SULLIVAN & WOODALL,

Editors and Proprietors.

NEXT Thursday, the 25th inst., has been set aside by the President of the United States and by the Governor of the State of Maryland, as a day for thanksgiving for all the blessings we enjoy as a people.

HANLAN, the famous Canadian oarsman, who already held the championship of England and America, met Trickett, of Australia, on the Thames near London, last Monday, and won an easy victory.—Hanlan is now the champion oarsman of the world.

JUDGE DAVIS has decided the Chinese letter imputed to General Garfield, to be a forgery. He says that it is satisfactorily proven that no such person as H. L. Morley ever existed. It is left to a jury to decide whether or not Kenward Philp, of the Truth newspaper is the forger.

IT is generally believed that Garfield intends to keep John Sherman at the head of the treasury department. But Sherman himself is afraid to trust to this probability. He has written a private letter, which has been made public, in which he intimates that he will be an applicant for the United States Senatorship from Ohio, made vacant by Garfield's election to the Presidency.

NOW that the election is over, the great question among expectant members of the Republican party, is as to how favors are going to be handed around. The Ins want to stay in, the Outs want to get in.—The question is whether Garfield will or will not to any great extent bounce Hayes' appointees. This question reaches clear from cabinet ministers down to village postmasters, and its final decision will no doubt cause considerable bitterness in camp.

THERE is a rumor that has somehow got afloat, that there is considerable opposition in parts of Delaware to Mr. Bayard's return to the United States Senate. It is also rumored, that in the coming session of the Delaware Legislature, which elects a Senator for a new term, efforts will be made in opposition to Mr. Bayard's return.

Little Delaware, being as she is, the smallest State in the Union in population, ought to feel immensely proud that she is yet able to bring forth one of the greatest statesmen of the nation. And one, moreover, whose fame has stood without a blemish. It would be a shame to Delaware to turn such a man down. But there is no doubt about the popular fealty of Delaware to Mr. Bayard. If the coming legislature should in any manner be influenced to turn him down, it will not be in accordance with the will of the people.

WHAT is to become of Grant in the next four years? It is pretty generally believed that an arrangement has been privately made for bringing him forward in 1884 in another effort to capture a third term of the presidency. But he will somehow or other have to be provided for in the intervening four years.—His travels, it is said, have consumed all of his surplus, and he is now at least bordering on the state of being hard up. Grant has been used to expensive living in the last twelve years, and it would be a difficult matter for him to bring himself down to the level of plain people. There is no doubt therefore that some sort of provision will be made for him. The New York Times, one of the leading Republican organs, proposes that a "presidential pension fund" be created for him. As the next administration will be strongly Republican, such a pension can be easily voted. Among other methods mentioned for the taking care of Grant is to make him secretary of the interior, secretary of war, or to appoint him minister to England. Garfield owes him much for speeches made in the last campaign, and will probably be pleased to bestow upon him an office in his appointment.

WHILE the famous "Chinese letter" is now believed by nearly all fair-minded people, irrespective of party, to have been a forgery, yet there is nothing in the evidence brought to bear in the investigation of the authorship of that letter, to show that any of the party leaders had a part in the forgery, or any knowledge that should lead them to believe it to be a forgery. The letter was so much in keeping with Garfield's Chinese speeches in Congress, and was so close an imitation of his hand writing, that most people at first believed it to be genuine.—Even Marshall Jewell, the Chairman of the Republican National Committee, so strongly believed the letter to be genuine, that he wrote a letter offering to withdraw the prosecution against Philp and the Truth newspaper, if the Truth would state that it was mistaken about the letter—that it now believed it to be a forgery. And Jewell moreover promised that if the Truth would pursue this course, the lawyer who represented Truth should be given the district attorneyship for the city of New York. He wrote a letter to Garfield saying "It will be a great service to us, General,"—meaning by "It" the acknowledgement by Truth that it was mistaken as to genuineness of the Chinese letter.—The two witnesses who swore to a knowledge of H. L. Morey, and who afterward confessed to having perjured themselves, do not implicate any persons of reputable standing in the Democratic party. Their confessions taken in connection with the testimony of other witnesses of good character, go to show that those connected with the defense were not aware that the testimony was false.

