Farm and Household.

Farm Work for January.

How do You Stand?—One cannot lay out his work to advantage, without knowing precisely how he stands with regards to his business. The beginning of the year is the appropriate time for ascertaining it. Frequently an account of business is kept for a month or two, and then neglected. If it is only to encourage habits of regularity and perseverance, it will be time well spent to keep an account, not only of money affairs, but a record of events for every day. This tends to beget promptness and system in every detail of farm work, and in business affairs, that foresight and economy which are everywhere the prime essentials to success.

Keep a Record of the events of each day's work, and farm-life. One of the boys or girls should do this. A book will be needed, ruled with plain lines, on which to make the entries; put down the condition of the weather, the work done, and by whom; purchases and sales made, indeed, anything that may be needed for future reference, or that should be entered in the account book, which will thus become a valuable and interesting record of the farm.

Make an Inventory.—Put down every thing you possess, from the farm itself, to the small tools and utensils, and value each item fairly. Enter the money on hand, and also every debt owed. This is the first work in beginning an account. The property owned, and money on hand will be on one side of the account, and the debts on the other. The balance will show just how the farmer stands. This account will be the Account of Stock.

Purchases and Sales, are entered in the daily record, and from that into a purchase and sale book; except the cash transactions, which go into the cash book.

The Cash Book.—Every payment and receipt of money for purchases, sales, or for wages, should be entered in the cash book; this should be done every evening, and before it is forgotten; all these entries are transferred to a ledger to the proper accounts. The work is very simple and easy, and there are farmers' girls who keep all their father's accounts in the most accurate manner. Fuller directions for keeping farm accounts, were given in the American Agriculturist for January and February, 1879.

Hiring Men.—A farmer should try to make work for a hired man, or several if possible. If he can find profitable work for them, he is making money for himself. A few months wages spent in procuring or making manure, draining, clearing off stone, getting out stumps, or otherwise making the farm more productive, will be well invested.

Keep the Stables Clean; clear out the manure every morning, and scrape or card off all filth from the animals. The stable should be made so warm, that the manure will not freeze at night; a lower temperature will either demand a larger amount of food, or the animals will fall off in condition.

Cut the Litter.—If the litter is cut into 3-inch lengths, or even smaller, it will hold more moisture, will make better and finer manure, and will keep the animals cleaner than long litter. The gain in the quality of the manure, in one year, the saving in time in the handling, increased effectiveness of it, will pay good interest on the cost of a wind-mill, and a fodder cutter, to do the cutting. But if the stormy and disagreeable days are chosen to cut up straw for this purpose, an abundant supply can be made. A broad axe can be purchased for $2.50, and with this and a block, a sheaf of straw may be cut into 2 inch chaff, in half a minute. Two persons, one to hold the sheaf on the block or plank, and the other to use the axe, would soon cut up a ton of straw. Where hardwood saw-dust, dry swamp muck, or pine straw can be procured, these make excellent litter and manure.

Economy in Feeding, is a very important consideration. In some cases half the feed used is wasted. Cutting the fodder has proved a saving of one-third to one-half.—Where but 10 head of stock are fed, if the feed of one-third or one-half can be saved, it is simply a large increase of the resources of the farm, and is sufficient to pay the cost of a good cutter and the time expended in cutting.

Watering Stock.—The supply of water in winter is a source of trouble. Ice gathers about the troughs and other drinking places; pipes freeze and burst, or become choked, and many other inconveniences occur. These may be avoided by methodical management.—From the American Agriculturist for January 1, 1880.

Pop Corn Balls.—Take 3 quarts of popped corn, boil half a pint of molasses about fifteen minutes; then put the corn into a large pan, pour the molasses over it, stirring briskly until thoroughly mixed. Then, with the hands, make it into balls of the desired size.

French Coffee.—A Frenchman roasts coffee, grinds it to a flour, moistens it slightly, mixes it with twice its weight of sugar, and then presses it into tablets. One tablet can be dissolved at any time. Boiling hot water is all that is required, and you will have the perfection of coffee.

Apple Dumplings.—Pare large apples, scoop out the core with a small knife, then cover with a thin suet or butter crust, made as for puddings, and tie up in a cloth, to boil from twenty minutes to half an hour. Or, they may be baked.

Scalloped Oysters.—Crunch and roll several handfuls of Boston or other nice crackers; put a layer in the bottom of a buttered pudding dish; wet this with a mixture of the oyster liquor and milk, slightly warmed; next put a layer of oysters; sprinkle with salt and pepper and put bits of butter upon them; then another layer of moistened crumbs, and repeat until the dish is full; let the top layer be of crumbs thicker than the rest, and beat an egg into a little milk and pour over them; put bits of butter thickly over it and bake half an hour.

Rhode Island is going crazy over a two-legged calf. Quite a common thing here.

THE LOVED AND LOST.

"The loved and lost!" why do we call them lost?"
Because we miss them from our onward road?
God's unseen angel o'er our pathway crost,
Looked on us all, and loving them the most,
Straightway relieved them from life's weary load.

