BALTIMORE is endeavoring to push her city extension bill. The bill for extension has been referred to a committee consisting of one from each legislative district of the city and one from each county. The Baltimore papers think there is some show for Baltimore getting her belt.

WE ARE glad to state that the judiciary committee has reported unfavorably Senator Rusk's bill for repealing the Eastern Shore Senatorial law. This we suppose will be the death of the measure, though the Baltimore Senator has moved to substitute the bill for the unfavorable report. This motion is made the order of the day for the 8th instant, —to-morrow. Baltimore had better center her energies into an effort to obtain her belt, and not dissipate her influence by trying to euchre the Eastern Shore out of her Senator.

REPRESENTATIVE Morrison of Illinois, has introduced his tariff reform bill. The schedule provides for a reduction of 20 per cent. on most articles, and places an enlarged number on the free list. His bill is nothing like so sweeping in its reductions as was expected, but it should be understood that even those leaders in the low tariff move, who come nearest to free trade views, are yet not favorable to sweeping away the system of high tariffs so suddenly, that the business of the country would be thrown into a panic of confusion. On the contrary, it is desired that the industries that have been so nursed and pampered by the hot house methods of protection that they are too weak to stand alone, shall be given an opportunity to learn to walk unsupported, by slow degrees. It is to be hoped that the Democratic House will pass Mr. Morrison's bill, and throw upon the Republican Senate the responsibility of defeating it. Then the Democrats will have something definite to stand upon in the Presidential fight this year.

IT will appear from the polling of the Maryland Legislature by the Morning Herald that the majority of Republican members are really for Arthur as the next nominee of the party for the Presidency. This is probably to be accounted for by the consideration that Arthur, being in power, controls the machine, and the average Republican politician recognizes the fact that control of the machine—that is to say, of the immense power of government patronage—is three fourths the battle in winning the election after the nomination is made. As Mr. Arthur will control this patronage until the fourth of March, 1885, the politicians have a special respect for the power resting in his hands.

But we do not believe that the astute leaders of the Republican party will ever consent to Arthur being put up for the Presidency.

Why?

Because he has never done anything in his whole life that marks him as being a man of anything more than small parts.

He was nominated for vice president in a mood of contemptuous spite on the part of Roscoe Conkling who now treats him with open contempt.

As president, he has pursued a neutral course, and has been distinguished chiefly as a beau.

The American people, whether Democrats or Republicans have a profound admiration for a really great man, and on the contrary a profound contempt for a snob who accidentally gets hoisted into a place that is too big for him. Arthur has no earthly claim to being considered a great man, but he is a very good type of snob.

For these reasons, we believe that when the matter comes to a final test, the Chicago Convention will think it best not to nominate Chester A. Arthur in spite of the machine power which he will control.

IT IS quoted as the policy of Gov. McLane to sell the State's interest in the public works. He thinks the funds accruing from the sale would be sufficient to pay the state's indebtedness not otherwise provided for. We quote as follows from an interview with the Governor reported in the Baltimore Sun:

"I am satisfied it would be more to the interest of the State to pay its debts than to refund them and continue taxation, which would always be necessary, since the income from the public works is less than the interest on the debts. The constitution and existing laws provide to some extent for their sale, but further legislation would be necessary, and in reference to the canal, a ratification of the sale by the ensuing General Assembly would be requisite. My recent message on the debt question states my views on this subject very clearly, and really contemplates a divorce of the State from all works of internal improvement."

THE Hon. William Mahone's speaking his little piece about the Danville riots doesn't seem to have been a very impressive work of elocution. He is a manager and wirepuller rather than an orator, and is not at ease in speaking in such a body as the Senate. It must have amused the saturnine John Sherman to hear the man whose wild harangues, or at least those of his henchmen, helped to bring on the race troubles at Danville, waxing virtuously indignant about them. Mahone is not eminent as an orator, but as a humorist he shines.—N. Y. Sun.

THE MARYLAND LEGISLATURE POLLED ON THE PRESIDENCY QUESTION.

BAYARD STILL STRONG IN MARYLAND.

The Baltimore Herald has interviewed the members of the Maryland Senate and House of Representatives as to their respective preferences for President. Below we give the result of the Herald's interview

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Feb. 2.—In view of the near approach of the national conventions, a poll among the members of the Legislature is especially interesting so far as the majority of the members are concerned. Thomas F. Bayard, of Delaware, is the choice for President. Republican preferences, on the other hand, are varied, and are divided among the distinguished names so familiar to the public mind. Arthur has a following and so has Senator Edmunds, Blaine, Lincoln and Windom.

