Farm and Household.

MEANS OF CORN IMPROVEMENT.

The increased yield in the crop by virtue of an improvement in the variety of the corn is not the only good result of careful selection of seed. There is another and possibly a greater, benefit that is not so universally understood. It is the improvement in the stand of early growing corn that is secured. The failure of seed to germinate after it has been planted, is exceedingly annoying to the farmer, and is attended with much loss of time and labor. Every farmer understands the importance of early planting in the spring. An excess of moisture and lack of heat, however, are often a serious drawback to early planting. The germ is liable to perish and the grain to decay. Corn grown upon good rich soil, in which is found every nutrient constituent that is craved and which had good tillage and a full measure of time for growth, possesses a vigorous vitality and will live through adverse circumstances which would be fatal to corn grown upon impoverished soil and with poor tillage. All seedsmen understand the importance of this principle, and give to it great attention. The farmer therefore should select his seed from the corn that has grown upon the best soil and under the most favorable circumstances. It should have been neither topped nor cut up, and should be gathered before the storms and frosts of winter have set in. At time of gathering, every ear that at a glance seems to be a proper ear for seed should be thrown aside. The most convenient time for this is when the corn is being shoveled in the crib. At the earliest convenient opportunity, say upon the first rainy day, the farmer should make a more careful culling of the corn thus laid aside.

NEW POTATOES.

Among the new potatoes offered by seedsmen are five varieties named and described as follows:

Queen of the Valley.—A very large, long, flattened variety, deep pink at the seed end, shading to nearly white at the base. The immense yield of this variety, of nearly all large sized tubers, must secure a large demand for it.

Extra Early Peachblow.—Very early, round, with white pink eyes, similar in appearance, but smoother and not as deep-eyed as the peachblow, which it resembles in all its good qualities, with the additional advantage of extreme earliness.

White Elephant.—Late, long, cylindrical, with depressed eyes, skin white and smooth. Flesh finegrained, white and of good quality. A productive and valuable winter variety.

Adirondack.—Late, round, dark copper red. In general character similar to the old Peachblow, but hardier and more prolific. Said to suffer less from drouth than other varieties.

White Star.—A cross between Excelsior and Peachblow. Medium late, cylindrical, of good uniform size, white, of excellent quality, keeps well and yields profusely.

APPLES boiled with meal are good for pigs.

ASPARAGUS thrives best on a deep sandy loam.

THE poultry keeper who succeeds the best it the one who takes the best care of his flock.

THE fodder from an acre of corn which yields fifty bushels is equal in value to a ton of hay.

IT always pays to keep young stock in a thriving condition. Better to feed a little corn and roots now than to defer it until later.

IT is said by those who have tried it that bran is as good as the best commercial fertilizers for potatoes and corn and cheaper.

A WISCONSIN farmer, twenty-three years ago, planted a piece of waste land, unfit for cultivation, with black walnut trees. The trees are now from sixteen to twenty inches through, and have been sold for $27,000,.

THE habit of eating vinegar on sliced tomatoes is a bad one. The tomatoes are not only better without the vinegar but they are wholesomer. Any one has but to try this to be convinced.

PICKLES put into jars that have contained butter or lard, will soon become covered with white scum, and will finally spoil, unless pains is taken to prevent it, by removing to clean jars and fresh vinegar.

THE mosquito pest in the bed room is only completely overcome by sleeping under a canopy. Nets at the windows, pennyroyal, carbolic acid, Persian powder, quassi solution and hartshorne avail not when the insects are numerous. Put this in your scrap book.

Take one dozen ears of corn, not too old, run a sharp knife down each row, scrape off with the back or edge of knife all the inside of corn, add three well beaten eggs and a teaspoonful of salt; drop with a teaspoon in small cakes on bake iron; these brown nicely and bake very little longer than buckwheat or batter cakes.

