered in any particular section or part of such county or city, he must have been a resident of that part or section of the electoral district in which he claims to be or is registered for six months next preceeding the next election, at which such registration would be evidence of the right of the person so registered to vote; and the residence necessary to entitle any person to be or remain so registered, shall be an actual bona fide residence within the precinct or district within which such person may claim to reside and to be registered, and such bona fide residence shall be established upon the oath or affirmation of competent evidence, to the satisfaction of the judge or judges to whom any appeal is made, under the provisions of this Act; and the neglect or refusal of any person deeming himself aggrieved by the refusal of any officer of registration to register his name, or by the striking off of his name from the list of qualified voters, to appeal by petition from such action, as provided for in this act, shall be deemed and taken to be conclusive evidence that the said person was rightfully refused registration, or that the name of such person was rightfully stricken from the list of qualified voters of such precinct or election district.

The law further provides, that whilst discharging the duties imposed by the several sections of this act said officers of registration shall have and exercise the powers of a justice of the peace for the preservation of order around the place of registration, and may compel the presence of witnesses for the purpose of obtaining any information necessary to an intelligent discharge of the duties of their office; they shall have power to issue summonses, attachments and commitments, to any Sheriff or Constable, who shall serve such process as if issued by a Judge of a Court or a Justice of the Peace.

☞ Voters desiring to be transferred from one district to another, or from one county to another, can only be transferred on certificate from the officer of registration where last registered.