'I am for Senator Bayard,' said President Lloyd; 'he is my first choice. The party should nominate him for principle and go down with him if not successful.'

Senator Bishop, of Worcester—'I am for Bayard first, last and all the time.'

Senator Bowlus, of Frederick—'You may put me down for Bayard. He is a man for the people.'

Senator Getty, of Garrett—'Bayard is undoubtedly the best man. Governor McLane, of Maryland, is my second choice.'

Senator Gill, of Baltimore city—'I am in favor of the man who will insure success. While I prefer Bayard I think it best to take a man from the West.'

Senator Hayes, of Baltimore city—'Of the names mentioned McDonald is the most available man. Bayard is my second choice.'

Senator Jackson, of Wicomico—'Give me Bayard.'

Senator Lane, of Washington—'McDonald is my first choice, for the reason that we should now try the West and see if we cannot retrieve our misfortunes in the East. Bayard is my second choice.'

Senator Mearns, of Cecil—'My first choice is McLane.'

Senator Rusk, of Baltimore city—'I want Senator Bayard. I like him as a man, and, besides, he is upright and honest.'

Senator Shriver, of Carroll—'I would like to see Tilden President. This much is due him, but I suppose now that that is impossible. Therefore I give my allegiance to Bayard.'

Senator Turpin, of Queen Anne's—'I know Bayard personally. I like him, and think he is the best man to day in the Democratic party; but yet, unfortunately, he will not be nominated. The nominee of the next convention will be chosen merely upon a question of expediency, and that nominee must come from the West.'

Senator Warfield, of Howard—'I want to see Bayard nominated. If nominated he will be elected, for I know of no man who has a warmer hold upon the affections of the people.'

Senater Allen, of Harford—'Secretary Lincoln is my choice for President,'

Senator Brace, of Allegany,—'I am for Arthur. He has made a good President, and I think he should be renominated.'

Senator Brewer, of Anne Arundel—'Put me down for James G. Blaine. He is a man for the people.'

Senator Burchinal, of Kent—'Arthur is my man.'

Senator Clark, of Talbot—'Blaine of Maine, if nominated will electrify the country and make victory assured.'

Senator Hodson, of Somerset—'Now that Arthur has made such a good President, I would be satisfied should he be renominated.'

Senator Lancaster, of Charles—'I am a Blaine man, with Logan as a second choice.'

Senator Moore, of Montgomery—'My choice is Blaine. I would not object to Arthur for a second term.'

Senator Roe, of Caroline—'Windom, of Minnesota, is my choice, with Blaine as a second preference.'

In the House Speaker Thom was enthusiastically for Bayard.

Milburn and Wilkinson, of St. Mary's county, were for Arthur.

Wilson and Adkinson, of Kent county, were for Bayard.

Mr. Randall, of Anne Arundel—'It is rather too early yet to speculate upon the result of the Chicago convention. My preference, however, is for Blaine.'

Dr. Gantt, of Anne Arundel—'I am an admirer of Blaine and would like to see him President.'

Messrs. Lyles and Owens, the Independents from Anne Arundel, facetiously suggested David Davis as their choice. 'We must not forget our role,' they said in explanation. 'We are Independents, and so is David, and 'birds of a feather,' you know, 'flock together.' Mr. Lyles, however, is a Tilden man and Mr. Owens is for Bayard.

Mr. Parran, of Calvert—'Blaine is my man. I would like to see a great man as President, but I suppose, with Clay, Calhoun and Webster, Blaine, will be laid on the shelf.'

Mr. Chaney, of Calvert—'I am also for Blaine, because he is progressive and understands so well the temper of the people.'

W. DeC. Mitchell, Mr. Southerland and R. S. Mitchell, the delegation from Charles county, were for Arthur as a first choice and Logan as a second.

Mr. Offut, of Baltimore county, in reply to a question, said that he was for Bayard. 'I am for Bayard,' said he, 'because he represents the principles of the party. He is the choice of the people of Maryland, and being the unanimous choice of my State he is my choice.

Mr. Seth and Mr. Thomas, of Talbot thought it was too early to speculate on this question' While they both had a leaning to Bayard they felt in the better policy for the people to withhold their preferences until the candidates were announced. Colonel Lloyd, on the other hand, was a warm and pronounced Bayard man

Mr. Lawson, of somerset—'Arthur is my choice.'