TOMATO SOUP.—A piece of leg of beef, fifteen cents' worth put in a gallon of cold water and allow to come slowly to a boil; then put aside on the stove to simmer for five or six hours; strain and allow it to cool so as to skim off all the fat. If your stock should boil away too much add more water, so as to have two quarts when it is strained. To the two quarts of stock add a can of tomatoes a large onion stuck with six cloves, a carrot, a small turnip, half a dozen allspice, a tablespoonful of salt, and half a teaspoonful of white pepper. Let it boil slowly for two hours, and then add a tablespoonful of butter; let it boil five minutes longer, take out the onion, carrot, and turnip, and pass your soup through the colander, rubbing it with a potato-masher, and serve immediately.

TEN millions of cattle are annually slaughtered in this country to supply the home dem and for meat which is valued at four millions dollars.

IN ARCADIA.

The following poem, by James Russell Lowell, was read at the Papyrus Club in Boston on February 24:

I, walking the familiar street,
While a crammed horse car tinkled through it,
Was lifted from my prosy feet
And in Arcadia ere I knew it.

Fresh sward for gravel soothed my tread
And shepherd's pipes my ear delighted;
The riddle may be lightly read;
I met two lovers newly plighted.

They murmured by in happy care,
New plans for paradise devising,
Just as the moon, with pensive stare,
O'er Mistress Craigies pines was rising.

Astrate, known nigh three score years,
Me to no speechless rapture urges;
Them in Elysium she enspheres,
Queen, from of old, of thaumaturges.

The railings put forth bud and bloom,
The house fronts all with myrtles twine them,
And light-winged loves in every room
Make nests and then with kisses line them.

O sweetness of untasted life!
O dream, its own supreme fulfillment!
O hours with all illusion rife,
As ere the heart divined what ill meant.

"Et ego," sighed I to myself,
And strove some vain regrets to bridle,
"Though now laid dusty on the shelf,
Was hero once of such an idyl!

An idyl ever newly sweet,
Although since Adam's day recited,
Whose measures time them to Love's feet
Whose sense is every ill requited.

Maiden, if I may counsel, drain
Each drop of this enchanted season,
For even our honeymoons must wane,
Convicted of green cheese by Reason.

And none will seem so safe from change,
Nor in such skies benignant hover,
As this, beneath whose witchery strange
You tread on rose leaves with your lover.

The glass unfilled all tastes can fit,
As round its brim Conjecture dances,
For not Mephisto's self hath wit
To draw such vintages as Fancy's.

When our pulse beats its minor key,
When play-time halves and school-time doubles
Age fills the cup with serious tea
Which one Dame Clicquot starred with babbles.

"Fie, Mr. Lowell! is this wise?
Is this the moral of a poet
Who, when the plant of Eden dies,
Is privileged once more to sow it?

That herb of clay-disdaining root,
From stars secreting what it feeds on,
Is burnt-out passion's slang and soot
Fit soil to strew its dainty seeds on?

Pray, why, if in Arcadia once,
Need one so soon forget the way there?
Or why, once there, be such a dunce
As not contentedly to stay there?"

Dear child, 'tis but a sorry jest,
And from my heart I hate the cynic
Who makes the Book of Life a nest
For comments staler than rabbinic.

If Love his simple spell but keep,
Life with ideal eyes to flatter,
The Grail itself were crockery cheap
To Every-days communion platter.

One Darby is to me well known
Who, as the hearth between them blazes
Sees the old moonlight shine on Joan
And float her youthward in its hazes.

He rubs his spectacles, he stares—
'Tis the same face that witched him early!
He feels for his remaining hairs—
Is this a fleece that feels so curly?

"Good heavens! but now 't winter gray!
And I of years had more than plenty;
The almanac 's a fool! 'Tis May!
Hang family Bibles! I am twenty!

Come, Joan, your arm; we'll walk the room—
The lane, I mean—do you remember?
How confident the roses bloom,
As if it ne'er could be December!

No more it shall, while in your eyes
My heart its summer heat recovers,
And you, howe'er your mirror lies,
Find your old beauty in your lover's."

