WHAT TIME IS IT?

What time is it?
Time to do well—
Time to live better—
Give up that grudge—
Answer that letter—
Speak that kind word to sweeten a sorrow;
Do that good deed you would leave till to-morrow.
Time to try
In that new situation—
Time to build up on
A solid foundation—
Giving up needlessly changing and drifting;
Leaving the quicksands that ever are shifting.

What time is it?
Time to be thrifty;
Farmers take warning—
Plow in the springtime—
Sow in the morning—
Spring rain is coming, zephyrs are blowing,
Heaven will attend to the quickening and growing.
Time to count cost—
Lessen expenses—
Time to look well
To the gates and the fences;
Making and mending as good workers should;
Shutting out evil and keeping the good.

What time is it?
Time to be earnest,
Laying up treasure,
Time to be thoughtful,
Choosing true pleasure;
Loving stern justice—of truth being fond;
Making your word just as good as your bond.
Time to be happy,
Doing your best—
Time to be trustful,
Leaving the rest,
Knowing in whatever country or clime,
Ne'er can we back one minute of time.

A MODEL GHOST STORY.

The Ketchumville (Tioga county) correspondent of the Oswego Gazette tells the following story: "Quite a singular circumstance happened to Mr. Dwight Cady last Thursday evening, while he was on his way home from North Maine. It will be remembered that it was a pretty dark night. It was necessary for him to pass by the Ketchumville cemetery, in which, some seven or eight years ago, the remains of a man by the name of James Boyles was interred, and those of his wife, also, we believe. It seems Mr. Cady was familiarly acquainted with Mr. Boyles, for he says as he neared the corner in which he was laid to rest, all at once Mr. Boyles appeared immediately before him, not more than two feet distant, and offered his hand. Mr. Cady says he grasped his hand and said, "How do you do, uncle Jimmy?" to which the dead man responded, "I am all right; it is all right with me." Mr. Cady then said: "How is the old woman?" "What old woman?" said the dead man. "Why, your wife, how is she?" "Oh, I don't know; I don't know anything about her," and he disappeared as quickly and quietly as he came. Mr. Cady says uncle Jimmy looked and talked as natural as life itself, and his hand felt warm and just like any live man's hand. He says he didn't feel frightened in the least until uncle Jimmy disappeared, and then he never was so scared in his life, and don't want to be again. Mr. Cady says he has been praying for the past thirteen years to have the dead appear to him, if they ever did to any one, and now that they have he is satisfied, and he positively affirms that he knows he saw him, and calls his friends "doubting Thomases" when they tell him he must be mistaken. His friends feel considerably worried over it, for they fear it as a presentiment of some coming trouble."—New York Tribune.

LUCY DAVENE is a mere child. Perhaps when she comes to years of discretion, if death or the law does not sooner interfere with her foolhardiness, she will voluntarily quit her business of hazardous circus performing. In leaping from a high pedestal to the arms of a suspended athlete, in Philadelphia, a year ago, her head struck an iron post and she was almost killed. She performed the same feat again, however, as soon as she had recovered. The Lizzie Davene who was mortally hurt in a circus at Wilkesbarre, recently, belonged to the same troupe of gymnasts, and Lucy has taken her place on the catapult. She places herself, lying flat on her back, on a sort of lever, which, by the action of springs worked at a given signal, leaps from a horizontal to a perpendicular position with such terrific suddenness and force as to send her whirling about seventy-five feet through the air into a net. The Wikesbarre authorities have undertaken to prosecute those who had charge of the machine when it injured Lizzie Davene.

THE PROFIT on cinchona planting in Ceylon has hitherto been estimated at 70 or 80 per cent., but the plantations of the Government in India, and the immense and thriving cinchona groves at La Paz, Bolivia, will soon be sufficiently advanced to come into competition with them. The cultivation of the cinchona in this, its original home, is easy. The chief danger is from drought or ants during the first two years, and the only labor necessary is to keep the young plants free from weeds. To give shade to the seeding plants, bananas are planted between them.

THE parochial register for 1736 of Lymington, an ancient town in Hampshire, England, contains the following: "Samuel Baldwin, Esq., sojourner in this parish, was immersed (in the sea) without the Needles (rocks) sans ceremonie, 20th May, 1736. It was ever his request, while living, that his body might be so disposed of after his death, from a superstitious notion that his wife, in the instance of her surviving him, would dance over his grave, actuated by a spirit of vindictiveness."

THEY DIDN'T TAKE.—A vicar of a country parish in England had occasion lately to remonstrate with a lowly member of his flock who had regularly been conspicuous by his absence from the celebration of the Holy Communion for his non-attendance. Hodge hazarded the excuse that he didn't consider himself sufficiently qualified to attend. "Why not?" urged the vicar; you have been confirmed." "Yes, sir," replied Hodge, "and vaccinated, too; but they neither of 'em took."

Rossini once said: "Do you know which works of mine will survive me? The second act of 'William Tell,' the third act of 'Otello,' and the 'Barber' whole and entire!"

KISSES.

Sitting to-night in my chamber,
A bachelor, frigid and lonely,
I kiss the end of my pipe-stem—
That and that only.

