GETHSEMANE.

In golden youth, when seems the earth
A summer land of singing mirth,
When souls are glad and hearts are light,
And not a shadow lurks in sight,
We do not know it, but there lies
Somewhere, veiled under the evening skies,
A garden all must sometime see,
Gethsemane, Gethsemane,
Somewhere his own Gethsemane.

With joyous steps we go our ways,
Love lends a halo to the days,
Light sorrows sail like clouds afar,
We laugh and say how strong we are.
We hurry on, and hurrying, go
Close to the border land of woe
That waits for you and waits for me:
Gethsemane, Gethsemane,
Forever waits Gethsemane.

Down shadowy lanes, across strange streams
Bridged over by our broken dreams,
Behind the misty cape of years,
Close to the great salt fount of tears,
The garden lies: strive as you may
You cannot miss it in your way,
All paths that have been or shall be,
Pass somewhere through Gethsemane!

All those who journey, soon or late
Must pass within the garden's gate
Must kneel alone in darkness there
And battle with some fierce despair.
God pity those who cannot say—
"Not mine, but thine:" who only pray,
"Let this cup pass," and cannot see
The purpose in Gethsemane,
Gethsamane, Gethsemane,
God help us through Gethsemane.

—Alla Wheeler.

SUNDAY READING.

Every good act is a flower which will beautify our final home.

A patriot may have joys as great as the welfare of his country is important.

A philanthropist's joys may rise as high as the well-being of the joys is precious.

Be always at liberty to do good; never make business an excuse to decline the offices of humanity.

Despise not little temptations; rightly met, they have often nerved the character for some fiery trial.

Faith which works by fear only leads to a selfish, dishonest repentance, if to any, and leaves the soul at the gates of death.

Christ never designed his church to be a bushel for hiding of the lights, but a candle-stick from which each light is to send forth its rays.

Inconsistency of life is utterly destructive of peace of conscience. The two things are incompatible. They cannot and will not go together.

Look upward and onward. We learn to climb by keeping our eyes, not on the valleys that lie behind, but on the mountains that rise before us.

Little local noises deaden the loudest distant ones; and so it is that this world shuts out from the ears of men as it does the voice of Almighty God.

The great globe itself is not more interlaced with golden veins, and filled with precious things, than the field of revelation, the store house of the unsearchable riches of Christ.

Look not mournfully into the past; it comes not back again. Wisely improve the present—it is thine. Go forth to meet the shadowy future without fear, and with a manly heart.

It is always safe in these days to address a clergyman as "Doctor" or an ex-army officer as "General." They never take offense at it if it is a mistake. But generally it isn't.

Childhood is like a mirror, catching and reflecting images all around it. Remember that an impious or profane thought uttered by a parent's lips may operate upon a young heart like a careless spray of water thrown upon a polished steel, staining it with rust, which no after scouring can efface.

The man who never failed is a myth. Such a one never lived, and is never likely to. All success is a series of efforts, in which, when closely viewed, are seen more or less failures. The mountain is apt to overshadow the hill is a reality nevertheless. If you fail now and then, therefore, don't be discouraged.

Lieut.-Gov. Tabor of Colorado owns from four to eight millions, all acquired within four years. But his sudden wealth was preceded by eighteen years of poverty, deprivation and struggle for himself and his wife. They went West from Maine during the Pike's Peak excitement, spent all their money, found no gold, and thereafter roughed it in border settlements, working for small wages at first, and afterward keeping small stores in mining camps. In 1877 he bought in Denver $2,500 worth of goods for a Leadville store, and tried to induce the firm to take half of the Little Pittsburgh claim in payment, but they preferred to take his note.—That mine yielded him $150,000 in three months, and eventually $1,300,000. The original cost was "grub stakes" for the two prospectors, the bargain being that he should have half of whatever they discovered on the trip.

An Austin man, who has an orchard, recently brought a large basket of plums to town and distributed them among his friends. A gentleman who tried one and had his mouth puckered up in consequence of their sourness said: "If you keep on giving everybody those sour plums you will not have a friend left." "That's where you are fooling yourself. Those plums are drawing my friends closer together than ever."

It is said that a man's voice reveals his character. When, for instance, you ask him for a contribution for the church, and he tells you that he has just bought a fast horse and hasn't a penny to spare, you know by his voice that he is one of the benevolent citizens of a great republic and that he won't see himself suffer for anything which either money or credit can purchase.

A prudent girl: "Mary is a very good, prudent girl. She says to me one day as she was breaking the curd: 'Mother, I will never let loose my affections on no man till I have proved him to be pious and in good circumstances.'"

Albany, (N.Y.) Daily Press and Knickerbocker.

Abandoned.

We perceive by one of our Massachusetts exchanges that Dr. Lozenzo Waite, of Westfield, an eminent physician of Berkshire Co., strongly indorses St. Jacobs Oil. With it he cured a case of Sciatica that resisted all regular professional treatment, and that had in fact been abandoned as incurable.

THE WORTH OF HOURS.

Believe not that your inner eye
Can ever in just measure try
The worth of Hours as they go by.

For every man's weak self, alas!
Makes him to see them, while they pass,
As through a dim or tinted glass;

But if in earnest care you would
Mete out to each its part of good,
Trust rather to your after-mood.

