LEADING Republicans continue to come over into the Hancock ranks. There promises to be a bountiful harvest of them next November.

DR. TANNER, according to latest advices, had not starved to death. The truth of the matter is, he seems to think more of the coming water melon, than he does of dismal death.

IT is said that when General Grant has traveled around a little more, he expects to settle down in New York city, where he expects to engage in some sort of lucrative business,—perhaps the sinecure presidency of the Nicaraguan canal in which position the greatest responsibility devolving upon him, will be the drawing of his $50,000 annual salary.

BALTIMORE has not yet given up the Elkton and Middletown railroad. Subscription books toward the building of the road were opened last Saturday. The estimated cost of the road is $181,276.36. If Baltimore can raise $100,000 of this amount it is said the balance will be raised elsewhere. Several times before the building of this road has been agitated, but the Baltimore capitalists have never seemed anxious to invest in it.

REPUBLICAN newspapers are very fond of calling the Democratic journals that give publicity to Garfield's Credit Mobilier and DeGolyer record, "Mud slingers." What especially worries the souls of Republican newspapers is that they cannot find any mud to sling. Ever since Hancock's nomination they have been diligently sniffing around for a good stinking mud hole, out of which to get their campaign garbage. They tried the Mrs. Surratt puddle, but they found it had entirely dried up; they have investigated several other pools, but not being able to find any one dirty enough for their purposes, they straighten themselves up, put on an air of dignity and remark that in their opinion this campaign ought to be conducted on high moral principles. Truly the Republican party cuts a figure when it sets out to run on "high moral principles."

SPAIN'S long extended efforts to bring the Island of Cuba into subjection, have more than once come near to bringing her into collission with other powers. She seems to be under the impression that the United States is either a very cowardly nation or else a very long suffering one. Lately Spain has assumed the right of hailing American vessels found in Cuban waters, firing upon them if they do not heave to, and when the Spanish warships have overhauled them they make a thorough search of their stores.—Nearly seventy years ago, when this country was comparatively in its infancy, it went to war with a much stronger nation than Spain, for pretty much the same offenses that Spain is now guilty of. In 1812 England was made to understand that she could not search American vessels with impunity. She has never since attempted to assert the right. A few vigorous measures might teach the Spanish government a thing or two. The American government has sent a man of war into Cuban waters, and is investigating the outrages committed upon American merchantmen. In the course of human events, Mr. Hayes' administration will perhaps make some sort of demand for redress.

BALTIMORE city, in population, stands seventh on the list, according to the new census. Baltimore claims that she would come in fifth, if she could only have her belt, which she thinks she ought to have. However this may be, there is no doubt that Baltimore is far ahead of all other competitors as the second city in the Union in commercial importance. In the foreign export trade for the year ending June 30, 1880, the principal seaports stand as follows: New York $132,000,000, Baltimore $56,000,000, Philadelphia $28,000,000, San Francisco $25,000,000, Boston $14,000,000, New Orleans $9,000,000. It will be seen that after New York the export trade of Baltimore is much greater than that of any other American city. It is double the trade of Philadelphia, and four times as great as that of Boston. The commercial prosperity of Baltimore gives promise of continuance. The only city aside from New York, that is likely to equal Baltimore in her foreign trade in the next ten years, is San Francisco. San Francisco is the outlet for the rapidly developing Pacific slope. When the now uncultivated wildernesses of the far West shall smile with the harvest, their products will go to increase the commerce of San Francisco. But if by some possibility, Baltimore should in the next ten years find a short cut to the ocean through a Peninsula Ship Canal, she may get enough of New York's trade to give her the lead, and leave New York to contest with San Francisco the commercial laurels in 1890.

THE assault made in Denton last week upon R. J. Jump by James F. Melvin, some account of which is to be found elsewhere, is but the repetition of what has been done by brothers and fathers thousands of times before, when unprincipled libertines have brought ruin and disgrace into their homes. The practice of slaying the seducer, without legal authority, has been time and again condemned by the press, the pulpit and the general public. It is an easy matter for most of us to stand aside, and from a cool-headed and disinterested standpoint condemn the practice; but it is a difficult matter for men of strong natures and deep-seated affections, when they know their sisters or their daughters to have been debauched, to consider the act of the seducer coolly. If the man who brings ruin in such a shape to their homes had stabbed them to the heart, they could with their dying breath more easily forgive the act than they could forgive the more blighting offense against their fireside.

