THE RESULT IN INDIANA AND OHIO.—The latest telegraphic dispatch received up to the time of going to press, indicates that the Republicans have carried Ohio, and that the result in Indiana was considered to be yet in doubt. Several days will probably elapse before the result of Tuesday's elections, in the above named States, can be definitely known.

THE second Democratic convention of the Second Congressional District met at Havre De Grace, on Wednesday of last week, and nominated for Congress, by acclamation, Hon. J. F. C. Talbott, the present incumbent from that district. This second nomination was made necessary by the resignation of Dr. F. T. Shaw, who was nominated at Westminster.

AMONGST the numerous charges made against the Southern States by the Republican press and Republican politicians, was one to the effect that the Southern States had some how or other cheated in the census returns. Considering that the census in the South was taken for the most part by Republican enumerators, it was rather queer that any such charge should have been made. However the United States Superintendent of the census, ordered the enumeration to be made again, by what were considered more trustworthy enumerators. The second set of enumerators have reported the enumeration as made by the first set, to be correct. The Southern States have grown rapidly in population in the last ten years, whilst some of the New England States have shown scarcely any increase in population. In the next apportionment of Congressional representatives, the South will gain largely, while New England will lose; and there is where the shoe pinches.

BALTIMORE'S Anniversary commenced with a rush on Monday.—Every point of observation was packed with spectators. Baltimore and other principal streets were crowded from early till late. Crowds of visitors began to arrive as early as Saturday. There is no doubt but that the celebration will prove in every way a success. Country people are visiting the city during the anniversary in large numbers. Every steamboat that has left Chestertown since the celebration began, has been well filled with passengers. Baltimore has probably, never before in her history had at one time so many people within her limits.—It is to be hoped that the activity and enterprise displayed in getting up this big celebration, will cling to Baltimore after the celebration is over, and that she will shoot ahead and become, as she ought to be, the first commercial city in the country. As a commercial city she is now second only to New York, and she has commercial facilities equal, if not superior to those of New York.

THE preliminary battle in Ohio and Indiana was fought on Tuesday last. We are not able to obtain exact results before going to press.—In Indiana the Democratic leaders had, however, made a private poll of the State before the election, and we give below the table of estimates. In our next issue we expect to give the vote as really polled, and it will be interesting to compare it with the estimate made by the Democrats before the election.

The following is the estimate of pluralities in each congressional district as made by the Democrats before the election:

Dist.	Dem. Pluralities.	Rep. Pluralities.	Dem. Excess.	Rep Excess
1	2,075	350	1,725	.....
2	4,650	400	4,250	.....
3	4,725	300	4,425	.....
4	3,225	800	2,425	.....
5	3,050	1,420	1,630	.....
6	None	8,250	.....	8,250
7	1,475	1,900	.....	425
8	700	2,025	.....	1,325
9	1,900	2,135	.....	235
10	1,050	1,950	.....	900
11	2,975	2,750	225	.....
12	4,300	2,300	2,000	.....
13	1,200	775	425	.....
Totals	31,325	25,365	17,105	11,135

The total of Democratic pluralities is 31,325, and of Republican pluralities, 25,355, showing an apparent Democratic majority over the Republicans in the State of 5,970.

The Republicans had also made a private estimate of the State, and it is understood that they claimed it by 3,000 majority, though they refused to have their figures made public.

A DREADFUL accident occurred on the Pennsylvania Railroad at Pittsburg, on Saturday night last, about midnight. The engine of one train ran into the hinder passenger car of another, completely splitting it open, and crushing and scalding to death twenty-four people and badly injuring many others. The accident is said to have been the fault of the flagman, who failed to properly signal the hindmost train. After the accident the scene was heartrending. The air was filled with the moans of the dying and wounded, and with the cries of those who had lost friends.

TWELVE months ago, when General Grant's name began to be used prominently in connection with a third term for the presidency, many of his admirers maintained that Grant would not under any circumstances allow his name to go before a nominating convention. They said that he was too patriotic, too ardent a lover of our Republican form of government, to seek to break an established custom by grasping after a third term of the presidency. But Grant belied their predictions. Under the leadership of Conkling and Cameron, he fought desperately against the popular will of his party for a third term nomination. He failed. His failure brought upon him the contempt of many people who had respected him before. Since the Chicago Convention, General Grant has for the most part kept his mouth shut. But it seems that the prospective elevation of a brother officer to the position which he sought for a third time, has so inflamed his jealous nature that he could keep his mouth shut no longer. He has talked with Rev. Dr. Fowler, and his talk shows him to be possessed of a weak and contemptible vanity, and of a belittling jealousy of Gen. Hancock's reputation. The following is an extract from his talk as reported by Fowler:

"Down to 1864 he seemed like a man ambitious to do his duty as an officer; but in 1864, when McClellan was nominated, Hancock received one vote, and that greatly excited and changed him. He was so delighted that he smiled all over. It crazed him. Before that we got on well; after that he would hardly speak to me. I was working to enforce the laws of Congress and he was working for the presidency.—Perhaps he thought I did not praise him enough; but anyway he hardly spoke to me. It was on my nomination that he was made a brigadier-general in the regular army. When I was made general Stanton told me it was a compliment to me, and that I could name the men to fill the vacancies in the lieutenant-generalship and major-generalship caused by my promotion. I nominated him for the vacant major-generalship in the regular army. He acknowledged it manfully. He was a very fair corps commander, but was never thought of for any great place. When the Army of the Potomac was hunting for a commander it took almost everybody—even came over into the West for officers, but nobody ever even suggested Hancock for the place. After he received that vote, in 1864, he had 'the bee' in his bonnet, and shaped everything to gain Democratic and Southern favor. He has watched and planned and waited till at last he has received the Democratic nomination."

