Fellow-citizens! Clouds and darkness are round about him! His pavilion is dark waters and thick clouds of the skies! Justice and judgement are the establishment of His throne! Mercy and truth shall go before His face! Fellow-citizens! God reigns, and the Government at Washington still lives.—James A. Garfield's New York speech at the time of the assassination of President Lincoln.

THE LAST RITES have been performed for the dead President. On Monday his body was deposited in the cemetery at Cleveland, Ohio. Thousands of people did honor to his memory by their presence. Hundreds of thousands throughout the land likewise did honor to his memory, though absent.

SWATHMORE COLLEGE BUILDING has been burned.

IT IS SAID that Mr. Blaine will ask that his resignation be accepted within ten days.

IT IS REPORTED that Arthur intends no let-up in the Star route prosecutions. His friend Dorsey, whom he greatly eulogized at a public dinner soon after his election as Vice-President, will be greatly disappointed if this be so, GUITEAU is to be tried without delay. He has chosen his brother-in-law as counsel. He is greatly afraid of the mob. He is afraid that when he shows himself for trial they will get possession of him. He shows his sanity in understanding that the mob would not split hairs over nice points in his case, but would proceed to a prompt and energetic hanging.

KING KALAKAUA, the despot of the Sandwich Islands, is now visiting the various cities of this country, on his return trip to his kingdom. He has traveled all over Europe, and has been received after kingly manner by all the crowned heads over the water. He denies indignantly that he ever made offers to sell his kingdom. His whole kingdom only numbers 60,000 souls—not half so many as inhabit the Eastern Shore of Maryland. It is possible that the King is personally acquainted with three-fourths the people in his kingdom. Kalakaua does not seem quite so eaten up with his own heaven-born importance as kings in general are.

KENT COUNTY REPUBLICANS held their primaries last Saturday, and elected delegates which met in convention in Chestertown on Tuesday. Sweet harmony has not existed for some years in the party in Kent, any more than in other parts of the State. Indeed there is a strong anti-Perkins faction that has been growing year by year. This year there was a strong fight made at primaries, and the anti-Perkins wing succeeded in carrying the upper district and the Chestertown district. This gave them ten delegates out of twenty-five in Tuesday's convention. The convention was a lively one. The delegates are called by a resolution passed on Tuesday, to meet again on the 18th of October, to discuss the propriety of making a county ticket. The secretary's report of Tuesday's meeting will be found elsewhere.

ALL EYES NOW TURN to the new administration. What is President Arthur going to do?

There is not much in the new President's past that gives assurance of a high-toned administration of government. The Hayes administration branded him as being a man of not enough principle to run even a custom house. It is well known that Arthur is simply a creation of Senator Conkling's. He was put at the head of the custom house by Grant, to gratify Conkling. He was nominated for Vice-President simply to appease Conkling. He showed his allegiance to Conkling by going to Albany last spring, and doing much of Conkling's dirty work. It cannot be expected that he will turn his back on Senator Conkling now. There cannot be much doubt but that for the next three years we are to have a Conkling administration. The question is not so much what Arthur is going to do, as, what is Conkling going to do? President Grant has already shown by his friendliness, that he means to tie to the new administration. The old cabinet has been asked to hold on for the present, but it is not probable that they will remain longer than the country has time to quiet, and Arthur has time to shape his policy.

But, there is no need to be in a hurry in guessing the new President's course. Three years from now a more accurate opinion can be arrived at.

PRESIDENT ARTHUR has issued a call for a special session of the Senate to convene Monday, October the 10th. The prime object in calling a special session of the Senate, is the election of a president of the Senate who shall in turn succeed President Arthur, should the latter by any chance be suddenly cut off. Of course the sudden death of President Arthur is not looked upon as being among the probabilities of the near future, but it is among the possibilities. His death without a successor might create anarchy, hence the reason for an immediate election of one who may lawfully become his successor.

When the Senate assembles, the Democrats will probably hold a majority. Senator Burnside from the Republican side of the house has died since the last Congress adjourned. Senator Hill, of Georgia, may possibly be prevented by ill health from being in his seat. But even if Hill should be kept away, the Democrats in organizing would hold a majority of two. The two new Senators from New York could not have their credentials acted upon until the Senate has organized. Of course their votes will therefore be not cast in the election of a presiding officer. Senator Bayard is prominently spoken of by the Democrats, and Senator Anthony by the Republicans as the new president of the Senate.

Peninsula News.

Oyster packing has commenced at Seaford.

Middletown fair was a success this year as usual.

The Dover fair goes out this week. The Cecil fair comes in next week.

One of the growing enterprises of Cecil county is the shipping of kaolin.

The Cecil county creamery is to be built on the farm of Col. Lincoln near Elkton.