Mr. Wallace, of Dorchester—'I think Logan, of Illinois, is the best man. Blaine is my second choice.'

Mr. Rowland, of Cecil—'I am for Governor McLane. He would make as good a President as he was a diplomat or Congressman.'

Mr Scott, of Cecil—'Mr. Bayard is my first choice.'

Wr. Wootton, of Prince George's—'Samuel J. Tilden is the man who should be nominated.'

Mr. Coffin, of Prince George's—'I am for Logan, of Illinois.'

Col. Legg, of Queen Anne's—'Mr. Bayard is a level headed statesman. He is honest and would make a good man, He would be my choice if I thought he could be nominated. I don't think he can be nominated, and therefore I am for a man from the West.'

Mr. Gadd, of Queen Anne's—'Speaker Carlisle is my choice; his views on protection are mine.'

Mr. Annan, Mr Keefer, Mr. Henshew, Mr. Morrison and Mr. Markell, of Frederick, were solid for Arthur.

The Harford delegation was divided. Mr. Plowman's choice is Senator Gorman. Mr. Silver, Mr. McNabb and Mr. Archer were for Bayard.

Mr. Douglass said that he was for Mr. Holman, because he thought him honest. 'I am for Bayard,' said Mr. Culbreth, the other member from Caroline, 'and would wade through fire and water to see him President.'

Mr. Clark, of Baltimore city, lead off his delegation with a vote for Bayard. The hat that was passed around brought back these: Rothert for McDonald, Robson for Bayard, Evans for Tilden, Handy for Robinson, Plaskett for Bayard, Schultz for Bayard, Gunther for Bayard, Weiner for McLane, Virtue for Bayard, Davis for Latrobe, Brandy for Bayard, Curran for Bayard, Seebo for Bayard and McCusker for Bayard.

'I will tell you why I am for Bayard,' said Mr. Little of Washington county, who stood close by counting the pasteboards as they fell from the hat; 'It is because he is in sympathy with the progressive spirit of the day. He is the candidate for the young men.'

Mr. Cechrane, of Allegany—'Mr. Edmunds, of Vermont, is my choice. He is the brainiest man in the Republican party.'

Mr. Hetzel, of Allegany—'Between Mr. Edmunds and Mr. Arthur there can be no comparison in point of ability, but as Mr. Edmunds has repeatedly refused to allow his name to be mentioned in connection with the Presidency, I suppose I must give my preference to Arthur.'

Mr. Leeds, of Carroll—'My first choice is Tilden and my second Bayard.'

Mr. Johnson, of Howard—'I am for Bayard. I think he is the most upright man in Congress and for this reason I prefer him.'

This poll reflects the sentiment of the Legislature on the question of the Presidential succession. The favorites are Bayard and Arthur. Thirty one members, including the 10 Senators, are strongly in favor of the Delaware statesman, with half a score favoring him as a second choice. There are 77 Democrats in the General Assembly. Of this number 51 are enumerated in the poll, which leaves 21 to be divided among McLane, McDonald, Carlisle and Tilden. Half of these are enumerated as a second choice for Bayard. Of the 26 Democrats whose preferences are not given, fully two-thirds may be put down for Bayard for first or second choice.

On the Republican side President Arthur comes in for 14 votes, with the rest divided between Blaine, Logan, Lincoln and Windom. There are 40 Republican votes in the joint Assembly, of which one half may be enumerated for the President.

Death of Col. Milton Y. Kidd.

Colonel Milton Y. Kidd, the well known journal clerk of the House of Delegates, died Saturday morning at four o'clock at the residence of Dr. W. T. Jones, No. 96 North Paca street, Baltimore. Col. Kidd caught a severe cold about three weeks ago by having his feet wet, and the cold soon developed into quinsy. This was relieved, but about four days ago inflammatory rheumatism set in, and made such rapid and serious inroads upon his constitution that it was seen Friday night that his course was run.

Colonel Kidd was born in Cecil county, not far from Port Deposit, and lived a life of leisure, with the exception of the time he spent at Annapolis, where he has been seen at the sessions of the Legislature for the past twenty five years. He was at one time a member of the House, but for the most part, he has acted as its chief clerk, and recently as journal clerk.

Col. Kidd has resided with the family of Dr. W. T. Jones, on Paca street, for the past fifteen years. He was in the 57th year of his age at the time of his death.

MR. MORRISON'S TARIFF BILL.