IT is always a question with Maryland farmers in marketing their crops, whether it will pay them best to hurry their grain to market in advance of the body of the Western crop, in order to get the benefit of the first prices for new grain, or to hold over in the hope that later on there will be a brisker demand for grain that shall give them more remunerative prices. This is a question always difficult to decide. To ascertain whether or not the price of grain is likely to advance or decline six months after the crops are harvested, it would be necessary to ascertain definitely the extent of the foreign yield comparative with the yield of former years, and the extent of the American yield comparative with the yield of former years. In addition to this it would be necessary to know something definite of the amount of unconsumed grain that remains over from the harvests of other years. If accurate information could be had with reference to each of these questions, farmers could better determine whether it would pay them best to hold their grain, or to sell as soon as they could get it to market. But accurate information with regard to these questions cannot be had.—When we take into consideration how estimates vary every season as to the extent of the peach crop of the Maryland and Delaware Peninsula, and how unreliable these estimates generally are, we can easily understand the difficulty of estimating the grain crop of the whole world. Even after crops have been harvested, accounts differ as to whether the yield has been abundant or sparce. Then again grain speculators in various parts of the world, often make it a part of their trade to put out what they know to be false estimates and to start wilfully false reports, in order that the market may be transiently excited or depressed as they may desire.

Russia is the great rival of the United States in giving bread to Europe. The report comes that the cereal crop has been almost an entire failure in Russia. The crops it is claimed are not near equal to supplying home necessities. The prices of all kinds of grain have nearly doubled in that country. All over Europe the wheat crop is said to have been short. If these reports be true, it would seem to indicate that the demand for American grain must be brisk, and that prices must continue to advance. But as we have said before, it is a difficult matter to obtain reliable information as to the real results of the harvests abroad. A partial shortness of the crops, is often magnified into a sweeping failure. The crops raised in the United States, when aggregated, are so immense, that the failure in Europe would have to be very wide-spread to produce anything like an exhaustive demand. The demand may, however, be brisk enough to cause considerable advance in prices. But the possibilities and uncertainties connected with the grain market are so numerous, that we believe that the best informed man upon the subject can not more than guess at prices six months from now.

A WYOMING lady thus describes her first appearance as an elector: "As I went up the stone steps of the court house to cast my vote I began to realize the convenience of a strong arm to lean on, as I found myself growing weak and nervous, like one on the way to the gallows to be hung for murder, but I met crowds of ladies who had just voted, laughing and chatting along, and when I remembered the heroism and bravery of my noble forefathers I was quite overwhelmed with shame at my own timidity, and holding up my head like a man, felt quite reassured by the time I reached the ballot-box, and was about to cast my vote with as much sang froid as a newly naturalized citizen, when a little, sharp-nosed man, with sore eyes and a very red nose, red hair and a squeaky voice, challenged my vote on the plea that I had not been a resident long enough.—But some male friends standing near came to my rescue and saw my ticket at last disappear within the mysterious ballot-box, and I turned away, glad to escape the scrutiny of a dozen pairs of iron-bound spectacles which were levelled at me from behind a big table, and went home weaker and wiser than I went.

"NOW WELL AND STRONG."

SHIPMAN, Illinois.

Dr. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.:

Dear Sir—I wish to state that my daughter, aged 18, was pronounced incurable and was fast failing, as the doctors thought, with consumption I obtained a half dozen bottles of your discovery for her and she commenced at once to improve, and is now well and strong. She took the Discovery last fall.

Very truly yours,

Rev. ISAAC N. AUGUSTIN.

THE ex-Khedive of Egypt has been abandoned by all the inmates of his harem, with the exception of two coal-black girls of Nubian origin. His funds having been curtailed, he found it impossible to retain his hold upon the fairer complexioned ladies.

The Dover Delawaren was reminded of circus day by the crowd that turned out to see a negro whipped recently. Delawareans seem to take a genuine pride in their post.

A part of Dorchester county shortly will be annexed to Caroline county. The residents of the section have decided upon the change, the vote standing 62 for and 10 against.

A Georgetown, Sussex county, Del., man, won eleven barrels of oysters on the result of the election in New York, and five barrels on the result in Pennsylvania. When they bet oysters in Delaware, they bet oysters.

An old Middletown darkey gave as his reason for voting for the Republican candidate for sheriff, that they told him that the Republican if elected would not whip "us niggers if we stole anything and got took up in New Castle."

Red drum fish are caught quite freely on the Delaware Bay with hook and line. The largest of them weigh from 80 to 100 lbs. The meat is very coarse and is often sold in steak or cutlets, and tastes very much like tender veal.