"General, do you think he is in sympathy with the South?"

"He is crazy to be President. He is ambitious, vain and weak. They will easily control him."

This is only a part of Grant's conversation with Fowler, regarding Hancock, but it is a fair sample of the whole. He has since been interviewed by a newspaper reporter, and though he makes some corrections in Dr. Fowler's statement, he acknowledges it to be substantially correct. Such an expression of opinion, falsified as it is by General Hancock's reputation and record, would be looked upon as contemptible if it had come from Conkling, Blaine, or any of the campaign orators. But it would not have been so belittling to any other man as it is to General Grant. Taking into consideration that Grant and Hancock were officers in the army together, that they both fought as generals through the civil war, and that General Grant has twice filled, and was a third time an aspirant to the position for which General Hancock is in nomination, it stamps General Grant's expression of opinion as springing from a spiteful and malicious jealousy. It tells as plain as words can tell, that he hates to see the man whose career has been somewhat a parallel of his, elevated to as high a position as he has ever filled, while he must remain content to be naught but a private citizen. What brazen impudence it is in General Grant, to talk about Hancock's having 'the bee' in his bonnet, and having been crazy to be President. He seems to ignore the fact that he himself was so crazy, and so drunken with ambition, that he strove, in violation of a precedent set by Washington and observed by every president since, to elevate himself a third time to the presidential chair. He says that Hancock is ambitious, vain, and weak. What then is General Grant?

KICKED TO DEATH.—Last Thursday, Mr. John T. Chance, residing near Willoughby's Shops, in this county, was engaged in assisting Mr. Wm. H. Harrison, a neighbor, to seed his wheat crop. Mr. Chance had with him a mare which it was known would kick, especially if passed in the stable without warning. When the day's work was over the horses were stabled, Mr. Chance supposing his mare to occupy the last stall in the stable, but by an oversight she was placed in a stall much closer the door. About nine o'clock, Mr. Chance went into the stable to get his mare, and in passing what he took to be one of Mr. Harrison's horses, slapped the animal on the rump. Unfortunately for him the animal proved to be his own mare, and immediately returned his slap with both feet heavily planted in his stomach. The blow was fatal. He was taken to the house where every attention was given him, and medical aid summoned, but he died about nine o'clock the next morning.—Centreville Observer.

MR BLAINE told a questioner at Warsaw, Ill., that he found it difficult to believe Grant had really used the language about Hancock which the Rev. Dr. Fowler puts in his mouth; Hancock's military record was "beyond criticism," and it would be great folly in Grant to "scrape up personal ill-feeling." Being asked whether Grant was jealous of Hancock, Mr Blaine replied that he might be, but, if so, it was an unreasonable jealousy; Grant had had all the honors the people could give him, and he should now be satisfied. Blaine commended Hancock's good sense in taking the matter so coolly, and expressed the opinion that nothing more serious would come of it than the interchange of a few complimentary letters.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION.

JOHN E. MULFORD AND FIRMAN I. MULFORD, vs.
WILLIAM I. MULFORD, EDW'D. B. HANCE, CHARLES C. FORTINER AND REBECCA A. FORTINER HIS WIFE, LESLEY CHESTER AND MILLICENT CHESTER HIS WIFE, LOUIS PARKER, JUNIOR, AND LYDIA A PARKER HIS WIFE, EWING MULFORD AND WILLIAM B. HANCE.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR KENT COUNTY, STATE OF MARYLAND. IN EQUITY.

The object of this suit is to procure a sale for distribution, of certain Real Estate lying near Georgetown, in the First Election District of Kent county, State of Maryland, called "Mount Airy," and containing about one hundred and thirty-two acres.

The bill states that the complainants and their brother William I. Mulford, one of the defendants, are seized as tenants in common with the defendants Edward B. Hance, Rebecca A. Fortiner, Millicent Chester, Lydia A. Parker, Ewing Mulford and William B. Hance; that Rebecca is the wife of Charles C. Fortiner, Millicent the wife of Lesley Chester, and Lydia is the wife of Louis Parker, junior; and that five-eighths of the aforesaid real estate belong to the complainants and their said brother, under the Will of a certain Isaac W. Hance, late of Kent county aforesaid, deceased, and the remaining three-eighths to the aforesaid defendants, Edward B. Hance, Rebecca A. Fortiner, Millicent Chester, Lydia A. Parker, Ewing Mulford and William B. Hance, by descent from James B. Hance, also late of said county, deceased; and that the said real estate cannot be divided without loss and injury to the persons therein interested, and that it will be for the mutual benefit and advantage of all to sell the same and distribute the proceeds among the parties entitled according to their respective rights: but because of the infancy of the said William I. Mulford, who is under twenty-one years of age, and residing in the city of Philadelphia, in the State of Pennsylvania, a sale of the said real estate cannot be had, without the aid of the aforesaid Court as a Court of Equity: and that all of the defendants reside out of the State of Maryland. It is thereupon adjudged and ordered that the complainants, by causing a copy of this Order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Kent county, State of Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the seventeenth day of November next, give notice to the absent defendants, Edward B. Hance, Charles C. Fortiner and Rebecca A. Fortiner his wife, Lesley Chester and Millicent Chester his wife, Louis Parker, junior, and Lydia A. Parker his wife, Ewing Mulford and William B. Hance, of the object and substance of this bill, and warn them to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the eighteenth day of February next, to answer the premises and show cause if any they have, why a decree ought not to pass as prayed.