They are not lost; they are within the door
That shuts out loss and every hurtful thing—
With angels bright, and loved ones gone before,
In their Redeemer's presence evermore,
And God himself, their Lord, and Judge and King:

And this we call a "loss:" O, selfish sorrow
Of selfish hearts? O, we of little faith!
Let us look round, an argument to borrow
Why we in patience should await the morrow
That surely must succeed this night of death.

Aye, look upon this dreary desert path
The thorns and thistles whereso'er we turn;
What trials and what tears, what wrongs and wrath,
What struggles and what strife the journey hath!
They have escaped from these, and lo! we mourn.

Ask the poor sailor, when the wreck is done,
Who with his treasure strove the shore to reach,
While with the raging wave he battled on,
Was it not joy, when every joy seemed gone,
To see his loved one landed on the beach?

A poor wayfarer, leading by the hand
A little child, had halted by the well
To wash from off her feet the clinging sand,
And tell the tired boy of that bright land
Where, this long journey past, they longed to dwell;

When lo! the Lord, who many mansions had,
Drew near and looked upon the suffering twain,
Then pitying spake, "Give me the little lad.
In strength renewed, and glorious beauty clad;
I'll bring him with me when I come again."

Did she make answer selfishly or wrong—
"Nay, but the woes I feel he too must share!"
Or rather, bursting into grateful song,
She went her way rejoicing and made strong
To struggle on since he was freed from care.

We will do likewise; death hath made no breach
In love and sympathy; in hope and trust;
No outward sign or sound our ears can reach,
But there's an inward, spiritual speech
That greets us still, though mortal tongues be dust.

It bids us do the work that they laid down—
Take up the song where they broke off the strain;
So journeying till we reach the heavenly town,
Where are laid up our treasures and our crown,
And our lost loved ones will be found again.

THE INCREASE OF WEALTH.—The accumulation of realized wealth in this country is progressing at so rapid a rate as to strengthen the conviction that New York will, within the next quarter of a century, supplant London as the centre of the world's financial exchanges.—Statistics show that in 1790, when the population of the United States was only about 4,000,000, the average value of property to each individual in the country was $187. In 1870, when the population had increased to nearly 39,000,000, the average of property, in value, to each individual was $776 96. It may be shown by next year's census that the percentage of increase in average wealth during the current decade is less than that of previous periods, but any apparent falling off will be more than compensated by the fact that now, if ever, values are real and at their minimum in most things, and the currency of the country is stable. It has been estimated that in 1865 the average wealth of each person in Great Britain was $1,020. By 1875 this had increased to $1,300. The calculated total increase of the popular wealth of the United Kingdom in the same period was $12,000,000,000, or about three times the public debt of Great Britain.—Shipping List.

PRINCE TALLEYRAND once upon a time summoned his cook, who was none other than the great Careme, and said to him severely:

"I am greatly displeased with you. You served me at 8 o'clock yesterday a salmis which should have been ready at 7, and thus my evening's appointments were all interfered with and grave matters of state were left unconsidered or only half considered."

"Will your Excellency deign to inform me if the salmis was good?"

"It was delicious, sir."

"That, Your Excellency, was the important point." And with a profound bow the artist retired.

THE ORIGIN OF MAUD MULLER.—The poet Whittier recently gave the following account of the origin of his famous poem entitled "Maud Muller." He was driving with his sister through York, Me., and stopped at a harvest-field to inquire the way. A young girl raking hay near the stone wall stopped to answer their inquiries. Whittier noticed, as she talked, that she bashfully raked the hay around and over her bare feet, and she was fresh and fair. The little incident left its impression, and he wrote out the poem that very evening.

☞ A patriotic Hibernian, after listening for some time to a recitation of Irish bulls amid general laughter cried, indignantly:

"Faith, Mr. A., an' do ye know what I think?"

"Why, indeed, what do you think, Mr. D.?"

"Shure, sir, an' do ye know that I think, indade, that not more than one-half of these lies they tell about the Irish are true."

☞ "Have you given electricity a trial for your malady, madam?" asked the pastor, as he took tea with the old lady.

"Electricity! Yes; I reckon I has. Wasn't I struck by lightning last summer, and hove out of the window? And it did no good neither."

A pupil in a country school was asked—"How do you parse 'Mary milked the cow.'" The last word was disposed of as follows: "Cow, a noun, feminine gender, third person, and stands for Mary." "Stands for Mary! How do you make that out?" "Because," added the intelligent pupil, "if the cow didn't stand for Mary, how could she milk her?"

Remarks a writer, "A gentle hand can lead an elephant by a hair." Now what foolishness that is to put into the minds of children? Why, bless you, elephants don't have hair; they just have hides, that's all. Perhaps a gentle hand might lead him by the tail, but, mind you, we have our doubts even of that.