Small pox has not yet died out in Delaware. A case is reported in Sussex county.

The military company in Dover will go to Yorktown, if they can get their uniforms in time.

Six sportsmen near Berlin, Md., killed seventy squirrels one day last week. Two killed thirty-six.

The lower part of the Peninsula always comes to the front when big water melons are being discussed. A fifty pound water melon is nothing of a rarity South of the Choptank.

Mr. Albert Constable, of Cecil county, who has been ill for two months or more of lung trouble, was last week operated upon by Dr. Pepper, of Philadelphia. A large quantity of water was taken off his lung and speedy recovery is looked for.

Talbot county Democrats nominated the following ticket: For Senate, Chas. H. Gibson; House of Delegates, James M. Lowe, J. Marion Wooters, Joseph B. Seth; County Commissioners, John C. Adams, James H. Willis, George Humphrey Tarbutton; Sheriff, Thos. F. Bridges; Surveyor, Wm. H. Smith.

While people in other parts of the Peninsula are mourning the failure of the peach crop, one Talbot county grower, according to St. Michaels Comet, claims a tree that has borne three crops this season, and another grower in St. Michaels claims to have a tree that has borne five crops.

Blessed is he who is innocent enough to believe these statements.

Many of the tomato canners early in the season made contracts for their goods at 90 and 95 cents per case. Since then the price has increased a large per centage, and each packer will try and can more than his contract calls for, that he may obtain a better price for the balance. Some would make thousands of dollars could they break their contracts.—Milford News.

EFFECT OF PROXIMITY.—After the President was shot, and the name of the assassin was known to the country, a clerk at the Maltby House, Baltimore, remembered that he had the name Guiteau on a book in which he enters those who beat the hotel,—that is, get away without paying their bills. The clerk found the name there, and then turning to the hotel register, found Charles J. Guiteau registered on December 9, 1877. These facts became known, and of course many people looked at the register out of curiosity, to see the assassin's handwriting. The name immediately following Guiteau's on the register is Thos. K. Robson, of the Easton Star, and many persons inquired if the latter was not a comrade of Guiteau's; and perhaps an accomplice. Fortunately, the clerk was able to assure all suspicious persons that the two were not even acquaintances, and it was merely an incident that the Eastern Shoreman happened to register next after the Ohio man, as somebody had to do, of course. But even then some suspicious people were not satisfied, and went away ominously shaking their heads, as if to say, "well, it may be all right, but it looks bad."—St. Michaels Comet.

MIDDLETOWN FAIR RACES.—The first race on Tuesday, the opening day of the Middletown fair was for Peninsula horses without record, best two in three to road wagon. It was won by Eugene R., time, 2.58. The second race was for 2.50 class, purse $175, three best in five. It was won by W. H. Doble's r. g. Socrates, in three straight heats. Time, 2.36¼.

The 2.33 race of same day, purse $300, three best heats in five, was not finished till next day. George Meley's s. g. Lancewood won in eight heats. Time, 2.31.

The first race on Wednesday was for 3.30 class, Peninsula horses, purse, $150. Three best heats in five. Won in four heats, by W. H. Armstrong's b. g. David Copperfield. Time, 2.48¼.

In the 2.45 race, purse $200, L. R. Redman's g. m. Lydia R., won in four heats. Time, 2.40¼.

In 2.29 class, purse $300, Sherman Morgan won easily in three straight heats. Time, 2.33¾.

On Thursday, the first race called was for Peninsula horses that never beat three minutes, purse $150. Won easily in four heats by James T. Earle's Gambril Maid. Time, 2.40¼.

The 3.40 race of Thursday was not finished till Friday. Purse $225. E. W. Conover's Adel Gould won the race in six heats. Time, 2.37½. The best time made in race was by Myrtle—2.35¼. The 2.26 race for purse of $400, was also delayed till Friday. It was won by Sherman Morgan in six heats. Time, 2.31¾.

ASHES TO ASHES, DUST TO DUST!

THE LAST HONORS TO THE DEAD PRESIDENT. HIS LAST RESTING PLACE.

Cleveland, Sept. 25.—The trains to-day have been packed with people from all over the State and from beyond its borders. The hotels are crowded, private houses are filled with guests, and every lodging house and restaurant has cots in hallways. And still it is more than likely that hundreds of people will walk the streets all night or linger about the catafalque for want of other places to go to until morning.

By the white glare of the electric lights, work upon the unfinished pavilion and mourning arches was pushed through the night, and today sounds of hammer and saw have been heard. By to-morrow nothing of the arrangements will be incomplete, and they are very elaborate. The local committees have worked with great zeal, and the event has been made the greatest in the city's history.