From his own card to the public, we should judge that young Melvin acted hastily. There is no convincing evidence from the facts which he gives, that R. J. Jump was criminally intimate with his sister. The extracts which he gives only go to show that Jump was in the habit of writing her a great deal of sickening twaddle, and that he had probably been a long time engaged in efforts to seduce her; but there is no evidence of his having succeeded. The young lady herself denies that there have ever been any criminal relations between them.

The position occupied by the offender renders his crime doubly heinous. He was the girl's class leader, and superintendent of the Sunday school of which she was a pupil. Such a position easily gained him the confidence of a young girl ignorant of the evil ways of evil men.

A TRIP TO EMMITTSBURG.

AN INCIDENT OF THE TRIP—GETTYSBURG BATTLE FIELD AND CEMETERY, ETC., ETC.

A trip to Emmittsburg, over the Western Maryland railroad, which passes through a very hilly, rocky country for the most part, and from the small patches of corn, poor fencing and soil along the road, no one would ever think of Frederick as a rich county.

At one of the stations there was quite an exciting incident. As the train was approaching, a lady in attempting to cross the track, tripped and fell in front of the engine. All hope seemed to be gone. The last words of the one left behind, and the thought of not again seeing him seemed to cause her to lose all presence of mind; but in a moment a gentleman jumped to her rescue and she was saved to make some home happy (now I wonder?)

EMMITTSBURG

Is located in the mountains, and the Emmitt House, in the highest part of the town, is kept by Mr. W. K. Sutton and lady, formerly of Kent, whose social qualities, genial manners and systematic management render them highly qualified for the keeping of a summer resort, and every one at once feels free and at home in their house. We found his house, as we expected full, but he said he always had room for one more.

GETTYSBURG.

We rode over to Gettysburg, where we found a regiment of soldiers from Philadelphia, on the old battle-ground, with four or five hundred tents. The guns are here in the breast-works just as Lee left them after the battles of July 1st, 2d and 3d, 1863. The cemetery is the most attractive place here, and is worth a visit. Any description which I might give could convey a very inadequate idea of its beauty. The graves of about five hundred soldiers are marked by granite and marble, besides monuments and statues. A vast amount of money has been spent by the Government on this cemetery.

There are no peaches on the Western Maryland railroad, or at least no peach trees, but a plenty of cabbages and cucumbers, which may answer instead.

Emmittsburg is a good place to recuperate, but persons going there for health should remember, first, to retire early; second, to rise about sun-up, take a ride or walk over the hills and mountains, selecting some genial spirit for a companion, try to make every one around happy, and return of health and strength will be sure.

SEA LIONS AT LARGE.—There was great consternation at Coney Island Friday among the bathers. Eight sea lions, which have been floundering in the aquarium at Engeman's pier, got loose and made a break for liberty. They did it so effectually that there was a regular panic, and people were afraid to venture into the water to any great extent. They cost about $600 each and $1,600 expressage from California, where they were caught. There were a great many people in the surf at the time of the escape of the sea lions, but there was an immediate stampede. Logs and buoys and bullet-headed swimmers were frequently mistaken for the monsters of the briny, and the attaches of the beach of police officers were conjured to "catch them at once!" But the sea lions had shaped their courses seaward, and never gave a thought to thousands they left behind them and were so anxious to see them once again.

A sea lion eight feet long was caught in the lower lock of the canal at New Brunswick, N. J., on Saturday night by Richard Welsh, harbor master, who shot, but did not kill it. It is supposed to be one of the eight that escaped from Coney Island on Friday.

Since last year 20½ miles of sewage drains have been made in Memphis.

A BROTHER AVENGES THE LEADING OF HIS SISTER ASTRAY.

James F. Melvin, junior editor of the Denton Journal, on Monday evening of last week made an attack upon the person of R. J. Jump, a practising attorney of Denton.—The particulars of the assault are about as follows: Mr. Jump had stepped into a store in the village to make some purchases. Mr. Melvin followed him into the store, and without parley struck him over the head four or five times, either with an iron bar or a heavy wooden cudgel, inflicting dangerous wounds, which at first it was thought would prove speedily fatal. Mr. Jump was taken to his home in a senseless condition, and the attending physicians pronounced his skull fractured and his life hopeless. Later, however, Mr. Jump's condition improved, and his physicians have hopes of his recovery. The cause of the attack was the discovery of facts that led the brother to the belief that his younger sister had been gradually and cunningly led astray and debauched by the man upon whom he made the attack. After the assault, Melvin surrendered himself into the hands of the sheriff, and was lodged in jail. The following card appeared from him in last Saturday's issue of the Denton Journal:

TO THE PUBLIC.

