...m and Household.

From the Maryland Farmer.

PLANT FRUIT TREES.

Shade trees are all very nice in their way, maples, elms, evergreens and others, giving a very pretty appearance to the surroundings of the house, but then they do not pay for themselves, being ornamental without being useful. A few of these, planted in the front yard, or as is the case with the maple, where shade is needed in abundance and soon, but fruit trees soon grow large enough to afford shade, while they supply the family with regular crops of fine, luscious fruit, which never comes amiss winter or summer.

Our farmers should plant more fruit trees than they do, and to-day there are hundreds of farmers owning fine grass and grain farms, who have not a dozen fruit trees on their places, and what little fruit they consume being bought of more provident neighbors. The first cost is comparatively small for 50, 100, or even a couple of hundred fruit trees of different kinds and varieties, they take up but little land, (and when they do they soon more than pay for it,) and enhance the value of the place many hundred dollars. In every way they are desirable, and money cannot be expended in a better way.

Apple trees, as well as peaches and to some extent pears, should have especial places for them, in an orchard, but for planting in and around the yard and house, pear trees are just the thing. Where but few are planted, adhere, in your selection of varieties, to the old time favorites, the Bartlett and the Duchess, while one or two Seckles, ... couple of Belle Lucrative and ...mish Beauty, will be found de...le. Then there is the Lodge, ...r, the Buffom, Onondaga ...others which are amongst ...sorts. In planting do ... and plant in ...holes, so as ...Two years ...der ones, ...more ...outh, ...n

...shoulder... ...gs next and jowls on ...lay four or five weeks if ...her is not severe, if it be so ...s to freeze the meat let it lay for six or seven weeks then take it up, shake off any salt that may be attached to the meat, hang up and air dry for a day or so, and smoke for five weeks with a cool smoke from green hickory wood and corn cobs, adding occasionally a few tobacco stalks. Never let the smoke be hot enough to warm the meat.—After smoking take it down and cover with paper bags and hang up again, or put in canvass bags white washed, or pack in boxes or barrels with ashes or salt. You need not be afraid of the salt, as the bacon once smoked will never take in more salt if it be dry.

PICKEL FOR PORK, BEEF AND MUTTON, HAMS AND SHOULDERS.

Take the pieces of either pork, beef or mutton; and pack in a clean barrel closely and well-pressed down, sprinkle salt between the layers and cover with brine. The brine must be made strong enough to float a fresh egg, and add to every five gallons one-half gallon molasses, 1 pound saltpetre, ½ gallon of lye made from hickory wood ashes.—Weight well with a board and stone to keep the meat under. If desired to keep long, boil the mixture and skim well; when cold, pour over the meat. This boiled mixture will keep a long time. Potash may be substituted for the lye. These are the recipes of two old planters of the Eastern and Western Shore who were famous for their corned beef, pork, mutton-hams and delicious bacon hams. They were both distinguished for their high toned honor, hospitality, genial manners and lofty patriotism, and have long since gone to their eternal rest, lamented by all who ever knew them and their memories are yet cherished fondly by the citizens of Maryland.

CARE OF YOUNG PIGS.

Three or four weeks is the age at which pigs always need the most attention. At about this period the pig reaches a point when the milk of the sow is not sufficient to keep up a healthy growth, and unless the pigs have been taught to eat before this time, there will always be trouble with them. The only way to avoid it is to teach them to eat and drink at the earliest possible age.—This may easily be done by placing a little milk or other palatable food, in liquid or semi-liquid form, in a trough near them, but where the sow cannot get at it. By the time the pigs are a week old they will begin to taste it, and then they will very quickly learn to eat heartily. Give them plenty of nutritious palatable food from this time on, and there will be on further difficulty.—National Live-Stock Journal.

A CORRESPONDENT of the Rural New Yorker stops a cow or steer from jumping over fences by nailing a horseshoe on one forward foot. This prevents the hoof from spreading, and consequently renders the animal unable to spring. This is calculated to be very effectual.

