Judge Wilson Succeeds Mr. Groome

Those who take an interest in public affairs watched the voting at Annapolis last week for United States Senator with a steady interest. The sentiment in this county was divided principally among three candidates,—the Hon. James B. Groome, Judge John M. Robinson and ex-Comptroller Thomas J. Keating. The sudden election of Judge Wilson was a matter of very considerable surprise, more especially considering the rush with which he was elected.

Though the sentiment in this part of the peninsula did not run strongly to Judge Wilson, his election is received on all hands with at least no expression of dissatisfaction. He is generally considered as possessing, if not conspicuous ability, yet a sturdy, practical common sense that will render him a safe representative of the State's interests in the national government. Above all, Judge Wilson stands strong as possessing an unblemished record, and as being one who carries with him a high sense of personal honor. Judge Wilson comes from the lower part of the peninsula, the section that has in latter years grown most of our Eastern Shore Congressmen. He himself has been a representative in the lower house, going back not further than ten years. He comes from Worcester county, the county that also produces our present representative in the lower house, the Hon. George W. Covington.

Viewing the matter from the standpoint of "practical politics," the Hon. George W. Covington will have to hand in his papers when his present term expires. As the Eastern Shore has generally made it a rule to give her Congressmen only four years, it will appear that Mr. Covington's limit will have been reached anyhow at the end of the present Congress; but over and above this is the consideration that both our Congressmen should not come from the same county.

Manufactures Should Come to the Country.

As competition increases among manufacturing industries, and as proprietors of factories are compelled by competition to look out for still cheaper means of production, they grasp the thought that in small towns where taxes are low they can produce cheaper than in the large cities where taxes are high. House rent and the general cost of living for the employees too, is less in smaller towns. When by water course or by rail the raw materials and fuel can be as cheaply secured in the country, there is no longer a doubt that any given article can be produced cheaper in a village than in a large city. That this view of the matter is gradually being accepted by manufacturers is shown by the fact that the manufacturing industries are gradually going out of the cities. As yet, they show an inclination to keep within a few miles of the cities, but in time undoubtedly county towns of the South as of New England, must become manufacturing centres. Encouragement should be extended by our Peninsular towns to Philadelphia and northern industries. The seeking of cheaper locality is evidently one of the factors in the solution of the problem,—'how can American industries subsist without protection?' Let them produce under the cheapest possible conditions, and then if they cannot sustain themselves without imposing a tax upon the general public, let them close up.

GOV. McLANE'S labor messages to the legislature, and the bills which the Governor has had drawn up in support of the same, have as might be supposed stirred up the manufacturers. A meeting of prominent manufacturers was held in Baltimore on Monday, and the protests were loud and numerous against the eight hour bill and also against the bills prohibiting the employment of women and children longer than eight hours a day even by special contract. The manufacturers claim that if these bills should become law, they cannot compete in Marylad with industries outside the State, and would be either compelled to close up or move out. They also claim that they would be compelled to reduce pay in accord with the reduced work performed in a day, and that the laborers themselves would object to the law on this account.

BALTIMORE papers are certainly going ahead. The Baltimore Herald, which is sold at the low price of a penny, and is furnished twelve months daily for three dollars, has turned out since the first of January in new type, and is really a bright, fresh, handsome paper, and a good newspaper too.

OUR Legislature has the United States Senator off its hands, and has also virtually made the treasurer and police commissioner, so that it is now ready to go unencumbered into regular legislative business.

SENATOR-ELECT WILSON.

WHAT HE SAYS OF HIS ELECTION AND THE CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

SNOW HILL, MD., Jan. 20.—Senator-elect Ephraim K. Wilson, in the course of an interview with the Sun's correspondent upon the subject of his election, said: "I was much surprised at the sudden close of the voting, and was prepared for an unfavorable issue. I took no part in shaping the canvass and knew nothing of the progress of events which led to my election. I do not know whose votes at last gained my nomination, nor anything which brought about the result. Whilst I am very thankful to my friends and willing to accept the high honor, I feel more concern lest I shall not be able to meet the expectation of my friends, than pride in my elevation. One thing I can and do promise, a conscientious and independent discharge of my duty."

Upon the subject of a new constitution Judge Wilson said: "I have as yet matured no views on the subject. Being conservative I believe that in making changes in the fundamental law the maxim festina lente (make haste slowly) applies with especial force. I think it an unwise policy for political leaders to encourage restiveness among the people about their form of government, and that changes therein should spontaneously spring from the felt and expressed wants of the people, with respect to which not a voice was heard in the last campaign, rather than prove a forced growth originating with and painfully forced forward by the prominent few. In the latter case it may well be suspected that there somewhere lurks interested motives which are the real spring of action rather than the desire to cure serious ills in the body politic. The Sun's advocacy of the proposed convention, in view of its known conservatism and faithful advocacy of the people's rights, is the strongest evidence of a popular demand for a change that I have heretofore seen."

