Farm and Household.

CANNING AND PRESERVING.

The best because at once the healthiest and cheapest as well as the most toothsome mode of preserving fruit is to can it. For this, very little sugar is necessary; indeed, some people use none. Glass jars are to be preferred to tin, because they keep the fruit better, are more easily managed, and while costing a third more at first, last a great deal longer—forever, in fact, if care be taken of them.

In canning fruit or vegetables two things are necessary—the fruit must be put up boiling hot and sealed at once air-tight. If these two rules are strictly observed the fruit may be warranted to keep. Have the jars all ready, with elastic and tops fitted before you begin, and when the fruit is ready to can, roll them in hot water, scalding hot, with a quick twist of the hand, drain and strain them in hot water in a pan on a stove close to the kettle. Fill each jar as quickly as possible and let some one stand ready to clap on the top, which must be wiped dry, and screw it as soon as the jar is filled. As the fruit cools the top must be tightened to suit the contraction of the jar.

To can berries heat them slowly to boiling in your preserving kettle. When they begin to boil add a heaping tablespoonful of sugar to each quart of fruit. Boil for fifteen minutes. If there is much syrup, dip it out and set aside for jelly or for bottled syrup, when it will be of much more use than if canned. Blackberries, raspberries, huckleberries, etc., are all excellent canned, making pies equal to fresh fruit, and they are also very good eaten with milk for tea.

Peaches must be cut in halves and packed in the kettle with sugar, in the same proportion, sprinkled between the layers, putting a cupful of water at the bottom of kettle to prevent burning. Heat slowly on the stove, then bring to a boil and boil for ten minutes, to be sure that every piece of fruit is hot through. Then can as hot as can be and seal tight.

Plums must be pricked with a large needle or hairpin to prevent bursting. Then make a syrup, allowing half a gill of water and an ounce of sugar to every quart of fruit. When the sugar is dissolved and the water has become warm, put in the fruit and heat to a boil. Keep them boiling slowly or they will break, for ten minutes, then can them.

For pears, peal and cut up, make a syrup, allowing a quarter of a lb. of sugar and a gill of water to every quart of fruit. Heat slowly, boil ten minutes and can. Bartlett pears should have twice the quantity of water allowed. Let the syrup come to a boil; and then put in the pears and cook them until clear. Pack in jars, cover with boiling syrup and seal.

Tomatoes are the cheapest and most useful of all canned fruits or vegetables. Pour boiling water over them to loosen the skins, peel and boil for ten minutes, then can piping hot and screw the cans as close as possible.

Green corn is difficult to can. The only way in which we have ever seen it successfully done is to boil the corn on the cob until the milk ceases to flow. Cut it from the cob and pack it in the jars close. Then set the jars on the fire in a kettle of hot water and bring the water to a boil. Seal them while still on the fire.

PRESERVES.

For preserves use only the best loaf granulated sugar, and allow a pound of sugar to every pound of fruit if you wish your preserves very sweet, three-quarters if you do not; the latter quantity is fully sufficient for ordinary preserves. Peel peaches, pears, quinces and apples, and throw into cold water as you peel them to prevent their turning dark. Drain off the water, weigh the fruit, cover with sugar and let them stand for two or three hours. Set on the fire and heat slowly, then boil slowly, or rather simmer, until the preserves are clear. Take out each piece with a skimmer and lay on a flat dish to cool, or else put in the jars at once. Stew the syrup, skimming off the scum which rises, until it "ropes" from the spoon. If the preserves are already in the jar pour the syrup over them and seal; if on dishes, return them to the syrup and boil up at once before putting up.—This is merely a matter of choice and we have never found any difference in the results of the two methods.

Quinces should be parboiled before peeling. In preserving plums prick them and boil for twenty minutes in a syrup already prepared, allowing a gill of water and three-quarters of a pound of suger to every pound of fruit.

For berries make a syrup, and when it comes to a boil put in the berries and boil slowly for fifteen minutes. Take out with a skimmer and cook until it ropes.

Preserves keep best in self-sealing jars, but if well cooked any other kind will answer. In this case tie them up with white cloth, put brandied paper in the mouth of the jar and brush the cloth with white of egg.

Porcelain lined kettles are the safest for preserving, etc. For fine fruit nothing except those of bell metal kettles should be used. Where bell-metal is employed the utmost care must be taken to prevent canker. Scour with sand just before using, and scald with salt and vinegar, then rinse and whipe. After emptying wash at once. If the preserves are allowed to cool in the bell-metal the result will probably be poison to whoever eats them.—With due care these kettles are as safe as the frailer porcelain, without, they are dangerous in the extreme. Tin should never be used for preserves, it turns them dark.

White powdered hellebore will keep rose bugs off grape-vines.

Ground bone, fish guano and wood ashes are excellent fertilizers for strawberries.

The greatest enemy to young chickens and turkeys is lice. A mixtrue of lard and kerosene is the proper remedy.

Fertilizers will not do much good on soils that are not properly drained. If any one doubts it let him apply manure upon a swamp or bog meadow.

BY THE DEAD.

She lay in her chamber, peaceful and still
And silent, as all of us some day will.

Her hands held fast on her marble breast,
A lotus lily, in dreams of rest.