THE successful farmer does not attempt too much. He concentrates, and the more he does this the greater are his gains. He does not expect large crops from his lands without liberal manuring. He recognizes the necessity of constant study and watchfulness.

THE FOX CHASE.

Tantivy, tantivy! hark, tally ho!
Tantivy, tantivy! hark, tally ho!(—the horn.)
At earliest ray of blushing morn
The huntsman winds his merry horn;
And with this wild and thrilling strain
Awakes his eager hunting train:
And bids them with all speed prepare,
With him his noble sports to share.

The gallant hunter in his stall,
Impatient hears this pleasing call;
With spurning hoof he paws the ground:
He champs his bit, he looks around:
On high he waves his lofty crest,
Erects his ears, expands his chest,
And in a graceful bow his neck
Is arched, tho' not with bridle's check;
Restless he stands, with nostrils wide,
And with his neighings seems to chide
The huntsmen for their long delay,
For eager he pants to hark away.

The hound awakes, he lifts his head,
And half reluctant leaves his bed;
Now rubs his sides, so gaunt and lean,
Now rolls upon the dewy green,
And livened by the stirring scene,
Now bears himself with prouder mien,
And now his deep and mellow note,
But half suppress'd breaks from his throat,
And busied round the huntsmen's heels,
Shows what eager haste he feels
At the first blush of dawning day,
On the bold chase to hark away.
A hasty meal, with sportsman's grace
And all are ready for the chase.

Tantivy, tantivy! hark, tally ho!
Tantivy, tantivy! hark, tally ho!—(the horn.)
Again the huntsman winds his horn,
And far away its notes are borne
O'er fields and woods, and to the dells,
Where lonely echo always dwells,
And she repeats its martial note
To hills and dales e'en more remote,
Repeating oft this pleasant sound,
She wakes her fairy sisters round.

The morn's so calm, so still the air,
That Reynard, absent from his lair,
Has heard that horn, and quick amain
He steals along the dewy plain,
And now he seeks the tangled brake,
To hide him by the sedgy lake,
When oft before the baffled pack
Have failed to trace his stealthy track;
This morn, howe'er, his hopes are vain,
For now the huntsman's noisy train,
Searching close the broken dale,
Have chanced upon his devious trail.

Hark from yon dale, that swelling cry
From cover bids old Reynard hie;
Then springing from his hidden bed
...e shakes his sides of dusky red,
...nd though the object of the chase,
...feels enlivened for a race;
...mindful of his subtle guile,
...les still the pack awhile,
...ark away! the huntsmen shout,
...old "Ranger" has made out;
...pack back to the cry,
...r's" aid they quickly fly.
...s" of the pack takes lead,
... off at lively speed.
...o! the fox is seen—
...g from yon copse of green;
...e passes like the wind,
...pack are far behind.
...'d hounds with firm intent
...ose upon the scent;
...en'd with their cry,
... together vie,
...c on the morning floats,
...pleasing strains and cheering notes;
The huntsmen, too, with ardor keen,
Course o'er the fields and meadows green,
And ladies fair of high degree
Join in the hunt with blithesome glee,
And dashing on, with winning grace,
Add double interest to the chase.

Now in the chase when hours have sped,
The pack have gained upon old red;
Then tired Reynard, faint and weak,
Is forc'd the tangled glade to seek,
Where doubling o'er his wily track
He throws at fault the eager pack;
This fault, howe'er will not avail,
For "Canto's" warm upon his trail.
Hark! list the music of the hounds,
That from yon dell so loud resounds;
There's music in that babbling cry,
It tells the pack are gathering nigh;
It fills each huntsman's breast with cheer,
And brings to Reynard naught but fear.

Within a dark and dreary den
Mid rocks sly Reynard has his den,
Where from the hounds he safe could hide,
And all their hate could there deride;
To reach this glen, the distance's great,
And should he fail he knows his fate;
No other wile has he to try,
The pack are pressing on so nigh,
Then from the glade he boldly breaks,
And for his den his course he takes.