☞ A Colorado man dropped dead recently. The jury thought something ailed his heart, but were unable to ascertain the name of the man behind the tree at the time of the occurrence.

The Sun for 1880.

THE SUN will deal with the events of the year 1880 in its own fashion, now pretty well understood by everybody. From January 1 until December 31 it will be conducted as a newspaper written in the English language and printed for the whole people.

As a newspaper, The Sun believes in getting all the news of the world promptly, and presenting it in the most intelligible shape—the shape that will enable its readers to keep well abreast with the age with the least unproductive expenditure of time. The greatest interest to the greatest number—that is the law controlling its daily make-up. It now has a circulation very much larger than that of any other American newspaper, and enjoys an income which it is at all times prepared to spend liberally for the benefit of its readers. People of all conditions of life and all ways of thinking buy and read The Sun; and they all derive satisfaction of some sort from its columns, for they keep on buying and reading it.

In its comments on men and affairs, The Sun believes that the only guide of policy should be common sense, inspired by genuine American principles and backed by honesty of purpose. For this reason it is, and will continue to be, absolutely independent of party, class, clique, organization, or interest. It is for all, but of none. It will continue to praise what is good and reprobate what is evil, taking care that its language is to the point and plain, beyond the possibility of being misunderstood. It is uninfluenced by motives that do not appear on the surface; it has no opinions to sell, save those which may be had by any purchaser with two cents. It hates injustice and rascality even more than it hates unnecessary words. It abhors frauds, pities fools, and deplores nincompoops of every species. It will continue throughout the year 1880 to chastise the first class, instruct the second, and discountenance the third. All honest men, with honest convictions, whether sound or mistaken, are its friends. And The Sun makes no bones of telling the truth to its friends and about its friends whenever occasion arises for plain speaking.

These are the principles upon which The Sun will be conducted during the year to come.

The year 1880 will be one in which no patriotic American can afford to close his eyes to public affairs. It is impossible to exaggerate the importance of the political events which it has in store, or the necessity of resolute vigilance on the part of every citizen who desires to preserve the Government that the founders gave us. The debates and acts of Congress, the utterances of the press, the exciting contests of the Republican and Democratic parties, now nearly equal in strength throughout the country, the varying drift of public sentiment, will all bear directly and effectively upon the twenty-fourth Presidential election, to be held in November. Four years ago next November, the will of the nation, as expressed at the polls, was thwarted by an abominable conspiracy, the promoters and beneficiaries of which still hold the offices they stole. Will the crime of 1876 be repeated in 1880? The past decade of years opened with a corrupt, extravagant, and insolent Administration intrenched at Washington. The Sun will do something toward dislodging the gang and breaking its power. The same men are now intriguing to restore their leader and themselves to places from which they were driven by the indignation of the people. Will they succeed? The coming year will bring the answer to these momentous questions. The Sun will be on hand to chronicle the facts as they are developed, and to exhibit them clearly and fearlessly in their relations to expediency and right.

Thus, with a habit of philosophical good humor in looking at the minor affairs of life, and in great things a steadfast purpose to maintain the rights of the people and the principles of the Constitution against all aggressors, The Sun is prepared to write a truthful, instructive, and entertaining history of 1880.

Our rates of subscription remain unchanged. For the Daily Sun, a four-page sheet of twenty-eight columns, the price by mail, post paid, is 55 cents a month, or $6.50 a year; or, including the Sunday paper, an eight-page sheet of fifty-six columns, the price is 65 cents a month, or $7.70 a year, postage paid.

The Sunday edition of The Sun is also furnished separately at $1.20 a year, postage paid.

The price of the Weekly Sun, eight pages, fifty-six columns, is $1 a year, postage paid. For clubs of ten sending $10 we will send an extra copy free. Address

A Talk With Fruit Growers.

I HAVE now growing, on my farm, a fine seedling Peach Nursery, (from the seed o the Smock,) of over 200,000 trees.

Being from Smock seed, and growing on land that never grew trees before, they must prove especially hardy and prolific.

I shall bud 50,000 (commencing June 15th) for this Fall's planting; such trees will run from 3 to 4 feet in height.

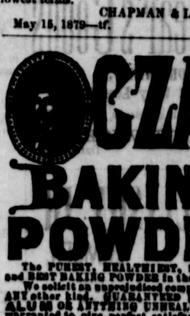

I shall bud the balance in August, for planting the following fall. As most all planters have preference for special varieties, I propose to take orders, before the budding is done, customers furnishing their own buds if they prefer; so that all may be accommodated. Do not fail to give this matter proper consideration, and send in your orders early. By so doing you can secure just the varieties you want; but i delayed till you are ready to plant, nurserymen may not have the kinds you prefer. I will give instructions how to forward buds, upon inquiry.

I HAVE A GENERAL ASSORTMENT OF ALL KINDS OF NURSERY STOCK.

Twenty years' experience as an extensive Fruit Grower and Nurseryman, certainly entitles me to a reasonable share of patronage on this peninsula.