I stand before you to-day, in the sight of the law, a criminal; but in the sight of high heaven I am innocent of any murderous intentions toward Robert J. Jump, and in my heart I am no murderer. Duty in the sight of God to sisters, mother, father, and to the proud manhood within me tells me this.

On Monday evening last I went up Main street of Denton with the fixed intention of cowhiding the man who had cast a blight upon the good name of a young and innocent girl—merely a child and I being her nearest protector, felt that the duty devolved upon me; and when I saw him on that evening his crime stood before me in such glaring colors that all else was forgotten save that he was a villian who had ruthlessly hurled her from the high pedestal of maidenly purity upon which I had, in my fond imagination, placed her.

Perhaps I am censured for taking into my own hands that which, seemingly, should have been left to the majesty of the law; but when we recall the fact that this man had so ingeniously enveloped himself in gentlemanly demeanor, and so cunningly covered up his wickedness, that when I did know his awful intentions I considered it religiously my duty to vindicate the honor and sanctity of my home. I had full proof that while he was her class leader, her Sunday school superintendent and teacher, he began to educate her to his own base ends. Many tokens of esteem were given her. He also showed his preference for her over other schoolmates by working on her childish sympathy, telling her he was a "lonely man," never having had the deepest recesses of his heart moved by any other woman's voice. He then by degrees became an avowed and impassioned lover; moulding her young mind into a shape to suit himself, but all the while proclaiming to the world the purity of his friendship. His letters date back to 1877, and up as far as May of the present year. In these letters he teaches her how to deceive; tells her what to say to her mother if she should question her; what to say to her pastor; tells her his love is pure, holy and unceasing and sanctioned by heaven. He then cunningly works on her smypathy, telling her he has no happiness except through her alone. And when she fails to answer his letters he pleads most passionately for her to do so; tells her that he never told a woman before that he loved her; that if he could he would gladly leave every one on earth—even his wife—to take her with him. He appointed places of meeting in lonely and unfrequented spots, and enjoined secrecy upon her because "The world cannot understand the purity of our love, dearest." Through all his letters he alludes to "our very bright future." Just what that future is he does not state. He educated her mind to a sickly sentiment which precluded a healthy one; extorted from her a vow to gaze on a certain star at a certain hour; to think of him and whisper to this star any love message which at the appointed time he received. He makes a (*) which he lells her is a kiss, and sometimes this sign occurs in one letter nearly a hundred times; and other silly, lovesick talk that, although I have not yet passed my nineteenth year, I would deem far too sentimental for me to indite.

During the better part of the time while this correspondence was kept up I was absent from home, and when I was here I held him in such high esteem that for any man to have connected his name with reproach I would have almost considered it an insult to myself. It was all carefully guarded and kept a profound secret until by accident the letters were discovered. I here give one as good specimens of the rest:

DENTON, MD., Sept. 19, '79.
Friday Morning.

MY DEAREST FRIEND: * * * The world is so censorious that I desire to avoid offering any opportunity for their evil tongues. But I desire so much to talk with you. I cannot write so clearly. Then, dearest friend, I will be at the crossing of the ravine South of your house at 7½ o'clock this (Friday) evening, and to-morrow (Saturday) evening at 8 o'clock. I will wait until late. I do so much hope to see you. Yet if you prefer to stay away, I will not complain. You know what is best to do.

After that time the moon will shine until you go to your school.

I cannot write in detail of my travels, but will tell you when we meet.

Ever your FRIEND.

Mr. Jump's family has my deepest sympathy. My heart bleeds when I think of the sudden distress brought on them. No one can render them greater respect than I feel for them. To his noble and true wife I would beg to say that although I do not expect her immediate forgiveness, I hope that time will enable her to see that I only did what my honor demanded of me. And what I did, rash and thoughtless though it was, only averted an equally direful calamity.

JAMES F. MELVIN.
Denton Jail, July 21, '80.

James F. Melvin was last year a student at Washington College, and has, in Chestertown and vicinity, numerous friends and acquantainces. At the college he stood as a manly, straighforward and honorable young man. He was much respected both by teachers and students.

It is said that Prof. Baird, Fish Commissioner, will establish a permanent hatching station for Spanish mackerel near Crisfield. Previous experiments have shown that they can be propagated with great success in the Chesapeake Bay.

Two shoemakers of Crisfield had a difficulty and one of them, weighing 125 pounds, challenged the other, who weighs about 300 pounds, to fight a duel. Pistols were the weapon suggested. The challenged party has the matter under consideration and the parties may yet meet upon the field of "honah."

