Farm and Household.

Cows and cattle at pasture need more salt than on dry hay.

Never water a horse directly after feeding, especially if he is fed on corn.

If any one desires a plant which will bloom through the winter, with no cessation, nothing will give greater satisfaction than a double pink petunia.

A half gill of soft soap and water one part of soap to twelve of water, poured at the roots of cabbags plants is recommended as a sure death to white grubs.

Salt, it is said, will prevent club root in cabbages. Throw a tablespoonful of fine salt around the root after planting—this will also destroy the cut worm.

Three years trial proves that two spoonsful of saltpetre disolved in a pail of water will save winter squashes from the borer. Apply once a week.

Avoid if possible an exclusive diet of whole corn for poultry. It may put on fat, but it is not good for eggs. Let corn be fed as only one among other grains.

As it takes no more hoeing or weeding to raise first-class varieties of garden vegetables than it does to raise inferior or indifferent ones, every one can see the propriety of choosing the best.

Tomato vines should always have some kind of support. The fruit will grow larger, ripen sooner and more easily, and will be better flavored than if the vines are allowed to lie on the ground.

Bonedust is highly appreciated by the English as a fertilizer. They import large quantities of bones from Australia, and whatever substance contains phosophate is earnestly sought for enriching the soil.

As a rule the size of the seed will indicate the depth to plant it, starting with smallest at one-half of an inch, such as celery, parsnips, etc., while peas and beans may be put one and a half inches in depth.

The application of sulphur sprinkled upon fowls, while roosting or otherwise, with a pepper box, will destroy vermin. Coal oil applied to their roots in small quantities will also kill parasites. Two or three drops of whale oil, dropped occasionally on the back of a hen, or any other bird will kill lice.

Dry salt sprinkled upon the pantry shelves will drive away red ants.

Scotch snuff, put on holes where crickets come out will destry them.

Old potatoes may be freshened up by plunging them into cold water before cooking them.

In making a crust of any kind, do not melt the lard in the flour. Melting will injure the crust.

Paint splashes upon window glass can be easily removed by a strong solution of water.

Whenever yov see your sauce boil from the side of the pan, you may know that your flour or corn-starch is done.

In boiling dumplings of any kind put them into the water one at a time. If they are put in together they will mix each other.

Never wash raisins that are to be used in sweet dishes. It will make the pudding heavy. To clean them wipe with a dry towel.

Cutlets and steaks may be fried as well as broiled, but they must be put in hot butter or lard. The grease is hot enough when it throws off a blackish smoke.

There is a greenness in onions and potatoes that renders them hard to digest. For health's sake put them in warm water for an hour before cooking.

To all lovers of onions the scent is so offensive as to cause them to forego them entirely· I wish all such would try eating them and then chewing a few grains of coffee afterward. It acts as a perfect deodorizer.

French mode of purifying rancid and tainted butter: Let the butter be melted and skimmed as for clarifying, then put it into a piece of bread well toasted all over, but not burned. In a minute or two the butter will lose its offensive taste and smell, but the bread will become perfectly fetid.

Boiled Fowls.—Flour a white cloth and put the fowls in cold water; let them simmer three-quarters of an hour, serve with parsley and butter, or oyster or celery sauce. The fowls may be covered with a white sauce if sent to the table cold, garnished with colored calfsfoot jelly of the hue of beet-root.

I wish to tell your readers of the relief I found in applying salt around the roots of an ulcerated tooth. It had been broken by an incompetent dentist who then killed the nerve; still the ulcer was troublesome, but for months I kept it easy by using salt. I would advise none to hesitate about having such a useless tooth extracted; it is merely putting off the evil day, but one feels at times that they would give "half of their kingdom" for a little relief.

Family Soup.—Put two pounds of beef into a kettle with two quarts and a half of cold water, a small tablespoonful of salt, and set it on a good fire. As the scum collects on the surface, skim it off; when it begins to boil add about a wine glassful of cold water to stop the boiling, and allow all the scum to come off the surface, in order to remove it. When no more of it comes up, add a small turnip, a medium-sized carrot, two cloves, an onion, a stalk of celery, a leek and a clove of garlic; simmer constantly for about six hours, then add a tablespoonful of burnt sugar, and the broth is made.

Keep all tools sharp and in good order.

The Aged Democrat's Death-Bed and its Consolations: A Lay of Mourning and of Hope.

NEW YORK SUNDAY WORLD.

I.

It was an aged Democrat
Lay on his dying bed
And to his friends were gathered there
Smiled as he gayly said:
"Weep not, my friends and family—
This is no time for tears;
For the Democratic nominees
I've voted sixty years.
From James Monroe to Hancock down
My ballot they've received;
To vote once more in '84
I'd hoped, but I'm deceived.
The archer grim that shoots so true
Has aimed a shaft at me;
Yours truly must go over to
The great majority.
But wherefore should ye weep and think
The future mixed and murk is?
Though ballot-boxes have been stuffed
As if Thanksgiving turkeys;
Though briber and bulldozer each
Successful at his work is;
Though bosses have the cause betrayed
With basest treachery,
I know there is not in the world
A happier man than I.
And when upon the late campaign
Your eyes, my friends, you've bent,
You will no longer be surprised
I pass away content.

II.

"For, look you here," the dying man
Went on: "what funnier sight
In any opera-bouffe is found
That Offenbach did write
Than the Republicans have shown
All through the recent fight?
The Tribune and the Times I've seen
Supporting zealously
The man they called a perjuror
In 1873.
They proved no honest man would e'er
Support their nominee,
Their coats off threw and buckled to—
Why wonder at my glee?
Field-Marshal Murat Halstead said
No record he could run
Upon had Garfield, and came out
For him next week but one.
How jolly this to any is
That has a sense of fun!
I saw the Nation lend unto
His candidacy warm
Support, and at the same time write
About C. S. Reform;
I saw the Post bow down before
Protection's gilded calf—
All this you see, yet question me
Why merrily I laugh?

