Farm and Household.

[American Agriculturist for December.]

Live Stock.—As the season advances the live stock require increased attention; not only are they more directly dependent upon our care, but they are subject to discomforts from exposure, which seriously interfers with the profit of keeping them. Of all our domestic animals the pig is the most sensitive to exposure to rough weather, poultry next, in this order: fowls, ducks, geese, and turkeys, the last often doing better when exposed than if sheltered. Next to fowls, cows, then, working oxen and young cattle; next horses, which are used, unused horses, and sheep. Of these last the long-wool breeds are most sensitive to cold storms and snow, but close-fleeced breeds will stand almost any amount of cold if they have enough to eat, sheds to go under, and shelter from driving storms of rain and snow.

Horses, if well fed, usually feel bright and lively in winter, and young horses are, for this very reason, more easily trained than when the weather and running at pasture makes them dull. Whenever horses are used so as to warm them up at all, blanket them as soon as they stand still, if only for two or three minutes, those two or three minutes are sometimes enough to give a chill, which may end in pneumonia, or other serious troubles. Grooming saves feed, and also promotes health in horses, and should never be neglected. Blankets, except mere "dusters," are worse than useless in stables; they make the horse tender, and more likely to take cold when brought in hot. Litter very freely if you have the material; straw, leaves, swamp hay, etc.

Milch Cows.—These ought to be well fed, and cleaned by a card and brush, daily, if possible, otherwise twice a week. They should be milked up to within four weeks of calving. It is a great temptation to dry off a cow so as to save the labor of milking, and not alone will hired men do this, but the farmers themselves, generally, do it, and think that they save a good deal in feed and labor, while in reality, with young cows, they impart a habit of going dry early, which will last them as long as they live. The better milch cows are fed, the better return they give, but feed judiciously.

Sheep are peculiarly sensitive to good treatment. A good shepherd is always gentle among his sheep. Ewes which are to lamb early ought to be by themselves and have better care as their time approaches. Feed a few more turnips and give them a little more liberal sprinkling of corn meal and bran:

Pigs.—Nearly double the feed will be required to keep pigs from going back, after really cold weather comes on. It is then best to kill at once. Every farmer ought to be able to kill and cut up his own pigs. Many a farmer who kills his own pigs does so because he wants the job kindly and humanely done. He actually thrusts the knife as if he loved the victim. Feed soaked corn, that is, corn that is covered with as much boiling water as it will take up in 24 hours. This is better for either fattening or store pigs than coarse meal, unless the latter be thoroughly cooked.

Poultry.—Hens will lay up to Christmas, if they have good warm quarters. A manure shed, where mixed manure throws off considerable warmth, and which is closed in, but well ventilated, is an excellent place for fowls. They are kept warm and comfortable, their droppings are all saved, going to enrich the manure, and they keep on laying, often all winter. At noon feed, in open weather, soft food—that is, boiled potatoes mixed with bran and corn meal, or something of the kind; at night give a good feed of whole grain, throwing down enough to toll them off the roosts for an early breakfast, unless thereby you will be feeding an army of rats all night. In snowy and frozen weather, feed three times a day, and give only what they will run after at each meal.

American Apples Abroad,—The almost entire failure of the apple crop in Great Britain, and the great abundance in our own orchards, have led to the shipment of this fruit to an extent never before known.—Formerly a few barrels of very choice apples were sent over, and these brought handsome profit to the shipper. This year the consignments have been so large, that some thousands of barrels were offered in London in a single day. There is some danger that the reputation of "American Apples" (for they are seldom sold under any other name than "American"), may suffer from the sending of fruit of indifferent quality. There is perhaps no apple that bears transportation better, or is a better keeper than the Campfield. It is a good-sized, showy red apple, but it is sweet' In England, sweet apples are unknown, and not appreciated; the selling of a lot of Campfields, a few years ago, as Baldwins, did much to bring that excellent fruit into disfavor. If in the wholesale shipments now going on, varieties are sent that show that "American" do not always stand for a firm-fleshed, rich and high-flavored apple, it will have an unfavorable effect upon the trade in future years.

Light Family Biscuit.—One quart flour, one teaspoonful salt, one teaspoonful soda, two teaspoonfuls cream tartar; mix well; one tablespoonful butter or lard mixed in wet with sweet milk; roll soft.

Snaps.—Take one cup of molasses three-quarters of a cup of sugar, one tablespoonful of ginger and a tablespoonful each of powdered cloves, cinnamon and allspice. Add these to one-half cup of melted butter, and beat in two teaspoonfuls soda and flour enough to roll. Roll very thin cut out with a tin cutter, and bake in pans in a hot oven.