Reveries rise with the smoke-wreaths;
Memories tender surround me;
Girls that are married or buried
Gather around me.

School-girls in pantalets romping;
Girls that have grown to be misses;
Girls that liked to be kissed, and
Liked to give kisses.

Kisses—well I remember them!
Those in the corner were fleetest;
Sweet were those "on the sly," in the Dark were the sweetest.

Carrie was tender and gentle;
To woo was almost to win her;
Her lips were as good as ripe peaches
And milk for dinner.

Nell was a flirt and coquettish;
'Twas to catch me and kiss if you can, sir!
Could I catch them both—ah! wasn't I
A happy man, sir!

Carrie has gone on a mission
Off to the South Sea sinners;
Nell is a widow, keeps boarders and
Cooks her own dinners.

Charlotte and Susan and Hattie,
Mary, Jane, Lucy and Maggie;
Four are married and plump, two
Maiden and scraggy.

Annie is dead! Bloom sweetly,
Ye mignonettes, over her rest!
Her I loved dearly and truly;
Last and the best.

Thus I sit smoking and thinking,
A bachelor, frigid and lonely;
I kiss the end of my pipe-stem—
That and that only.

A DELAWARE GIRL'S LUCK.

She steps from the Kitchen to the Parlor and Becomes the Heir to $300,000.

SMYRNA, May 18.—The monotony of this town has been broken within the last two or three days by a very romantic rumor concerning the daughter of a hard working farmer residing near here, which may be called indeed a "romance in real life." The following is a true resume of the story coming from the lady's own family: About two years ago Lottie Malony, whose parents have a house full of little ones, seeing the struggle that had to be made to keep them from suffering for the necessaries of life, to relieve her parents from a portion of their trouble, went to Philadelphia and secured a position as a domestic servant in a family in that city. One summer afternoon in 1879 she wandered out to Fairmount Park to gain a few hours' rest from her duties. While sitting upon one of the rustic benches and perhaps thinking of the golden fields of grain, the clover-clad hills and the green peach orchards at her distant home in the Diamond State, she attracted the attention of an old gentleman who had passed the ripe old age of three score and ten. Seeing the care-worn and pale face, he was prompted by his philanthropic heart to speak to her. He saw in a short time, through his knowledge of physiognomy, that she was the person he desired to take the place of a housekeeper who had been taking advantage of her position to rob him, and told her that she was working too hard and would soon break down under the strain she was then under. To make a long story short, he engaged her to take charge of his home on Walnut street, in that city. She went to her new and pleasant home and performed her duties so well that her aged employer, a widower without children, during the past winter adopted her in a legal manner as his daughter and principal heir to a fortune of over $300,000. She now bears the name of Lottie Josephine Leon, daughter of Dr. Joseph Leon, one of Philadelphia's oldest physicians, and expects, during the coming summer to make a visit to the home of her childhood and show her new-found parent the beauties of her native State and town.—Cor. Wilmington Morning News.

BLAINE'S PICTURE OF CONKLING.

Just as Mr. Conkling has retired from the Senate, read what Mr. Blaine said about him in a discussion with him in the House of Representatives in 1866, and it will be understood why he detests Mr. Garfield's premier. Mr. Blaine said:

"As to the gentleman's cruel sarcasm, I hope he will not be too severe. The contempt of that large-minded gentleman is so wilting; his haughty disdain, his grandiloquent swell, his majestic, supereminent, overpowering, turkey-gobler strut has been so crushing to myself and all the members of this House that I know it was an act of the greatest temerity for me to venture upon a controversy with him. But, sir, I know who is responsible for all this; I know that within the last five weeks, as members of the House will recollect, an extra strut has characterized the gentleman's bearing. It is not his fault. It is the fault of another. That gifted and satirical writer, Theodore Tilton, of the New York Independent, spent some weeks recently in this city. His letter, published in that paper, embraced, with many serious statements, a little jocose satire, a part of which was the statement that the mantle of the late Winter Davis had fallen upon the member from New York. The gentleman took it seriously, and it has given his strut an additional pomposity. The resemblance is great. It is striking. Hyperion to a Satyr, Thersites to Hercules, mud to marble, dunghill to diamond, a singed cat to a Bengal tiger, a whining puppy to a roaring lion. Shade of the mighty Davis! forgive the almost profanation of that jocose satire!"

The Prussian Prince William has declined 3,000 wedding presents. Oh, General Grant, you're not adapted to royalty!

[Springfield, (Mass.) Daily Union.]

HIS ANSWER.

They tell it on one of our citizens who was ambling toward his place of business, that he was approached by a lady acquaintance of the family, who said: "Mr. ——, I hear you are suffering from rheumatism, is it so?" "Rumor 'tis m'm" said our citizen of few words, as he proceeded on his way. Over in Chicopee our neighbors and friends have been having quite a time with rheumatism; but according to reports received by our representative the flurry is over, as the sure antidote has been used and thus commented upon: Mr. C. N. Manchester, Cutler street, says relative to his experience: I have used St. Jacobs Oil, and esteem it the best remedy for rheumatism I have ever tried. It acts like magic, and I cannot over estimate its value, when I pronounce it the greatest rheumatic remedy of the age.