HIGHLY INTERESTING EXPERIMENTS with a newly discovered mineral essence took place a few evenings ago at the laboratory of the eminent Parisian analytical chemist, M. Wuertz. Having filled a lamp with the liquid in question, and ignited the wick, M. Kordig, the discoverer of the essence, tossed the lighted lamp up against the ceiling, besprinkling the bystanders as well as himself with the flaming fluid, which, however, to the astonishment of all present, proved utterly devoid of heat or burning capacity. He then soaked his pocket handkerchief in the essence and set it on fire; the essence burnt itself out, but the handkerchief remained uninjured, as did his hat after subjection to a similar trial. Then MM. Wuertz, Dumas, and Friedel, plunged their hands into a pan filled with the burning liquid, withdrawing them with fingers all alight, like so many thick jets of gas. They experienced no sensation of heat whatsoever upon the skin surface thus apparently in a state of active combustion. Other experiments followed of an equally wonderful nature, conclusively demonstrating that the "Kordig essence" is capable of producing light without heat.

[Detroit Post and Tribune.]

I have a little girl, said Mr. Henry Dole, of this city, in a conversation, who was troubled with a severe lameness in her legs, pronounced by some Erysipelas, by others Rheumatism. I had tried several remedies without effect, when I was induced to apply St. Jacobs Oil and I am happy to say the use of but one bottle cured her, and she is now able to go to school again.

AN Irishman remarked to his companion, on observing a lady pass: "Pat, did you ever see so thin a woman as that before?" "Thin!" replied the other. Botherashen! I seen a woman as thin as two of her put together, so I have."

THE St. Louis Globe-Democrat calls for two new literary characters. It says Maggie May and Jennie June are already prominent and that there is room yet for Aggie August and Sarah September.

WILLIAM BROWN is to be hanged at Fort Smith, Arkansas, for accidentally killing a man; but the chance shot was intended to take the life of another, and bad aim was held to be no defence under the law.

"I AM surprised," said a politician to a heavy property owner, "that you never run for some office." "Well, you see, somebody must do the taxpaying."

IT is not the height to which men are advancing that make them giddy, but the contempt with which they look down on those below them.

Literary Revolution and Universal Knowledge.

An Encyclopædia in 20 Volumes, over 16,000 Pages; 10 per cent more matter than any Encyclopædia ever before published in this country, and sold, handsomely and well bound, in cloth for 10, in half morocco for $15, and printed on fine heavy paper, wide margins, bound in half Russia, gilt top, for $20—an enterprise so extraordinary that its success, beyond all precedent in book publishing, may be fairly claimed to inagurate a Literary Revolution.

THE LIBRARY OF UNIVERSAL KNOWLEDGE is a reprint of the last (1879) Edinburgh edition of "Chamber's Encyclopædia," with about 40 per cent. of new matter added, upon topics of special interest to American readars, thus making it equal in character to any similar work, better than any other suited to the wants of the great majority of those who consult works of reference, and altogether the latest Encyclopædia in the field.

Specimen Volumes in either style will be sent for examination with privilege of return on receipt of proportionate price per volume.

Special Discounts to all early subscribers, and extra discounts to clubs. Full particulars with descriptive catalogue of many other standard works equally low in price, sent free.

Leading principles of the AMERICAN BOOK EXCHANGE:

I—Publish only books of real value

II—Work upon the basis of present cost of making books, about one half what it was a few years ago.

III.—Sell to buyers direct, and save them the 50 to 60 per cent. commission commonly allowed to dealers.

IV.—The cost of books when made 10,000 at a time is but a fraction of the cost when made 500 at a time—adopt the low price and sell the large quantity.

V.—Use good type, paper, etc., do careful printing, and strong, neat binding, but avoid all "padding," fat and heavily-leaded type, spongy paper and gaudy binding, which are so commonly resorted to to make books appear large and fine, and which greatly add to their cost, but do not add to their value.

VI.—To make $1 and a friend is better than to make $5 and an enemy.