Mr. Smith Milner, of Locustmount has recently captured one of the largest sharks ever seen in the locality of Onancock, Va. It took seven men to remove him from the boat, and a man weighing 180 lbs. could easily crawl into his mouth.

Gov. Hamilton has issued his warrant to the Sheriff of Somerset county for the execution on Jan. 14, 1881, in that county, of William Melbourne (colored), convicted of the murder of William Powhatan, alias William Johnson, on the 20th of July last.

A tramp pretending to be a drover, went to Newtown, had a car brought down, hired a citizen to drive him around the country, bored the farmers, offered them half price for their cattle, borrowed an overcoat and left without buying any cattle, or paying any bills.

It is reported that the crew of a schooner at Bombay Hook, dug up the skeleton of a man dressed with hat, pantaloons and boots. It was found three feet under sand near where the old hotel used to stand. The remains were re-buried near where they were found. The case is one for investigation.

Mrs. Martha Strickland, of Elkton, in driving from the country to her home in Elkton on Wednesday of last week, was thrown from her carriage, her breast and shoulders striking the ground in such a manner as to paralyze the spinal cords. Mrs. Strickland was living last Friday evening, but there were no hopes of her recovery.

"Mum" sociables are being inaugurated in Sussex county, Del. A "mum" sociable in somewhat as follows: A company of bewitching fair ones assemble in a room. Every masculine who enters is charged ten cents admission, and then is taxed five cents for every time he talks. The fair ones use their most bewitching wiles to draw conversation and nickels out of the male visitors.

The following gentlemen have been elected directors of the Cambridge National Bank, just organized: Wm. H. Barton, Jr., Joseph H. Johnson, Wm. H. Radcliffe, T. W. Anderson, Levi D. Travers, E. W. LeCompte, John E. Hurst. Mr. Barton was elected president. Some of the principal stockholders are, Wm. H. Barton, Jr., $14,000; Wm. Radcliffe, $9,000; J. H. Johnson, $5,000; E. W. LeCompte, $1,000; Thos. W. Anderson, $1,000; R. B. Dixon, $1,000; Enoch Pratt, $1,000; John E. Hurst, $1,000; Levi D. Travers; $1,000; Thos. A. Willis, $1,000; E. C. Johnson, $1,000. The capital stock is $50,000.

The North East Record says: The ducking season is now at its height and many sportsmen are from the city, who return on each ducking day well laden with game. Our own duckers have lost no time in securing their share of the sport. The Susquehanna flats abound with a goodly number of red and black heads, though canvas-backs are scarce. Canvas-backs now command $1.10 per pair; red heads, 45 cents; black heads 25 cents. There have been one hundred and forty-seven licenses for duck shooting issued in Harford and Cecil counties—eighty in Harford and sixty-seven in Cecil.

MR. VANDERBILT TALKS ABOUT MAUD S.

From the Spirit of the Times.

Reporter—How fast do you think Maud S. will ultimately trot?

Mr. Vanderbilt—I believe she will trot in 2:06. It is only a question of when she can carry her speed for the full distance, and, if nothing goes wrong with her, I expect her to be able to trot next year in 2:08.

Reporter—She is in the same hands for this winter?

Mr. Vanderbilt—Yes. It was intended that she should be shipped to New York, but she had a slight touch of the epizooty at the time.—Capt. Stone came to see me, and I concluded to leave her where she is. Next season she will be exhibited, and, after she has lowered the record as far as she can, I shall take her for my own use.

Reporter—Would you allow her to be matched against St. Julian?

Mr. Vanderbilt—Maud S. will not, under ordinary circumstances, be matched against St. Julian or any other horse, while she belongs to me. It will always give me pleasure to show her to the public, when, in my judgement, there is good reason for so doing, and before she is withdrawn from the track. I think there will be no difference of opinion as to her speed as compared with any present rival. Of course, this opinion is based entirely upon what I hear from Capt. Stone, Mr. Bair, and those who have seen her performances. She has made but six exhibitions of speed, and it can be truly said each time eclipsing the previous performance. Capt Stone informs me that she has never been driven her best at the finish of any mile, and I have not conversed with any persons, who have seen her trot in these exhibitions, that do not confirm this statement.

BALTIMORE ABRORD.