One hundred and forty-four tents are erected on the Camden camp grounds, and had the weather been good there is no doubt that there would have been many more, but the heavy rains have deterred many from tenting. Out of this number, forty have been taken by Dover folks, being over one-fourth of the entire encampment. Dover folks are great for camp meetings.—Delawarean.

A fire has been raging in the cedar swamps of Sussex for several days past, and has already burned over a space of territory seven miles long and three miles wide. It cleans everything before it, even to the green pine and cedar timber, and the turf to at least two feet in depth. About 50,000 cedar rails have been burned, with large numbers of hogs and cattle. All the surrounding country is threatened with destruction. More than a hundred people are fighting against the progress of the flames, but labor under great difficulty, as the atmosphere is so dense with smoke it is almost impossible to see their way. Among those who have lost heavily are Manain Gum, John Mumford, Elisha Long and Elisha Hudson.—Sussex Journal.

A FATAL ACCIDENT—A Boy Instantly Killed in a Mill.—On Thursday last George Callahan, aged about 15 years, and son of G. W. Callahan, who resides upon the land of Mrs. Washington Rhodes, near Queenstown, in this county, went to Miss Sallie Harris' mill with grist. Whilst waiting for it to be ground he went up stairs, and was lost sight of by the miller, who was busily engaged attending to his duties. In the upper part of the mill is a post with a cog-wheel at the upper end, which revolves at the rate of about 120 revolutions to the minute. Close to the post is a boxed-up arrangement for screenings to run through. The boy, apparantly not aware of the dangerous undertaking, attempted to climb this revolving post, and in doing so got his clothing entangled in or wrapped around it. The motion was so rapid that he became giddy and let go for the purpose of sliding down to the floor, but instead of doing this the post whirled him against the box "thrash, thrash," repeatedly, smashing his skull and scattering his brains upon the floor and surrounding objects. The miller, who was below, heard the thumping of the boy as he was being hurled against the box, stopped the mill, and hurried up stairs, but before reaching the boy he was met by some other boys who had witnessed the horrible accident and informed him of it. When he reached the boy he found him prostrate upon the floor a horribly mangled and disfigured corpse. His body was taken up and his parents informed of the unfortunate calamity. The community was horrified at the sickening details, the boy being quite well known and favorably regarded by his neighbors.—Centreville Observer.

A GREAT DAMAGE SUIT.—An immense suit for damages is pending in San Francisco against the Bonanza kings. The stockholders of the Consolidated Virginia and California mines have brought actions against Flood and his associates to recover large sums alleged to have been fraudulently obtained from the mines by them. The allegations are that Flood and his associates, while directors of the Consolidated Virginia and California Mining Companies, contracted with themselves to reduce the ores of the mines, to supply timber, water, &c., and handle the bullion and funds of the mining companies through the Pacific Refinery and the Nevada Bank. The damages are fixed at $35,000,000, which are considered moderate, as the tailings of the two mines alone are estimated to contain, according to Mr. Flood's testimony, 35 per cent. of the bullion yielded by the ores, or, in money value, some $65,000,000. Flood has it is said, testified that he and other directors contracted with the Pacific Mill and Mining Company, the Pacific Wood, Lumber and Flume Company, and the Virginia and Gold Hill Water Company for milling, lumber and water, and that he and his associates were the principal stockholders in the companies named.

GREAT DISTRESS

is often suddenly experienced from an attack of cramp in the stomach, colic or other painful affections for the relief of which nothing is superior to Dr. Pierce's Compounded Extract of Smart-Weed, or Water-Pepper, compounded from the best French brandy, Jamaica ginger, smart-weed, or water-pepper, and anodyne gums. For diarrhœa, dysentery, bloody flux, cholera-morbus, its warming, soothing astringent and heating properties render it a perfect specific, unsurpassed as an anodyne and stimulating embrocation or liniment. Should be kept in every family. Sold by druggists at fifty cents.

The present English Colonial Secretary says "the tenure of Cyprus is most embarrassing."

GRANT, the Republican President under whose administration the people were robbed of hundreds of millions, and who kept and cherished the thieves even after their conviction.

Hayes, the Republican who was not elected President, but who took the office from the hands of forgers and perjurers, and kept it for four years.

Garfield, the Republican President whose personal dishonesty had been believed in and openly declared by the great majority of his own fellow partisans; the convicted bribe taker and perjurer.

What a record that would be for the historian of the United States during the period beginning in 1868 and ending sixteen years later!

Happily; the shameful chapter will end with the end of Hayes.—New York Sun.