ITS AUTHOR THINKS IT WILL MEET THE VIEWS OF THE MASS OF HIS PARTY.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3.—Mr. Morrison will introduce his tariff bill to-morrow and ask that it be referred to the Ways and Means Committee. Mr. Converse will move to suspend the rules and ask for the passage of a bill restoring the duty on wool. He will be opposed by Frank Hurd, who will speak fifteen minutes, Mr. Morrison is reported by the Capital as saying of his bill:

'The bill is not exactly what I think we need, but it will answer the purpose of declaring the position of the Democratic party on the tariff. It will, I think, meet the views of the so called conservative wing, and will be a notification that we propose to reform the tariff on the basis of revenue only, and that the element of protection does not enter in the Democratic idea of establishing the rates of customs duties. I, for one, and the majority of the party, in my opinion, sustain this position. The allegation that public sentiment in the main is not with us is not in accord with my views on that subject. I believe I have given as close attention to the thoughts and opinions of a majority of the people as any one, and for the very reason that there is a popular demand, in the West and South particularly, for a reform of the tariff as indicated, I have undertaken to bring this question to an issue now. Some of our party friends do not think this way, but their opinions appear to be warped by the supposed needs of own constituents. It is possible that when the question becomes more thoroughly understood they will not be quite so antagonistic. The bill which I have prepared I believe will be satisfactory to the mass of the party, and, in fact, I am disposed to think that, upon a sober second thought, it will be so warmly endorsed as to be accepted as a party measure. There may be two or three, or perhaps a few more, who will think it their duty to fight shy of the measure, if they do not openly antagonize it; but it is quite as possible to believe that as many Republicans will accept this bill as a fair compromise between an extreme position on either side, and will give it their open support. The Democrats who oppose tariff reform may soon find themselves outside of the lines of the party, for the Democrats of this country, I take it, believe in tariff reform, and those Democrats who do not accept the issue may get left. I understand that the people are the final tribunal of arbitration on this important question, and, as far as I am concerned, I am ready to bear my part of the responsibility in making the issue now, so as to give the people a chance to express themselves at the coming election. I presume it will take several weeks to consider the bill in committee, but I expect to have it before the House in plenty of time to be disposed of."

A Virginia Man-of-War Surprises a Fleet of Maryland Dredgers.

There was some excitement among the Baltimore captains of oyster vessels over the intelligence of the capture of the schooner Ada Luddington, of Cambridge, Md., with her captain and crew, on Tuesday of last week, by an armed force while dredging in Virginia waters.

A Baltimore captain of a vessel which was dredging there at the time said: "About eighteen Maryland vessels were dredging under short sail one mile northwest of Stingray Point on Tuesday last. The sea was pretty rough and a tolerable breeze was blowing. About noon a schooner came out of the Piankatank river and sailed towards us, but no one appeared on her decks other than what I thought necessary to work her. She came up among us and hoisted the American flag. With a regular warwhoop her hold disgorged what I thought to be nearly one hundred men, all of whom were armed with rifles and pistols. She carried a cannon, and my vessel I think received the first charge. This cannon was fired about four times. We were all taken by surprise, and so terrified were the crews that but few showed presence of mind, enough to shake out the reefs in the sails, so as to get away. I ordered my crew to hide themselves wherever they could, and it was so hot one time from the bullets that the man at the tiller had to beat a retreat. As soon as we swung stern towards the armed schooner, one of the crew stole to the wheel and steered while lying flat on deck. The boat hanging astern was the only protection from the shots. The Ada Luddington, which was captured, it appears, had gotten before the wind before the Virginians brought their guns to bear upon her. They happened to be near her, and at once gave chase. The whole of the Luddington's crew went below to save themselves from the shots. For three quarters of an hour the Luddington, under nearly all sail, and without a man at her helm, dashed through the waters, followed by the armed vessel. The captain and crew would not show themselves through fear of being shot, and when overtaken the vessel had been running away without a hand to guide her on her course. While this chase was going on the balance of us made all sail and escaped from the Virginia waters."

The Luddington belonged to Mr. Levin McNamara, of Cambridge, Md. She was commanded by Capt. Andrew Steidle, who resides at No. 197 Gough street. The only other Baltimorean known on board was the mate, Frederick Steubey. There was a crew of nine men, who were shipped in Baltimore.

