Farm and Household.

THE California olive will eventually surpass the best produced in France or spain. It is even now large, and of better flavor.

IT always pays to keep young stock in a thrifty, growing condition. Better to feed a little corn and roots than to defer it until next spring.

THE introduction of a pure bronze gobbler among a flock of mongrel turkey hens will add from three to five pounds extra weight per head to the turkeys raised for the first season.

THE poultry keeper who succeeds the best is the one who takes the best care of his fowls. There is no more "luck" about it than there is about boiling water. Put a fire under the kettle and the water will boil; take care of your poultry and it will pay.

IN winter calves need good feed. They should have the best of hay, and the addition of a few roots every day will make quite a difference in their growth during the winter. Two calves well fed, will be worth more next spring than three half fed.

DUST is more injurious to plants than many suppose. Those who grow plants in their houses should with a sponge wipe off the leaves of all smoothe-leaved plants. Others should be set in a tub or in a sink, and watered with a fine rose watering-pot. When dusting rooms in which flowers are kept, cover the plants with paper.

THE New York Herald recommends as an excellent remedy for sprains, sores and bruises, sprained hock-joints and stiff joints generally, in domestic animals, a liniment composed of creosote one ounce, turpentine one ounce, olive oil two ounces; mix and rub upon the affected parts. It is also of great advantage in thrush and foot rot.

TREELESS Iowa is being transformed into a forest covered country, by a law which remits certain taxes for five years on every acre of fruit, and ten years on every acre of forest trees planted and kept alive. Over 75,000 acres of fruit and forest trees have been planted, and $200,000 have been remitted in taxes.

GRASSES FOR PASTURES.—In various quarters we find considerable discussion as to the value of the different grasses used in agriculture. The majority prefer timothy, but now and then some one is sure that orchard-grass is best of all, while others contend that blue grass, red-top, or some other is best of all.

THE Southern Planter gives the following method of an Alabama gentleman for ascertaining the age of a horse more than nine years old: After the horse is nine years old a wrinkle comes in the eyelid, at the upper corner of the lower lid, and every year thereafter he has one well defined wrinkle for each year of his age over nine. If, for instance, a horse has three wrinkles, he is 12; if four, 13. Add the number of wrinkles to nine and you will always get at the age.

IF the farmer improves his farm he improves his financial condition. The more valuable he makes it, the more his capital stock is increased, the larger will be his returns, and when he dies the larger will be the patrimony he leaves his family.—Fix up the old home, then. Clean out the fence corners. Destroy the noxious weeds. Grub out the hazel and thistle. Burn out the stumps. Clean off the logs and stones. Make a paradise on earth of your farm, for are you not to live on it while you remain on earth, and will not your family live on it when you lie in yonder grave yard?

MANGE ON A HORSE.—This is caused by an insect. Whitewash the stable and stalls with lime and cover the floor also with it, as the mange insect will live upon the woodwork for some months, and return to the horse if not destroyed. Treat as follows for the disease: Make an ointment of lard, twelve parts, carbolic acid one part, and sulphur two parts. Rub these together thoroughly, until it is well mixed and smooth. Work some of this ointment into the affected portions of the skin twice a day. Give an ounce of flower of sulphur daily in the feed, until the perspiration of the horse smells strongly of it, then discontinue it, but continue the use of the ointment some time longer, until the skin recovers a healthy appearance.

SALLY LUNN.—One pint flour, butter half the size of an egg, one teacup milk, one egg, two tablespoons sugar, one teaspoon cream tartar, one-half teaspoon soda, one teaspoonful of salt. Bake twenty minutes.

IN making any sauce, put the butter and flour in together, and your sauce will never be lumpy. Whenever you see your sauce boil from the sides of the pan you may know that your flour or corn starch is done.

BROWN BREAD.—Three and a half cups Graham flour, two cups of Indian meal, two-thirds of a cup of syrup, one pint of water, (or if you have not plenty of milk use all water, one teaspoonful of salt. Steam four hours. It is excellent.