Speaking of Baltimore and its recent one hundred and fiftieth anniversary celebration, the London Standard says, editorially:

"Baltimore has just ended a week of flag-flying, parade, procession, eating, drinking, talking and dancing in honor of her foundation, one hundred and fifty years ago. The 'celebration' epidemic has broken out with extreme virulence in the United States. A month ago Boston was ringing her bells in memory of John Winthrop, and New York has ever since been chagrined that she allowed the anniversary of Peter Minuit's purcqase of Manhattan Island for sixty guelders and a keg of schnapps to slip past without a banquest twice as costly and a procession twice as long as that of the Massachusetts metropolis. In a couple of years the second centenary of the landing of William Penn will put the Philadelphians on their metal, and if the mania is to spread to the West the prospect of every mush-room 'city' from Chicago to San Francisco, and from Los Angelos to Olympia, keeping holiday in honor of its advent into the civic world, become alarming to contemplate. There is, however, even in the republican breast, something captivating in the memory of the past, and to speak of a log village which fifty years before was the site of an Indian wigwam, as 'our good old town,' has for the citizen of Wisconsin or Ohio a peculiarly soothing influence. But in America there are cities and cities. The towns which were in a comfortable way of life before the revolt from England look down with a patronizing dignity on the parvenu cities of a post-colonial date. They have a history.

"The visitor who knew 'the Monumental City' in the period of slavery would scarcely recognize it now.—'The war' was its salvation. Prior to 1860 it was prosperous, after the sleepy prosperity of the South. Its wharves were never without ships; its lovely park was always full of carriages, driven by black-liveried coachmen; and its iron, copper, coal, grain, tobacco and cotton were esteemed all over the world. But after that fatal day at Appomattox Court House the 'solid South' woke up as from a dream. Thousands of families were ruined, but what the individual lost the country gained. Mines were opened out; railways were built and projected; new industries were established; and trade, which, 'before the surrender,' had languished, suddenly revived, increased and assumed fresh developments in the new epoch dawning. Baltimore has shared in this renaissance. Her railway system is one of the most perfect in America, her elevators run rivalry with those of St. Louis and Chicago, her public buildings, schools, colleges and universities are equal to any in the Republic, and her streets of oyster and fruit preserving factories make her name revered in many an inland town in Europe and Asia. The 'Monumental City' was, in that American era known as 'before the war,' one of the most charming, and in spite of Miss Elizabeth Patterson's maledictions, not the least polished of Southern towns. No stranger left it without pleasing memories. He was not bored with questions as to his opinions of 'our country,' but was simply taken to the Maryland, Allston or Baltimore Clubs and begged to dine. Then, having eaten wisely and well, the traveler marked Baltimore with a white stone in his Gazetteer. In 'old timey days' it was the metropolis of good living; it is so still. But it is something more; for Baltimore is fast becoming the Liverpool of America, and a generation is arising to whom the busy present is more absorbing than the memory of the past."

THE OFFICIAL VOTE IN MARYLAND.

Following is the official vote of Maryland for the presidential electors at the late election, the highest two—P. H. Walker, Democrat, and J. E. Hooper, Republican, being taken. The official count for Congressmen has not yet been made out:

The importance of clerks properly attending to their duties in making out election returns is shown in this State in the late official votes sent to the Governor. Errors enough were made, if the State had been close, to lose the Democrats two presidential electors—Messrs. Wm. H. Welsh and Levin L. Waters. In Charles county Mr. Waters loses 1,684 votes because his name was made out in the returns as Levin T. Waters, and in Garrett 1,124 votes because it was written Levin J.—Mr. Welch loses 2,058 votes because his name was written Wm. H. Welch in the Wicomico returns.

SPENCE tried to kiss Mrs. Waller in a street of Kingston, N. C., and was fined $50. Bach succeeded in a similar onslaught on Miss Barton, at Harrodsburg, Ky., and paid $100.

THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

A STRONG DEMOCRATIC MINORITY AGAINST A WEAK REPUBLICAN MAJORITY.

New York Sun's Washington Letter.