THE COLORED CONFERENCE.—The seventeenth session of the Delaware Annual Conference of the African M. E. Church convened at Whatcoat Church, Dover, Del., on Thursday. Sixty-six members were present, and Bishop Bowman presided. Various committees were appointed, and reports received.—Rev. J. E. Webb, presiding elder of the Philadelphia district, reported the condition of his district as good. The character of all the effective elders of the district was passed.—Odessa circuit is raising money for a new church; New Castle is paying her debt; Cape May circuit has completed a tasteful new church; Salem station has paid on the old debt $500; Frankford has remodeled her church; Zion has built a new chapel at a cost of $1,300; Whatcoat, Dover, has paid on her debt $600. The remainder of the churches are doing well. Rev. J. Emory Rowland, president of the Centenary Biblical Institute, Baltimore, Md., made a flattering report concerning the progress of that Institution.

NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC COMMITTEE.—The executive committee of the national democratic committee on Saturday at the rooms of the committee, 138 Fifth avenue, New York Messrs. Barnum, Barnes, Jones and Weed were present. A sub-committee on speakers, consisting of Senator Wm. R. Wallace, Hon. Orestes Cleveland and B. B. Smalley, was appointed. A sub-committee on documents was also appointed. It was composed of Hon. Abram S. Hewitt, Wm. Pinkney Whyte and B. M. Boyer, with Gen. D. S. Waller as secretary. The committee is now in full working order.

Peach Growers
AND SHIPPERS
Of Kent County.

IT HAVING BEEN REPORTED, and some being under the opinion that Fruit shipped to Baltimore would bring more on one wharf than another, allow me to publish below the opinion and experience of the oldest and principal commission men of Baltimore, handed to me by one of the largest houses in the city, by whom it was drawn up, and signers requested, without any knowledge or assistance of mine whatever:

The Experience of Commission Merchants.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

We the undersigned, Baltimore Commission Merchants, do hereby certify that Fruit, if good and in order, will bring as much money on one wharf as on another, lying between Pratt street and Hughes' Key, inclusive.

Packers, Shippers, and Dealers generally, have no preference as to wharves and their locations.

THOS. H. EVANS & CO.,
BARTUS TREW,
D. N. ROBINSON,
W. H. RUTTER,
JESSE WILSON & SON,
L. J. COX & CO.,
JOHN A. STEPHENS & SON,
KENLY & TILGHMAN,

Having some little experience in the Peach Freighting Business, I would suggest to shippers three thoughts:

1st. You pay for the collection of many empty boxes that you nor the Commission Merchant never see, and you have no rebate whatever but to call on your commission man, and he sends you to the captain, and the captain has no redress whatever but to say, "if the boxes were on the wharf they were surely brought over." Now, to abate this custom and loss, demand that the man who freights your fruit receipt to your commission merchant for each and every box, (for I am sure there is not a merchant, to my knowledge, who would not be glad to do it) and you will find money saved and business done more satisfactorily.

2d. Each shipper should go to the city once a week and there see in what condition the market demands for the fruit, for you could gain more knowledge in ten minutes, yourself, than any one could explain to you in twice that length of time.

3d. You seldom get the sales of your peaches until the day after. You know not whether they were dumped into the bay, sold, or given away; and at many times you could put certain fruit on the market (when in demand) that not hearing from the market and not knowing its demand, is allowed to waste in your orchards. To remedy this, give your captain an order on your commission man for the price your fruit brings daily; compel him to place the price opposite your name on his manifest, and report to you at your landing, each morning, on his return; and should you do this you will have the handling of your fruit to give better satisfaction, and justify shipper, freighter and merchant. Very respectfully,

JOS. W. THOMPSON.

And from other points below as will appear in a future advertisement.

It is unnecessary to add that our prices will be as reasonable, and that freight intrusted to us will be handled with as great care as by any responsible line on the river. A good wharf, 110 feet long, with shed over the entire length, has been secured in Baltimore, where fruit will show to the best advantage, and the demand for fruit from this wharf will not be excelled by any other in the city. A reasonable share of public patronage is respectfully solicited.

COAL! COAL!!

COAL IS ADVANCING IN PRICE, and the indications are that it will not be lower, so that it would be well for all consumers to consider the propriety of laying in their next winter's supply at once, or at least give their orders so that I may secure it before the price further advances. During the present month (July), I will deliver it at your house from the boat—all sizes—at $5.25 per ton of 2240 pounds, or by tub measure at $5.10.

WOOD! WOOD!

I have a nice lot of PINE WOOD—price $3.50 per cord. Sawed and split, ready for use, $5.00 per cord.