SAUCE PIQUANTE FOR FISH.—Make a brown sauce by frying a chopped onion in a little butter, adding a large teaspoonful of flour and a tumbler of stock. Simmer a little, strain, and put in a teaspoonful of vinegar, one of chopped cucumber pickle and one of capers.

SOUTHERN MODE OF COOKING RICE.—Pick over the rice and wash it in cold water; to one pint rice put three quarts boiling water and half teaspoon of salt; boil it just seventeen minutes from the time it begins to boil; turn off all the water; set it over a moderate fire with the cover off, to steam fifteen minutes. Take care and be accurate. The rice water first poured off is good to stiffen muslins.

TO BOIL VEGETABLES GREEN.—Put them in salt boiling water; keep them uncovered and boil fast till done. To counteract the hardness of water, a little carbonate of soda may be added with the salt.

WHERE IS YESTERDAY?

"Mother, some things I want to know,
Which puzzle and confuse me so,
To-day is present, as you say;
But tell me, where is yesterday?

"I did not see it as it went;
I only know how it was spent—
In play and pleasure, though in rain;
Then why won't it come back again?

"To-day the sun shines bright and clear;
But then to-morrow's drawing near.
To-day—oh, do not go away!
And vanish like dear yesterday.

"'Tis when the sun and all the light
Has gone, and darkness brings the night,
It seems to me you steal away
And change your name to yesterday.

"And will all time be just the same?
To-day—the only name remain?
And shall I always have to say,
To-morrow you'll be yesterday?

"I wonder, when we go to heaven,
If there a record will be given
Of all our thoughts and all our ways
Writ on the face of yesterdays?

"If so, I pray God grant to me
That mine a noble life may be;
For then I'll greet with joyous gaze
The dear lost face of yesterdays.

THE ONSLAUGHT ON INGERSOLL made by Chief Justice Comegys at Wilmington, Del., was from the bench, and the remarks were addressed to a Grand Jury. Ingersoll had lately lectured in the place. The Judge said: "Blasphemous language was used near where we are assembled by an audacious disciple of the defamers of revealed religion, for the purpose of exposing its doctrines to contempt and ridicule; and, to what some consider the reproach of the people of this city, no man stepped forward to call him to account for his defiance of the law of the State. I say to you that the law of this State is against the insulting of God by reproachful or derogatory language or expressions, and exciting the passions of the people by treating their religion with contempt. No community such as ours can exist as a healthy moral organization, where men are allowed to speak without challenge against the very and only foundation upon which it securely rests—the overruling power of God. When we dethrone His majesty and erect in His place our own notions of right and wrong, we shall soon pass into a state of life not restraining, but in effect promoting, our inherent propensity to evil, for no candid man can pretend that our impulses are not toward the gratification rather than in restraint of our passions." His Honor added that blasphemy was an ancient common-law offence, and was also made a crime by a Delaware statute as long ago as 1740. The punishment until 1826 was the pillory, the brand, and the whip. He said that Ingersoll might be arrested by any officer without a warrant, and added: "It is, I hope, hardly necessary to say to this community, and to assure the people of it, that if any one shall be convicted of the crime of blasphemy there will be no stint of the full measure of punishment the law now prescribes. And we shall in no wise be deterred from the performance of our duty by the sneers of the devotees of any other faith than that of the body of the people of this State or the deprecatory expressions of those who think the right of free speech will be infringed thereby."

SHOWMAN BARNUM'S recent illness gave him an opportunity to reflect a little on the frivolities of life, and he says, "the folly, the stupidity of fooling away the few years given us here in childish strifes, bickerings and differences occurred to me so strongly during my recent illness, that I resolved that the sun would never go down on me cherishing malice in my heart against a single fellow being. This feeling led me to write to men in Bridgeport and elsewhere with whom I had differences—trivial, perhaps, but still sufficient to keep us apart—and they all returned replies in the most kindly and considerate spirit. This was very gratifying to me then, and is no less so now when I feel that I will remain on earth a little longer, instead of departing this life as I expected to do."