The effect of the electric light upon the funeral pavilion is very striking. Its black columns and black streamers are given a weird prominence. To-night under this glare of light people are filing past the casket at the rate of five thousand an hour. The pavilion was opened this morning at 8½ to the public. There was a rush for first places, and 200 city people got through. Then followed at least two miles of country folk who had arrived here by the early trains and had come miles to look upon the closed coffin of the dead President. The casket has not been opened since Mrs. Garfield took her last look into it Friday morning. The line of people which started at 8½ o'clock to view the casket continued moving four abreast until midnight. Not less than 80,000 people passed the catafalque. They simply walked by, glancing at the casket and the wreath upon it, and then turned their eyes upon the flowers. The pavilion and its decorations divided attention with the sealed casket.

Mrs. Garfield herself visited the place between 3 and 4 in the afternoon. The members of the Cabinet called upon Mrs. Garfield at the residence of Mr. Mason and asked her to visit the pavilion to select for herself and her intimate friends the seats she might desire for the exercises at the funeral to morrow. The Cabinet preceded her in carriages, and Mrs. Garfield, with Mrs. Mason, drove down to the square and viewed the arches and the pavilion over the catafalque. She expressed herself as gratified at the taste displayed in the arrangements. Especially did she speak of the profusion of beautiful flowers, and of the gold and the colored flags with which the sombre black was relieved. She had said previously to one of the Committee on Decorations: "I desire no pomp or display. That would have been very distasteful to the General. But all that is right and proper I would like." Mrs. Garfield retired last night exhausted from the effects of her long journey. She seemed to feel much better this morning. Harry and James stayed close by their mother during the morning.

Mrs. Garfield and her sons rode out to Lake View Cemetery this morning in response to the wishes of the committee charged with the selection of a suitable site for the President's grave. The arch at the entrance to the cemetery is, like all the others, not finished. When Mrs. Garfield and her friends reached there they were obliged to go around to another entrance. One of the saddest features of Mrs. Garfield's present ordeal is the necessity of giving some attention to the painful details of the funeral arrangements. It was hoped that at the hour of her going to the cemetery this morning during church service she could escape the crowd, but there is no solitude in Cleveland today, and the family of the dead President are objects of intense interest. There was a large concourse of people at the cemetery, and Mrs. Garfield, unwilling to expose herself to their gaze, remained in her carriage. She expressed her satisfaction with the spot selected by the committee.

The point selected, and which she has now approved, is one of the highest in the grounds. The view it commands is beautiful. Lake Erie lies two and a half miles to the north. The city, with its spires and many columns of smoke, lies down in the west three miles away. Between the bluff and the lake are level lands covered with garden plots. At the foot of the bluff is a little lake, on which white swans float. The ground is rolling and divided by a ravine. The point upon which the President's monument is to stand is a sort of promontory overlooking this scene. People carried away twigs and pebbles as mementoes of the spot. The body will not be buried here for a month. In the mean time it will be deposited in the receiving vault. The coffins already there will be concealed from view by the black hangings of the walls and ceiling. The lady teachers of the public schools had contributed $250 worth of cut flowers for its decoration. The approach to the vault will be under a black canopy and over thickly strewn evergreens and rosebuds. The casket will be placed upon a bier in the centre of the floor.

Mrs. Garfield is passing the day among her relatives and more intimate personal friends, and her remarkable self-forgetfulness renders her apparently more mindful of their grief than of her own. Mr. Thomas Garfield, a brother of the President, arrived this morning from Michigan, and is stopping with Grandma Garfield at the home of Gen. Shelton. The meeting between the mother and the son was a painful one, both of them being prostrated with grief. Grandma Garfield has evidently summoned all her strength for the events of these exciting days. There is a fear on the part of her friends that the strain may be dangerous to her eighty years. The father of Mrs. Garfield, Mr. Rudolph, is much with her. Continued proffers of courtesy and sympathy are made to Mrs. Garfield. Flowers are constantly arriving by express for her, and the Mayor this morning addressed a note of inquiry as to what disposition should be made of them. She asked that they all be laid upon the bier.

THE LAST.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 26.—The body of the late President Garfield has been carried to the grave with so great a funeral display and attended by such a multitude of mourners as must ever make the event memorable. It is certainly the chief day in Cleveland's history, as it is also the saddest. Garfield was regarded with great admiration and affection in northern Ohio, and his body has been followed to the tomb to-day by sincere mourners. Over 300,000 persons have taken part in this demonstration. Fully 60,000 people were in the procession. The rest were spectators. They lined Euclid avenue, Erie and Superior streets for over five miles between the public square and the cemetery. The curbs and walks were literally impassable. In vacant lots stands and tiers of seats had been built, and these were filled. Balconies, windows, housetops, all held spectators of the great pegeant.