The Republicans will control the next House of Representatives by a majority of from six to ten members. The minority will be large enough to exercise a powerful influence upon legislation. It can oftentimes compel the majority to accede to its wishes in the consideration of public measures. The Republicans are at a great disadvantage so far as the personnel of the next House is concerned. The brains, experience, and ability are with the minority. The Democrats have suffered during the last two Congsesses from lack of leadership. Mr. Randall, the recognized leader of the Democracy in the House, has occupied the Speaker's chair. Mr. Cox, who has upon many occasions proved himself of inestimable service to his party upon the floor, has never been regarded as a leader. Fernando Wood, as Chairman of the Committee of Ways and Means, would naturally be considered the spokesman of his party. The feud existing between Mr. Morrison and himself weakened Mr. Wood's influence with his associates and made it impossible for him to secure the undivided support of his party. For the same reason Mr. Morrison's strength on the floor was undermined, and he assumed no greater share of responsibility for legislation at the last session than the rawest Congressional recruit in the body. Mr. Atkins's temper rendered him unfit for the Democratic leadership, although his management of the appropriation bills is worthy of highest praise. As there will be no struggle for the Speakership of the next House to stir the ambitions and arouse the ire of the Democratic leaders, the brethren may be expected to work together in greater harmony than ever before. Mr. Randall will be recognized as the Democratic leader. He will be ably assisted by ex-Gov. A. G. Curtin and Morgan L. Wise of Pennsylvania, Messrs. Hewitt, Wood, Cox, Bliss and Hutchins of New York; Carlisle, Blackburn and Knott of Kentuckey; Herbert of Alabama, Phelps of Connecticut, Blount of Georgia, Springer, Sparks and Morrison of Illinois; Holman and Cobb of Indiana, Gibson of Louisiana, McLane of Maryland, Buckner and Allen of Missouri, Geddes of Ohio, Whitthorne and Atkins of Tennessee, Reagan of Texas, Tucker of Virginia, and Bragg of Wisconsin. The gentlemen above named have, with few exceptions, had long experience in the House. They are not alone familiar with legislative methods, but possess a range of information on political and economic questions which few public men of the present day can equal. For attention to details in Congress, Messrs. Holman, Blount, Whitthorne, Atkins and Bragg have each won a reputation. Messrs. Carlisle, Knott, McLane and Tucker are able constitutional lawyers, Cox, Hewitt, Springer, Randall, Tucker, Carlesle, Herbert, McLane, Blackburn and Curtin are ready debaters. Messrs. Bliss, Singleton, Tucker, Blackburn and Phelps are personally popular, and exercise a great deal of influence in private.

Garfield has been the Republican leader in the House since Blaine went into the Senate. Messrs. Frye and Conger divided the honors with Garfield at times when subjects of minor importance were pending before the House. There are only nine men in the Republican majority of the next House who can lay any claims to prominence whatever. They are Kasson of Iowa, Cannon of Illinois, Frye of Maine, Robeson of New Jersey, Robinson of Massachusetts, Conger of Michigan, Hiscock of New York, and Kelley of Pennsylvania, Calkins of Indiana and Reed of Maine, who are re-elected, won some notority in the last session by virtue of their enormous lung power and facility for talking upon every possible occasion. Mr. Keifer of Ohio is also an exuberant specimen. Frye of Maine and Hiscock of New York are candidates for election to the Senate by the Legislatures of their respective States. The majority in the House will be correspondingly weakened if they are successful.

There will probably be a struggle between Mr. Conger, Mr. Kelley and Mr. Kasson for the Speakership, and one of them will be lifted to a position where he cannot aid the party by his counsels upon the floor. The committees of the House will be exceptionally weak. Mr. Kelley, if not elected Speaker, is entitled by every consideration, except the unimportant one of capacity, to be Chairman of Ways and Means.—Conger, Frye and Dunnell are at present members of the committee, but it is doubtful whether either of the two gentlemen first named will serve there in the next Congress.—Raw material must be brought into service.

The Appropriations Committee will be composed of weak timber.—Mr. Cannon and Mr. Hiscock are the only two Republicans elected to the next House who understand the needs of the departments, and can intelligently revise the estimates of the Cabinet officers. Mr. Cannon's services to his party will be second to those of no other Republican in the House. He will probably be made Chairman of the Appropriations Committee. Mr. Hiscock is an intelligent and active member, thoroughly versed in the transaction of legislative business, a good lawyer, and an impressive if not eloquent debater. He will be one of the leading members of either the Ways and Means or Appropriations Committee. Mr. Kiefer will probably be made Chairman of the Elections Committe. He now stands first in the list of its Republican members. Keifer is a bitter partisan, and he may be trusted to look after the interests of the Republicans in the matter of contested seats.

It will be utterly impossible for the Republicans to make a strong Judiciary Committee. Mr. Robinson of Massachusetts stands first in the order of promotion, and is entitled to the Chairmanship. He is a mediocre lawyer and a poor debater. Such persons as Reed of Maine, McKinley of Ohio, Williams of Wisconsin, and Willets of Michigan must be trusted to oppose Knott, Tucker, House, Herbert, McLane and Carlisle upon the floor of the House in legal argument. Harris will probably be made Chairman of the Committee on Naval Affairs. He is heartily in sympathy with the plans of a Ring of contractors here who desire to see millions of dollars expended upon the worthless hulks already in commission, or upon new vessels which will be of no use when completed. The committee must be made up of men entirely ignorant of the status of the navy and its needs.