Her eyes were shut on the world of men,
Never to weep and grow dim again,

At the sorrowful story of grief and loss,
Or darkened with pain at the weight of a cross:

And her lips were shut close, as if to keep
The secrets of death and its wonderful sleep.

Waken, darling, he cried, and laid
His hands on the clasped hands of the maid;

Or is it slumber that holds you here
In this strange white silence? Answer, dear.

Open your lips, as the flower unfolds,
And tell me the secret your silence holds.

Lift from your cheeks, that are waxen white,
The gold of your lashes, and let the light

Of eyes the sweetest I ever knew,
Like the sky at sunset tremble through.

I forget—you are deaf to the words I say,
The soul that would answer has gone away.

Dead? dead? O, you are not! it cannot be!
Waken, darling, and answer me.

See, here is a rose! a great white rose,
Sweet as true love is, and pansy blows

All wet with the tears of the angels. Wake
And take them and wear them for love's sweet sake.

I clasp your hand in my own and cry:
Is it such a terrible thing to die?

The hardest lot is to live and know
That a face is hidden in grass or snow;

That was fairest of all things under the sun.
To think that the dream of all dreams is done;

To know that the years, be they many or few,
Will be years of longing and grief for you.

My sweet dead rose, if I lay by your side,
If I had died on the day you died,

And the same low grave that will cover you
Could shut us both from the world we knew;

Away from the woe and the ills that fret,
From loss and longing and all regret.

Oh, love, such slumber would be so sweet,
Wrapt in the daisies from head to feet.

Or snow that is white as the cheeks I kiss,
Where the roses were that I so much miss.

But that cannot be; you will rest and dream
Lik: a lily asleep on the eddified stream;

While I go on with the tide of life
And think of you in its fiercest strife;

Think of the girl with the pansy eyes
And the sometime gladness of paradise.

For over there, where the end shall come
Of waiting and sleeping, no longer dumb

To the words I utter, you lips will meet
My own in a kiss that is wondrous sweet.

Oh! pure white love, take one last long kiss
To keep while the time of our waiting is;

And give it back in that realm so fair,
With Paradise bloom on your sun-touched hair.
And so good bye—but good morning there.

THE LORD'S PRAYER.

DOUAY (ROMAN CATHOLIC) VERSION.

Our Father who art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name.

Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth, as it is in heaven.

Give us this day our super-substantial bread.

And forgive us our debts, as we also forgive our debtors.

And lead us not into temptation. But deliver us from evil. Amen.

AUTHORIZED (KING JAMES') VERSION.

Our Father which art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name.

Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth, as it is in heaven.

Give us this day our daily bread.

And forgive us our debts, as we forgive our debtors.

And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil. For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, forever. Amen.

NEW VERSION.

Our Father, which art in heaven, hallowed be thy name. Thy Kingdom come. Thy will be done, as in heaven, so on earth. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our debts, as we also have forgiven our debtors. And bring us not into temptation, but deliver us from the evil one.

THE JEW AGITATION in Germany seems to have abated. Jews have as much ignominy cast on them as anywhere. Within the memory of living persons they were not permitted to be within the walls of Bremen and Hamburg after sundown. Under Frederick the Great they were subject to severe restrictions, and might not travel without permission. A wealthy Hebrew who longed to quit Berlin, and had in vain sought permission, at length wrote to Frederick to beg leave of absence on the score of health. There came back this affectionate autographic answer: "Dear Ephraim: Nothing but death shall part us.—FREDERICK."

A CURIOUS INCIDENT was to take place in the Palace of Gatschina in Russia on the 10th instant. On that day in 1781 the Emperor Paul had his political testament deposited under the altar of the Imperial Chapel at Gatschina with directions that it should be opened after the lapse of one hundred years. This ceremony was to take place before the Emperor and all his ministers. The unknown testament referred to in the will of the late Alexander II. will no longer be a mystery.

Their Statements Indorsed.

A strong statement unqualifiedly indorsed must induce confidence. In this connection we note the following from Dr. Louis Bock & Son, Sheboygan, Wis.: We have been handling St. Jacobs Oil and are pleased with the large demand. MARBLE WORKS,
Chestertown, Md.

ALLOW ME to tender my sincere thanks for the past patronage of the public, and hope to receive their approval and patronage this present year. I am prepared to cut and finish every design in the marble business.

I have a very handsome assortment of my own finished

TOMBSTONES.
Some of the Latest Designs,
HANDSOMELY FINISHED,
COPIED FROM THE LATE PARIS EXHIBITION.

A large assortment for children, different patterns, some as low as $6.00, lettering included. Some fifty different patterns for grown persons, handsomely finished, some of them as low as $15.00, lettering included. Also, a fine line of different patterns, expressly for the very thick and heavy and handsomely finished of the best marble.

Marble Posts, marble Vases with Pedestal, Marble Coping, Tombstones and Monuments, of all sizes and styles.

Marble or Sandstone worked to order. I warrant all my work not to color or blister—time has no effect on it. I set up all of my work, thus relieving the purchaser of all trouble or risk.

Come one, come all, that are in want, and examine my work and learn my prices. I will be thankful. Don't send the money out of your own neighborhood.

Call and see me. I do not like to canvass for work, for I think it too sad a business to barter with relatives or friends.

My work can be seen in all the cemeteries of Kent and the adjoining counties.