Hark, tally ho! that shout again,
Tells Reynard's seen upon the plain;
Hark, tally ho! that thrilling sound,
Now adds new vigor to each hound;
Hark, tally ho! with quickened speed
Each huntsman urges on his steed;
Hark, tally ho! with yell and shout
The chase has thicken'd to a rout;
Hark, hark! the hounds old Reynard spy;
Then sharp and eager is their cry;
One moment more, and in their hate
They sealed in death old Reynard's fate;
The chase is o'er, and in the rush
A lady captures Reynard's brush.

Tantivy, tantivy! hark, tally ho!
Tantivy, tantivy! hark, tally ho!
The huntsman again his merry horn sounds,
Recalling the laggard huntsmen and hounds;
Tantivy, tantivy! hark, tally ho!
Tantivy, tantivy! hark, tally ho!
The chase now is o'er; our sports they are done;
By a fair lady the trophy was won;
Tantivy, tantivy! hark, tally ho!

THE SALARIES OF CLERGYMEN.—Remarks are often made implying that the ministers are overpaid, or at least that such men as Mr. Beecher and Dr. Storrs are extravagantly paid. The following figures are worthy of being borne in mind:—Beecher gets $20,000; Edwin Booth $100,000 a year; Dr. Hall, of Fifth avenue and Dr. Dix, of Trinity, get $15,000, while E. A. Sothern earns over $150,000 as Lord Dundreary, and John E. Owens plays 30 weeks annually for $90,000; Mr. Talmage preaches for $12,000; Jos. Jefferson plays forty weeks as Rip Van Winkle and earns $120,000. The scholarly gifted Dr. Storrs has $10,000. Dr. Cuyler works hard and faithfully for $8,000 a year, while Dion Boucicault finished a season as the "Shaugran," &c., at $3,000 a week. Dr. Potter, of Grace church, has $10,000 and parsonage; the eloquent Dr. Tiffany has $10,000; Dr. Chapin gets $10,000, while Fannie Davenport earns $1,000 every night she plays.

"No, marm," said the shoe dealer, "I would like to give you a smaller pair, but to sell you anything below eights would render me liable under the statue for prevention of cruelty to animals."

"I believe," said a Galveston justice to a rough-looking customer, "that all the scoundrels in the city of Galveston are regularly harbored in your den." "I never saw you there yet, jedge."

Literary Revolution and Universal Knowledge.

An Encyclopædia in 20 Volumes, over 16,000 Pages; 10 per cent more matter than any Encyclopædia ever before published in this country, and sold, handsomely and well bound, in cloth for 10, in half morocco for $15, and printed on fine heavy paper, wide margins, bound in half Russia, gilt top, for $20—an enterprise so extraordinary that its success, beyond all precedent in book publishing, may be fairly claimed to inagurate a Literary Revolution.

THE LIBRARY OF UUIVERSAL KNOWLEDGE is a reprint of the last (1879) Edinburgh edition of "Chamber's Encyclopædia," with about 40 per cent. of new matter added, upon topics of special interest to American readars, thus making it equal in character to any similar work, better than any other suited to the wants of the great majority of those who consult works of reference, and altogether the latest Encyclopædia in the field.

Specimen Volumes in either style will be sent for examination with privilege of return on receipt of proportionate price per volume.

Special Discounts to all early subscribers, and extra discounts to clubs. Full particulars with descriptive catalogue of many other standard works equally low in price, sent free.

Leading principles of the AMERICAN BOOK EXCHANGE:

I—Publish only books of real value

II—Work upon the basis of present cost of making books, about one half what it was a few years ago.

III.—Sell to buyers direct, and save them the 50 to 60 per cent. commission commonly allowed to dealers.

IV.—The cost of books when made 10,000 at a time is but a fraction of the cost when made 500 at a time—adopt the low price and sell the large quantity.

V.—Use good type, paper, etc., do careful printing, and strong, neat binding, but avoid all "padding," fat and heavily-leaded type, spongy paper and gaudy binding, which are so commonly resorted to to make books appear large and fine, and which greatly add to their cost, but do not add to their value.

VI.—To make $1 and a friend is better than to make $5 and an enemy.