If Levi P. Morton is not elected Senator or does not enter the Cabinet, the Chairmanship of the Committee of Foreign Affairs would be suited to his tastes and an appropriate position for him to fill. There is considerable dignity attached to the place. The Chairman of Foreign Affairs is expected to be on hand at diplomatic dinners, and he ought to give a few swell entertainments during the season. The labor of the Chairman is not excessive.

In the defeat of Simeon B. Chittenden the Republicans have lost a financial Trojan. The Chairmanship of the Committee on Banking and Currency would have dropped into Mr. Chittenden's lap as appropriately as a full ripe cherry drops into the mouth of a pretty girl. Mr. Crapo of Massachusetts should be made Chairman. It is impossible to predict who his associates will be. The Republican financiers elected to the next House are few and scattering.

A perusal of the list of members-elect will convince any one who knows a majority of the men that the majority in the House will be unusually weak. The Democrats have gone to the rear, but the chances are in favor of the tail wagging the dog.

BISHOP WHIPPLE of Minnesota, lecturing in Boston the other day, said he had never found an instance in which the plighted word of an Indian had been broken, but that the Indian term for white men was synonymous with "liar." And we cannot deny that the Indians show their regard for truth in applying the term to the whites as they are represented by their Government in its dealings with them. In the words of Bishop Whipple, "All that could be done by the instigation of the devil, or by the faithlessness of the Government, seems to have been done by the whites against the Indians."

THE grapes of Italy are now exported in extraordinary quantities into Russia, Germany, and France, where they are manufactured into better wine than is at present in Italy.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION.

JOHN E. MULFORD AND FIRMAN I. MULFORD,

vs.

WILLIAM I. MULFORD, EDW'D. B. HANCE, CHARLES C. FORTINER AND REBECCA A. FORTINER HIS WIFE, LESLEY CHESTER AND MILLICENT CHESTER HIS WIFE, LOUIS PARKER, JUNIOR, AND LYDIA A PARKER HIS WIFE, EWING MULFORD AND WILLIAM B. HANCE.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT FOR KENT COUNTY, STATE OF MARYLAND. IN EQUITY.

The object of this suit is to procure a sale for distribution, of certain Real Estate lying near Georgetown, in the First Election District of Kent county, State of Maryland, called "Mount Airy," and containing about one hundred and thirty-two acres.

The bill states that the complainants and their brother William I. Mulford, one of the defendants, are seized as tenants in common with the defendants Edward B. Hance, Rebecca A. Fortiner, Millicent Chester, Lydia A. Parker, Ewing Mulford and William B. Hance: that Rebecca is the wife of Charles C. Fortiner, Millicent the wife of Lesley Chester, and Lydia is the wife of Louis Parker, junior: and that five-eights of the aforesaid real estate belong to the complainants and their said brother, under the Will of a certain Isacc W. Hance, late of Kent county aforesaid, deceased, and the remaining three-eights to the aforesaid defendants, Edward B. Hance, Rebecca A. Fortiner, Millicent Chester, Lydia A. Parker, Ewing Mulford and William B. Hance, by descent from James B. Hance, also late of said county, deceased: and that the said real estate cannot be divided without loss and injury to the persons therein interested, and that it will be for the mutual benefit and advantage of all to sell the same and distribute the proceeds among the parties entitled according to their respective rights: but because of the infancy of the said William I. Mulford, who is under twenty-one years of age, and residing in the city of Philadelphia, in the State of Pennsylvania, a sale of the said real estate cannot be had, without the aid of the aforesaid Court as a Court of Equity: and that all of the defendants reside out of the State of Maryland. It is thereupon adjudged and ordered that the complainants, by causing a copy of this Order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Kent county, State of Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the seventeenth day of November next, give notice to the absent defendants, Edward B. Hance, Charles C. Fortiner and Rebecca A. Fortiner his wife, Lesley Chester and Millicent Chester his wife; Louis Parker, junior, and Lydia A. Parker his wife, Ewing Mulford and William B. Hance, of the object and substance of this bill, and warn them to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the eighteenth day of February next, to answer the premises and show cause if any they have, why a decree ought not to pass as prayed.