THE ELECTION OF JUDGE WILSON.

How the Republican Surprise Worked.

THE DECISIVE BALLOT.

The fifth ballot of the day, and the twelfth and concluding one of the contest, was proceeded with in the Maryland Legislature on last Friday. Harford and Baltimore counties voted solidly for Judge Robinson, which ran his number up to 29. Wilson had 22, Groome 11, Thomas 10, Keating 7, and the Republicans scattering.

THE REPUBLICAN SURPRISE.

As the last name was called, that of Mr. Speicher, of Garrett, there was the usual buzz of conversation which prevailed whenever the clerks were counting the vote. Then Mr. Randall, (Rep.) of Anne Arundel, hurried to the seat of Senator Moore, (Rep.) of Montgomery, and said in an audible whisper, "Now is the time." Senator Moore, who was sitting directly in front of the clerk's desk, rose to his feet and said: "Mr. Speaker, I desire to change my vote." The buzz of many voices ceased, as if by magic.

Speaker Thom.—Call the Senator from Montgomery, Mr. Clerk.

Secretary Miller,—Mr. Moore.

Senator Moore.—I change my vote from Robert B. Dixon to the Hon. John M. Robinson.

Mr. Randall and Senator Hodson, Republicans, sprang to the floor and called loudly on the Speaker, with the evident intention of following Mr. Moore's example; but everybody else was on the floor at the same time. The Democrats at once realized that an attempt was about to be made to cast the Republican vote for Robinson and if possible elect him, and a simultaneous movement was made all over the house to defeat it. Friends of Judge Robinson were among the first to spring up and ask leave to change their votes, and all the Democrats seemed of one mind in the desire to frustrate the scheme. A scene of wild confusion reigned. The Speaker thundered on the desk with his gavel, and cried out, "Call the gentleman from Anne Arundel, Mr. Clerk." Chief Clerk Moore, of the House, looked up and down the double column of names on the roll call, but his usually sharp eye failed to pick out the name of Mr. Randall. "Where is that name anyhow?" he said, as he traveled up and down the paper for the third or fourth time. The Wilson people had been circulating about generally by this time, and twenty voices were calling "Mr. Speaker. Mr. Speaker." Dr. Thom hammered with his gavel, and the clerks having recorded Mr. Hodson's and Mr. Randall's changes to Judge Robinson, the Speaker was again the objective point. Nearly everybody was crying out, flourishing their hands, and making other efforts to get the attention of the Chair.

THE DEMOCRATIC STAMPEDE.

'Recognize none but democrats,' said some one in a loud voice near the Speaker's desk. The Speaker recognized Mr. Offutt, of Baltimore county. 'I change my vote to Philip Francis Thomas,' said Mr. Offutt. Then Mr. Lindsay, of the same county, caught the speaker's eye and changed from Robinson to Wilson, which called for applause, Mr. Gadd, of Queen Anne's, who was laboring under great excitement, next obtained recognition, and said: 'I change my vote to Judge E. K. Wilson,' This produced a perfect uproar of applause. Senators, Delegates and spectators all joined in it, and there was a disposition to cheer, which the Speaker checked.

As Harford county followed with two changes from Robinson to Wilson, followed by the balance of the Baltimore county delegation, the applause was renewed. Mr. Legg and Senator Turpin had been among the first to jump to their feet and call on the Speaker, but it was some time before he gave them the opportunity to say anything. Then they both changed from Judge Robinson to Judge Wilson. Besides Mr. Handy, Mr. Davis, of the city delegation, had voted for Judge Wilson at the first call of the last ballot. The others of the city men looked thunder struck when the break came, and appeared as if they did not know what to do. They finally all changed to Wilson.

FLOCKING TO WILSON.

Party lines were forgotten. Republicans as well as democrats now were changing to Wilson, and the hall of the House of Delegates was in a state of uproar not even surpassed by the closing scenes of the bitter and exciting session of 1880. Finally the clerks finished the account, and the Speaker announced the result. Wilson had received 68, Robinson 7, Thomas 6, Groome 8, Creswell 7, Dixon 12, and Clark 3. Senator Lancaster and Messrs. Gantt, Chaney and Wallace, republicans, were among those voting for Judge Wilson. Speaker Thom then said: 'The Hon. Ephraim K. Wilson having received a majority of all the votes cast, I declare him the duly elected Senator for six years from March 4, 1885.'