Apple Jelly.—To make the finest quality of apple jelly, the apples must be good and fully ripe; the temperature cool, and never higher than sixty degrees—forty is preferred. The slightest fermentation of the juice spoils the jelly; hence the whole process must be confined to three or four hours, and with the mercury at sixty degrees to one hour. A copper evaporator is used; it must be washed every day thoroughly.

THE OLD KITCHEN FLOOR.

Far back in my musing my thoughts have been cast
To the cot where the hours of my childhood were passed;
I loved every room to the pantry and hall,
But the blessed old kitchen was dearer than all;
Its chairs and its tables none brighter could be,
For all its surroundings were sacred to me,
To the nail on the ceiling, to the latch on the door,
And I loved every spot on that old kitchen floor.

I remember the fireplace with mouth high and wide,
And the old-fashioned oven that stood by its side,
From which, each Thanksgiving, came puddings and pies
That fairly bewildered and dazzled our eyes;
And then, too, St. Nicholas, so slyly and still,
Came down every Christmas our stockings to fill;
But the dearest of memories I've laid up in store,
Are of the mother that trod on that old kitchen floor.

Day in and day out, from morning till night,
Her footsteps were busy, her heart always light,
For it seemed to me then that she knew not a care,
The smile was so gentle her face used to wear;
I remember with pleasure what joy filled her eyes,
When she told us the stories that children so prize;
They were new every night, though we had heard them before
From her lips at the wheel on the old kitchen floor.

I remember the window where mornings I would run,
As soon as the daybreak, to watch for the sun,
And I thought, when my head scarcely reached to the sill,
That it slept through the night in the trees on the hill,
And the small tract of land, that my eyes there could view,
Was all of the world my infancy knew;
Indeed, I cared not to know of it more,
For a world in itself was that old kitchen floor.

To-night those old visions come back at their will,
But the wheel and the music forever are still,
The band is motheaten, the wheel laid away,
And the fingers that turned it lie mouldering in clay;
The hearth-stone so sacred is just as it was then,
And the voices of children ring out there again,
The sun through the window looks in as of yore,
But it sees stranger feet on the old kitchen floor.

I ask not for honor, but this I would crave,
That when the lips speaking are laid in the grave,
My children will gather theirs round at their side
And tell of the mother that long ago died;
It would be more enduring, far dearer to me,
Than inscription on marble or granite could be,
To have them tell often, as I did of yore,
Of the mother that trod on the old kitchen floor.

THE EBB OF LOVE.

A love that wanes is an ebbing tide,
Which slowly, inch by inch and scarce perceived,
With many a wave that makes brave show to rise,
Fails from the shore. No sudden treason turns
The long-accustomed loyalty to hate,
But years bring weariness for sweet content,
And fondness, daily sustenance of love,
Which use should make a tribute easier paid,
First grudged, and then withholden, starves the heart;
And though compassion, or remorseful thoughts
Of happy days departed, bring again
The ancient tenderness in seeming flood,
Not less it ebbs till all is bare.
Oh, happy shore, the flowing tide shall brim
Thy empty pools and spread dull, tangled weeds
In streamers many-colored as the lights
Which flash in Northern heavens, and revive
The fainting blossoms of the rocks; but thou,
Oh, heart when love hath ebbed, art ever bare!

MAKE THE BEST OF THINGS.

We excuse a man for an occasional depression, just as we endure a rainy day. But who could endure 365 days of cold drizzle? Yet there are men who are without cessation, sombre and charged with evil prognostication. We may be born with a melancholy temperament, but there is no reason why we should yield to it. There is a way of shuffling the burden. In the lottery of life there are more prizes drawn than blanks, and to one misfortune there are fifty advantages. Despondency is the most unprofitable feeling a man can have. One good laugh is a bombshell exploding in the right place, while spleen and discontent is a gun that kicks over the man that shoots it off. Some must have got into heaven backward. Let us stand off from despondencies. Listen for sweet notes rather than discords. In a world where God has put exquisite tinge upon the shell washed in the surf, and planted a paradise of bloom in a child's cheek, let us leave it to the owl to hoot, and the toad to croak, and the fault-finder to complain. Take outdoor exercise and avoid late suppers, if you would have a cheerful disposition. The habit of complaint finally drops into peevishness, and people become waspish and unapproachable.

CHAPPED HANDS.