The family arrived shortly before 10. They were preceded by Bishop Bedell and the Episcopalain and Presbyterian clergymen of the city. Mrs. Garfield walked with Harry, her oldest boy, and Irwin, her youngest. James supported the feeble steps of his venerable grandmother. The brother and two sisters of the late President followed, and Miss Mollie walked with Gen. Swaim. Other friends and relatives followed, and then ex-Gov. Hayes, Wm. M. Evarts, and the members of the Cabinet entered the pavilion. The family sat by the casket.

During the exercises which then followed the multitude was kept without the square. The heat of the sun at this time was overpowering. The vocal society sang a favorite hymn of the President.

THE PROCESSION TO THE CEMETERY

Two armchairs draped in crape designated the seats to be occupied by the wife and the mother of the dead President. The brother of the President, who was seated near Mrs. Garfield, and the mother, who was on her left, were convulsed with grief as the mournful ceremonies proceeded, but the wife, whose name has become the synonyme of fortitude, sat calm and heroic through it all.

The Rev. Dr. Charles S. W. Pomeroy delivered the closing prayer. Immediately afterward the red-coated Marine Band, which stood without the pavilion, played with sweet and touching effect "Nearer, my God, to Thee." The band then played "There is a beautiful land over there," and "Safe in the arms of Jesus."

When the casket was lifted from its resting place and borne on the shoulders of the guards, there was a suppressed moan which seemed to come from the lips of Mrs. Garfield, but it was choked back as if to calm the sobs of the child Mollie, who wept convulsively.

The marines, under Lieut. Walker, carried the casket slowly to the funeral car. The Knights Templar and the mounted city troops, preceded by the Marine Band, escorted the car as it slowly moved off. The carriages then filed up, and Dan, the President's faithful body servant, mounted the coach in which Mrs. Garfield and her boy Irwin entered. Mrs. Garfield walked firmly to the carriage upon Harry's arm, showing no signs of breaking down in her grief-stricken but brave face. The aged mother of President Garfield tottered feebly as she leaned on the arm of her grand-son James and Gen. Swaim. She appeared to be overcome with her sorrow. Miss Mollie and the brother and two sisters of the dead man followed. Then came the others of the family relatives and friends. The Generals of the army (among them Gen. Hancock, who attracted much attention) and the Cabinet Ministers, followed.

At Mrs. Garfield's suggestion, the casket containing the body will be enclosed in an iron cage, then a cement wall will be built around this, of sufficient strength to resist all attempts to remove the body, and of dimensions large enough to form the foundation of the proposed monument. The Mayor of the city has detailed a police force to be on duty continually until the final interment.

KING KALAKAUA IN NEW YORK—HIS FUTURE MOVEMENTS.

King Kalakaua, of the Hawaiian Islands, arrived at New York Friday on the steamship Celtic, accompanied by his chamberlain, Col. C. H. Judd, Aide de-camp Maj. G. N. McFarlane, and a man-servant. The King is 44 years old. He is six feet two inches in height, of splendid physique, and weighs about 300 pounds. He wore a military undress suit, the double frock coat buttoned to the chin. The King has thick, black curly hair, wears side whiskers, a heavy mustaches and small goatee. His whiskers curl like his hair. He might be mistaken for an Englishman were it not for his brown complexion. After leaving the steamer the King and his companions were driven direct to the Hotel Brunswick, where rooms had been secured for them, and the first duty the King attended to was the sending of a message of condolence to Mrs. Garfield on the death of the President, the news having been communicated to him when the steamer reached Sandy Hook. In an interview subsequently King Kalakaua expressed his grief at the death of the President, and said that at every place in Europe he had visited since the assassination there was a universal expression of horror at Guiteau's deed and of esteem for Mr. Garfield. Speaking about himself, the King said that he had been traveling for eight months, and would be home before November 1, having journeyed completely around the world. He had met most of the potentates of the Old World, had learned much about how nations are governed, and had a most enjoyable time. He was asked about the rumors that he was trying to sell his island kingdom and denied that there was any truth in the report, which he thought arose from the measures he was taking to induce immigration or was started by some malicious person. His subjects, he stated, numbered about sixty thousand, of whom ten thousand are Chinamen and two thousand Portuguese. There was room for a great many more, and he wanted a more desirable class than the Portuguese.

King Kalakaua and party visited Coney Island Saturday. This morning he will come to Philadelphia for a brief visit. Tuesday they are expected to reach Baltimore, going from here to Hampton, Va. Then they go to Washington, and from there to Lexington, Ky., Omaha and San Francisco. They expect to leave San Francisco for Hawaii October 27, in the steamer Australia. The voyage out occupied about seven days.