Those surely are not fairly spent,
That leave your spirit bowed and bent
In sad unrest and ill-content;

And more—though free from seeming harm,
You rest from toil of mind or arm,
Or slow retire from Pleasure's charm,—

If then a painful sense comes on
Of something wholly lost and gone,
Vainly enjoyed, or vainly done—

Of something from your being's chain
Broke off, nor to be linked again
By all mere Memory can retain,—

Upon your heart this truth may rise,—
Nothing that altogether dies
Suffices man's just destinies;

So should we live, that every Hour
May die as does the natural flower,—
A self-reviving thing of power;

That every Thought and every Deed
May hold within itself the seed
Of future good and future meed;

Esteeming Sorrow, whose employ
Is to develop, not destroy,
Far better than a barren Joy.

HIGH-WAYS AND BY-WAYS.

We all travel parallel roads from the cradle to the grave. Some keep in the high-ways; some seek the by-ways, and it is a question where is found the most happiness—where the most usefulness?

If we count those in the high-ways, who seek political preferment or large wealth, both their usefulness and their happiness may be questioned.

An humble, simple citizen, who has all his life traveled upon a secluded by-way of life, may by setting forth one single thought become more useful to the race than a score of either political aspirants or millionaires.

The value of men is in what they are, and not in what they have.

Brute force, (and capital is but brute force,) is valueless without the brain power back of the cunning hand, to utilize it.

The possession of wealth is not an incentive to mental exertion, and it is seldom an aid to moral influence.

If you wish to find the higher types of human development seek in the by-ways of life; keep out of the gilded saloons of the fashionable—the rich—the heartless! Seek it in the humble walks of life—even among the poor and lowly—rather than in "Castle Indolence."

When Queen Victoria was a Baby.—All those who had the honor of Lord Hatherley's personal acquaintance will miss a most genial friend. His memory was marvellous, and took him back to the childhood of Queen Victoria, who owes her birth in England to the instrumentality and foresight of his father, Sir Page Wood. When first introduced to the little Princess he was a boy and she a baby about seven months old. On her little Royal Highness entering the room in her nurse's arms, he scarcely knew what was expected of him, but without more ado stepped forward and kissed the baby hand. Years later, when the baby had blossomed into the Queen of England, and the boy the Lord Chancellor, he delighted her Majesty by confiding to her his early embarrassment in her baby presence.

When the Duke and Duchess of Kent were living in retrenchment and the birth of a child was expected, Sir Matthew Wood (the faithful friend of the family, and the administrator of their embarrassed fortunes) looked at the political and domestic situation, and advised the royal couple to come to England for the event. Before this could be accomplished it was necessary to raise ten thousand pounds for expenses. This was done, and Sir Matthew Wood had the satisfaction of knowing that England's future Queen owed her birth within her own dominions to his energy and foresight.

James William Fletcher, the Boston spiritual medium whose professional visit to London resulted in his wife's going to prison for swindling an English woman out of $50,000 has returned home without her. He says that among the London attendants at his seances were Count Gleichen, Princess Albert and George of Solms, the Duc de Parma, the Duke of Newcastle, the dowager Duchess of St. Albans, and the Countess of Caithness.

Some interesting discoveries have been made in Lower Chaldea by the Vice-Consul of France at Bassorah. He has spent nearly three years making researches among the ancient rules of that province, and has brought to light a large number of objects, including eight very handsome statues, all of which are covered with inscriptions in the old Babylonian characters, and which are supposed to be 3,300 years old. The French Government proposes to buy the collection for the Louvre.

It is hardly fair to mix up earthly and heavenly meditations. A village pastor was examining his parishioners in the catechism. He came to the question, "What is thy only consolation in life and death?" which he asked of a young girl who hesitated, and then answered,—"Well, if I must tell you, it is the young shoemaker who comes to see me every Sunday evening, and who offered himself last night."

In the garden two six-year-old children, a girl and a boy, exchange vigorously blows and scratches, meanwhile calumniating each other at the top of their voice like Homeric heroes. Mamma interferes, and after much difficulty succeeds in separating them. "What in the name of goodness are you up to, you unhappy little wretches?"

"Playing husband and wife, ma!"

"I am waiting, my darling, for thee," he warbled; and yet, when the old man threw up a chamber window and assured him that "he'd be down in a minute," he lost his grip on the melody and went out of the waiting business.

MARBLE WORKS,

Chestertown, Md.

Allow me to tender my sincere thanks for the past patronage of the public, and hope to receive their approval and patronage this present year. I am prepared to cut and finish every design in the marble business.

I have a very handsome assortment of my own finished

TOMBSTONES.

Some of the Latest Designs

HANDSOMELY FINISHED,

Copied from the Late Paris Exhibition.

A large assortment for children, different patterns, some as low as $6.00, lettering included. Some fifty different patterns for grown persons, handsomely finished, some of them as low as $15.00, lettering included. Also, a fine line of different patterns, expressly for the very thick and heavy and handsomely finished of the best marble.

Marble Posts, marble Vases with Pedestal, Marble Coping, Tombstones and Monuments, of all sizes and styles.

Marble or Sandstone worked to order. I warrant all my work not to color or blister—time has no effect on it. I set up all of my work, thus relieving the purchaser of all trouble or risk.

Come one, come all, that are in want, and examine my work and learn my prices. I will be thankful. Don't send the money out of your own neighborhood.

Call and see me. I do not like to canvass for work, for I think it too sad a business to barter with relatives or friends.

My work can be seen in all the cemeteries of Kent and the adjoining counties.