Raw winds often produce in the hands of those who are much exposed to them, that roughness and cracking of the skin known as chapping. Should nothing be done to prevent, and the person is obliged to have his hands frequently wet and dried, the cracks will often get deep and painful. Corn husking is frequently accompanied by sore hands from this cause. As both a precaution and cure for chapped hands we have used the following with benefit: Wash the hands, and the face also if it is inclined to chap, in borax water, and afterwards rub with an ointment made by melting mutton tallow (or suet), and then gradually adding an equal quantity of glicerine, stirring the two together until cool. For the hands, the mixture can be best applied at night, using it freely, and warming it in by the fire, after which an old pair of gloves can be put on to keep the bed clothes from being soiled, and also make the skin of the hands softer.

MR. LONGFELLOW can take a worthless sheet of paper and by writing a poem on it make it worth $50. That's genius. Mr. Vanderbilt can write fewer words on a similar sheet and make it worth $50,000,000. That's capital.

Literary Revolution and Universal Knowledge.

An Encyclopædia in 20 Volumes, over 16,000 Pages; 10 per cent more matter than any Encyclopædia ever before published in this country, and sold, handsomely and well bound, in cloth for 10, in half morocco for $15, and printed on fine heavy paper, wide margins, bound in half Russia, gilt top, for $20—an enterprise so extraordinary that its success, beyond all precedent in book publishing, may be fairly claimed to inagurate a Literary Revolution.

THE LIBRARY OF UUIVERSAL KNOWLEDGE is a reprint of the last (1879) Edinburgh edition of "Chamber's Encyclopædia," with about 40 per cent. of new matter added, upon topics of special interest to American readars, thus making it equal in character to any similar work, better than any other suited to the wants of the great majority of those who consult works of reference, and altogether the latest Encyclopædia in the field.

Specimen Volumes in either style will be sent for examination with privilege of return on receipt of proportionate price per volume.

Special Discounts to all early subscribers, and extra discounts to clubs. Full particulars with descriptive catalogue of many other standard works equally low in price, sent free.

Leading principles of the AMERICAN BOOK EXCHANGE:

I—Publish only books of real value

II—Work upon the basis of present cost of making books, about one half what it was a few years ago.

III.—Sell to buyers direct, and save them the 50 to 60 per cent. commission commonly allowed to dealers.

IV.—The cost of books when made 10,000 at a time is but a fraction of the cost when made 500 at a time—adopt the low price and sell the large quantity.

V.—Use good type, paper, etc., do careful printing, and strong, neat binding, but avoid all "padding," fat and heavily-leaded type, spongy paper and gaudy binding, which are so commonly resorted to to make books appear large and fine, and which greatly add to their cost, but not add to their value.

VI.—To make $1 and a friend is better than to make $5 and an enemy.

Chestertown, Sept 30, 1880.

HELP Yourselves by making money when a golden chance is offered, thereby always keeping poverty from your door. Those who always take advantage of the good chances for making money that are offered, generally become wealthy, while those who do not improve such chances remain in poverty. We want many men, women, boys and girls to work for us right in their own localities. The business will pay more than ten time ordinary wages. We furnish an expensive outfit and all that you need free. No one who engages fails to make money very rapidly. You can devote your whole time to the work, or only your spare moments. Full information and all that is needed sent free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Maine.

CHEAPEST!!!

THE subscriber is now selling his best Ice Cream for $1.25 per gallon; 75 cents per half-gallon; 40 cents per quarter gallon; 25 cents per one-eighth gallon; plates 10 cts. It is now pronounced to be the very best that was ever in this market—so declared by ladies and gentlemen from New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore. The Cream furnished by the undersigned to the Odd Fellows' anniversary, at the Court House, April 29th, was said, by the two hundred or three hundred ladies and gentlemen who partook of it, to have been the best they ever ate; which, of itself, is a good advertisement.

Picnics, Festivals and Excursions will be allowed a discount on all orders of and above five gallons

All orders must be accompanied by the cash.

The Ladies' Parlor will be open after next Monday.

Thanking the public for all favors conferred in the past, and hoping for a continuance of liberal patronage, I promise to do my best to please all.

VOSHELL HOUSE.

THE UNDERSIGNED takes this method of tendering his heartfelt thanks to his old friends and the public generally for the liberal support and sympathy so generously extend to him under the recent adverse circumstances by which he has been surrounded, and takes great pleasure in informing them that the house, in a few days, will be in r st-class condition, the repairs and improvements thereto being made un der his own supervision.

THE STABLING,

which is commodious and in excellent condition, is now under his control, and those entrusting their horses and carriages to his care may rest assured that they will be faithfully attended to by trusty and experienced hostlers.

THE TABLE,

as heretofore, will always be found supplied with substantials and delicacies of the season, and will be under the experienced management of his wife, who will see that no pains are spared to make it, in every respect, first-class.

With the xed purpose of leaving nothing undone on my part which will conduce to the comfort of my guests, I respectfully solicit the patronage of the public.

JOHN C. VOSHELL.