It has been ascertained that the capturing party were from Middlesex county, Va. The prisoners were landed at Cricket Hill, and thence conveyed to Middlesex Courthouse, where they were placed in jail. The Luddington had about 1,300 bushels of oysters on board when captured. Her sails were badly riddled by the shot from her pursuers guns. During the engagement Capt. R. F. Hudgins, one of the attacking party, had his right thumb nearly blown off by the bursting of a gun. Mr. McNamara will go down to Middlesex today to look after his vessel and crew. The captain of the Baltimore vessel giving the information above says the dredgers did not return one shot, notwithstanding many of them were supplied with breech loading rifles. When asked why he did not fire, he said it was because he feared if he was captured the Virginians would hang him.

BALTIMORE AND OHIO GROWLS.

MR. FINK ONCE MORE SUMMONS HIS COMMITTEE TO CONSIDER CUT RATES.

The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company has given notice to Commissioner Fink that rates on east bound freight are being cut by its competitors so generally as to warrant repressive action on his part, or by joint Executive Committee of the trunk line roads and their Western connections. The Commissioner has the power to inflict penalties in cases of this sort, and according to a recent resolution of the joint Executive Committee he is authorized, upon the submission of proof of rate cutting, to make the schedule rate as low as the lowest cut rate.

It is understood that the Baltimore and Ohio is prepared to present proof in support of its charges. The best charge of the kind, coupled with a request that the penalty of reduced rates be enforced, was made by the New York Central Company. At that time the committee endeavored to shirk the responsibility of reducing the schedule upon the Commissioner, and he in turn compelled that body to direct him specifically to enforce the pool regulations. The reduced rates were in force for about a week, when, after the usual lecture by the Commissioner, the members of the joint Executive Committee made the customary promises to maintain rates.

It is understood that in the present case the Baltimore and Ohio does not complain or bring charges against any road in particular, but against nearly all of its competitors. The charges, which were received on Thursday night, were apparently considered of sufficient importance to warrant the hasty summoning of a meeting of the Vice Presidents of the trunk lines. The meeting was held yesterday at the Commissioner's office. The Baltimore and Ohio was represented by General Freight Agent Harrlot, the Erie by Vice-President Blanchard, the New York Central by Vice President Hayden, and the Pennsylvania by Vice President Thomson. They decided to call a meeting of the joint Executive Committee for next Thursday to see what can be done about the matter.

It is generally reported that cut rates have been made as low as 15 cents per 100 pounds for grain from Chicago to New York, and rates on other classes and from other points in proportion. The highest cut rate admitted is 18 cents, while it is generally conceded that the cost of transportation is 10 cents.

WENDELL PHILLIPS died at his home in Boston on Saturday evening last of angina pectoris. Mr Phillips was born in Boston, November 29, 1811. His father had been first mayor of the city, and an ancestor came to this country with the original founders of Boston in 1630. Mr. Philips was graduated at Harvard in 1831, and admitted to the bar in 1834. The sight of William Lloyd Garrison dragged through the streets of Boston with a rope about his neck by the "Broadcloth Mob," precipitated young Phillips headlong into the anti slavery movement. He first attracted attention by a speech on the Lovejoy murder in 1837, and thenceforward he was the most fervid and eloquent orator of all the abolition apostles. His marvelous powers of speech won him attention where other men urged the same cause at the risk of outrage and death. Slavery abolished, Mr. Phillips became the champion of civil and political rights for the negro, and later appeared as an advocate of the Greenback heresy, receiving in 1870 20,000 votes as Greenback Labor and temperance parties for Governor of Massachusetts. Within the last two or three years he has been an earnest champion of General Butler, and he surprised many by advocating Chinese exclusion. He was for thirty years the devoted attendant of an invalid wife, and his domestic relations were most happy and peaceful. Mr Phillips was of medium height, compactly built, erect and of graceful carriage. His eyes were blue. He usually wore short side whiskers.

COLONEL DAST, of Georgia, who was a gallant officer in the Confederate army during the War of the Rebellion, tells the following story: "I have always had," said he, "a great respect for the valor of the Massachusetts troops, and there was one regiment particularly, the ninth, which fought us like tigers. It so happened that during several engagements we were pitted against each other, and there was much desperate work, I can assure you. During one of our encounters we were fortunate enough to surround one of their companies, and as we were shooting away they, seeing that unless they surrendered they were certain of annihilation, showed the white flag. Unfortunately this was not seen by my entire command, and several shots were fired after I had given the order to cease. In the midst of this desultory firing there came a strong Hibernian voice from out of the bushes, 'Howld up, yes scoundrels. We've surrindered and yer killin' Dimmocrats.'"