IT is the general practice to judge of the unwholesomeness of water by the quantity of organic matter which chemical analysis shows it to contain. Hence the opinion expressed by Prof. Huxley is somewhat startling. He says that "water may be as pure as can be as regards chemical analysis, and yet, as regards the human body, be as deadly as prussic acid; and on the other hand may be chemically gross and do no harm to any one." That is, much organic matter is harmless, while the particular germs which produce disease may exist either in very foul water or in that in which the chemist can detect no impurities.

THE Borough of Launceston, in Cornwall, is one of those which escaped the sweep of the Reform bill. It has been regularly bought and sold, like any other merchandise. Of recent years the Duke of Northumberland, who owned it, sold it to Mr. Campbell, who represented it in 1865. From him it passed to Fitzwilliam Dick, an Irish M. P., who inherited an immense fortune from his uncle, Quentin Dick, who returned Judge Lopes, now of the English bench, his lawyer, as member; he sold it to Col. Deakin, a brewer who made an immense fortune by public houses in Manchester, and he first, and, when he was unseated for bribery, his son since have represented it.

A correspondent of the Scientific American says: "Let any one who has an attack of lockjaw take a small quantity of turpentine, warm it and pour it on the wound, no matter where the wound is, and relief will follow in less than a minute. Nothing better can be applied to a severe cut or bruise than cold turpentine; it will give certain relief almost instantly. Turpentine is also a sovereign remedy for croup. Saturate a piece of flannel with it and place the flannel on the throat and chest, and in every case three or four drops on a lump of sugar may be taken inwardly."

[Clinton (Iowa) Herald.]

James Butler, Esq., Clerk of the Roxbury Carpet Co., Boston, Mass., employing eight hundred hands, in a late communication concerning the admirable working of an article introduced into the factory, says: The famous Old German Remedy, St. Jacobs Oil, has effected several cures among our men, who have been badly hurt in working in the factory, and they pronounce it a success every time.

Literary Revolution and Universal Knowledge.

An Encyclopædia in 20 Volumes, over 16,000 Pages; 10 per cent more matter than any Encyclopedia ever before published in this country, and sold, handsomely and well bound, in cloth for 10, in half morocco for $15, and printed on fine heavy paper, wide margins, bound in half Russia, gilt top, for $20—an enterprise so extraordinary that its success, beyond all precedent in book publishing, may be fairly claimed to inagurate a Literary Revolution.

THE LIBRARY OF UNIVERSAL KNOWLEDGE is a reprint of the last (1879) Edinburgh edition of "Chamber's Encyclopædia," with about 40 per cent. of new matter added, upon topics of special interest to American readars, thus making it equal in character to any similar work, better than any other suited to the wants of the great majority of those who consult works of reference, and altogether the latest Encyclopædia in the field.

Specimen Volumes in either style will be sent for examination with privilege of return on receipt of proportionate price per volume.

Special Discounts to all early subscribers, and extra discounts to clubs. Full particulars with descriptive catalogue of many other standard works equally low in price, sent free.

Leading principles of the AMERICAN BOOK EXCHANGE:

I—Publish only books of real value.

II—Work upon the basis of present cost of making books, about one half what it was a few years ago.

III.—Sell to buyers direct, and save them the 50 to 60 per cent. commission commonly allowed to dealers.

IV.—The cost of books when made 10,000 at a time is but a fraction of the cost when made 500 at a time—adopt the low price and sell the large quantity.

V.—Use good type, paper, etc., do careful printing, and strong, neat binding, but avoid all "padding," fat and heavily-leaded type, spongy paper and gaudy binding, which are so commonly resorted to to make books appear large and fine, and which greatly add to their cost, but do not add to their value.

VI.—To make $1 and a friend is better than to make $5 and an enemy.