III.

"I've seen," the dying man went on,
"Eager conventions drink in
Pierrepont's assurance that he prayed
In '60 for Abe Lincoln.
I've Secretary Evarts heard
Old 'dough faces' blackguarding,
Oblivious of a certain speech
He made at Castle Garden;
I've heard him all repudiate
That issued from his mouth
Of the scandals of the Grant regime
And bayonets at the South.
I've Secretary Sherman heard
Supporting Garfield after
He'd said—but hold! that story old
Has tired the sides of laughter.
But I've seen Mr. Hayes ignore
His Order No. 1,
And the clerks assessed as ne'er before—
Yet you think that no fun?

IV.

"I've seen," the dying man went on
With joy exuberant,
"Curtis sit up till 12 o'clock
At night to welcome Grant.
Dorman B. Eaton I have seen—
Could irony go further?—
Hurrahing for C. S. Reform
And General C. A. Arthur.
Judge Poland I have heard declare
Of Credit Mobilier
All that he ever said was said
In a Pickwickian way.
Upon the platform I've beheld—
Association droll!—
Henry Ward Beecher arm in arm
With Robert Ingersoll,
And every high Republican
That purity adores,
Straining the traces 'neath the whip
Of Dorsey and of Storrs!
I've seen the Young Republicans
And the Reformers good,
With torches and with oil-cloth capes,
That in procession stood
From 6 P. M. till 2 A. M.,
A rainy night and rude,
Until by Conkling and by Grant
Benignantly reviewed.
When things like these one sees and hears,
Like the friend of that brave boy
That slew the jabberwock, he well
May chortle in his joy!

V.

"And jollier still," the dying man
Went on, "the prospect grows,
And with my closing eyes I see,
Just 'youd my chilling nose,
The closing scene in '84,
When, although Schurz may squirm
And Curtis mildly roar and rage,
Grant runs for his third term,
With Ingersoll in Plymouth Church
Shooting off his impious mouth,
And Evarts at the Institute
Preaching bayonets for the South,
And all the Young Republicans
With ear-splitting hurrahs
Dragging Cornell and Conkling round
Upon triumphal cars."
The dying man fell back upon
His pillow in ecstasy,
And the death-rattle in his throat
A chuckle seemed to be!

"HOW SHALL WE ESCAPE?"—Many years ago a Welsh minister, a man of God, beginning his sermon leaned over his pulpit and said with solemn air:

"Friends, I have a question to ask. I cannot answer it. You cannot answer it. If an angel from heaven were here, he could not answer it. If a devil from hell were here, he could not answer it."

Death-like silence reigned. Every eye was fixed on the speaker. He proceeded:

"The question is this: How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?"

☞ Merchant to his clerk, who has just recovered from a spree: "Why did you get drunk yesterday?"

"Because you told me to."

"Sir, I told you to? What do you mean?"

"You said, 'Never put off till tomorrow what I could do to-day,' and—and I didn't."

☞ A bright little girl who had successfully spelled the word 'that,' was asked by her teacher what remain after the "t" had been taken away. "The ditry cups and saucers," was the prompt reply.

"There is no place like home," repeated Mr. Henpeck, looking at a motto, and he heartily added: "I'm glad there isn't."

Literary Revolution and Universal Knowledge.

An Encyclopædia in 20 Volumes, over 16,000 Pages; 10 per cent more matter than any Encyclopædia ever before published in this country, and sold, handsomely and well bound, in cloth for 10, in half morocco for $15, and printed on fine heavy paper, wide margins, bound in half Russia, gilt top, for $20—an enterprise so extraordinary that its success, beyond all precedent in book publishing, may be fairly claimed to inaugurate a Literary Revolution.

THE LIBRARY OF UNIVERSAL KNOWLEDGE is a reprint of the last (1879) Edinburgh edition of "Chamber's Encyclopædia," with about 40 per cent. of new matter added, upon topics of special interest to American readers, thus making it equal in character to any similar work, better than any other suited to the wants of the great majority of those who consult works of reference, and altogether the latest Encyclopædia in the field.

Specimen Volumes in either style will be sent for examination with privilege of return on receipt of proportionate price per volume.

Special Discounts to all early subscribers, and extra discounts to clubs. Full particulars with descriptive catalogue of many other standard works equally low in price, sent free.

Leading principles of the AMERICAN BOOK EXCHANGE:

I.—Publish only books of real value

II.—Work upon the basis of present cost of making books, about one half what it was a few years ago.

III.—Sell to buyers direct, and save them the 50 to 60 per cent. commission commonly allowed to dealers.

IV.—The cost of books when made 10,000 at a time is but a fraction of the cost when made 500 at a time—adopt the low price and sell the large quantity.

V.—Use good type, paper, etc., do careful printing, and strong, neat binding, but avoid all "padding," fat and heavily-leaded type, spongy paper and gaudy binding, which are so commonly resorted to to make books appear large and fine, and which greatly add to their cost, but do not add to their value.

VI.—To make $1 and a friend is better than to make $5 and an enemy.

HELP Yourselves by making money when a golden chance is offered, thereby always keeping poverty from your door. Those who always take advantage of the good chances for making money that are offered, generally become wealthy, while those who do not improve such chances remain in poverty. We want many men, women, boys and girls to work for us right in their own localities. The business will pay more than ten time ordinary wages. We furnish an expensive outfit and all that you need free. No one who engages fails to make money very rapidly. You can devote your whole time to the work, or only your spare moments. Full information and all that is needed sent free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Maine. Oct. 14, 1880.
