The Cincinnati Riot.

Our space is too limited to give a detailed account of the terrible riot that took place in Cincinnati the latter part of last week. For destructiveness of human life, it is one among the most noted outbreaks on record. More than fifty people are reported killed and more than two hundred wounded. The cause of the riot was a case of undoubted miscarriage of justice. Wm. Berner was tried for the murder of Wm. H. Kirk. The evidence against him was clear beyond the possibility of a doubt. The murder was one of unusual brutality. The jury, however, acquitted, and thousands of people were filled with furious indignation at such a gross failure to mete justice. Indignation meetings were held, and from one of these the mob proceeded to the jail and demanded Berner. The authorities were expecting violence and the police force was gathered to protect the jail, in which, however, Berner was not confined, he having been sent on to the penitentiary immediately after the verdict. There were a number of others, however, accused of murder, and the mob was anxious to get at these. Several attacks were made upon the jail, and the militia was finally called out. Firing was kept up between the authorities and the mob with a terrible fatality. While attention was centred upon the jail, the costly Court House was set on fire and burned to the ground. The riot lasted more than forty-eight hours, beginning on Friday. Quiet was not fully restored till Sunday morning.

THE MARYLAND LEGISLATURE.

A BRIEF OUTLINE OF PROCEEDINGS DURING THE PAST WEEK.

MONDAY, MARCH 24.

The Senate passed both the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad bills and sent them to the House of Delegates. The appropriation bill for 1885 was amended and passed, and also Senate bills to tax mortgages and incorporating the Abattoir and Live Stock Company. House amendments to the Hartford run sewer enabling act were concurred in. Senate bill was read a second time increasing the adjutant general's salary. House bill allowing policemen to wear citizens' dress when not on duty was amended to except all election days and holidays, and read a second time. The following were defeated: Senate bills recommended by Baltimore city authorities in regard to assessments and taxation; House bills enabling the city to issue bonds for widening Baltimore and Fayette streets, to lease the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, and Senate bill to prevent political assessments.

The House of Delegates agreed to some of the Senate amendments to the appropriation bill for 1885, and appointed a committee of conference on others not agreed to. The Senate bill in regard to executors' commissions was placed in a position where it will come up in regular order. An unfavorable report was adopted on the bill to lease the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal. The bill, which had previously failed, to prevent the future creation of irredeemable ground rents was passed. The Wilkinson Compromise tobacco bill was passed. The resolution asking Congress to annul railroad tax exemptions was laid over. The bill to prevent discrimination and consolidation by gas companies was read a second time.

TUESDAY.

In the Senate the City Extension bill was reported favorably and made the special order for Wednesday. Senate bill was passed to test the validity of the Maryland and Virginia compact of 1785. The Senate bill discontinuing appropriations to colleges was amended and made an order for Wednesday.

House bills were passed limiting the working time of conductors on street railways to 12 hours, and to make railroad companies directly liable for wages of laborers under contractors. The night session was devoted to the passage in both houses of local bills, of which a great number were rushed through.

WEDNESDAY.

Gov. McLane returned the bill reducing marriage licenses to the Senate of Maryland yesterday with a message giving his reasons for not approving it. The veto was sustained. The differences between the houses were settled by a conference committee and the general appropriation bill for 1885 was passed. The Senate passed the House bill for a bureau of labor statistics. House bill abolishing weighers of grain was ordered to a third reading.

In the House of Delegates the resolution indorsing the bill in Congress looking to repeal of railroad exemptions in the States was defeated. The Baltimore and Ohio Elevated bill met with opposition in the House, and went over till Thursday. A veto was received from the Governor of the Cecil County Cemetery bill. The general oyster bill was amended, making licenses $3 a ton vessel measurement, and passed. Senate bill was passed to tax stocks and bonds of railroad and other corporations wholly within the State. The cable or electric motor bill was read the second time. House bills were passed to prevent fraudulent disposal of cargoes; to punish for carrying concealed weapons; to exempt sewing machines from distress for rent.

THURSDAY.

In the Senate, President Lloyd ruled that another vote could not be taken on the passage of the bill to reduce marriage licenses over the Governor's veto, and the ruling was sustained. House bills were passed: For a treasurer of Anne Arundel county. House bills were read a second time: To enable Baltimore city to guarantee $400,000 Maryland Central Railroad second mortgage bonds, and to prevent gas companies from tearing up streets without permission of the mayor and city council, and the general appropriation bill for 1886.

The House of Delegates passed the B. & O. Railroad bills and the Senate concurred in amendments to the elevated bill. The high liquor licenses bill of Mr. Lane was converted into a local bill to apply only to Washington county and so passed.

FRIDAY.

In the House of Delegates the Senate bill enabling the city of Baltimore to loan $2,000,000 to the Richmond and Danville Railroad failed for want of a constitutional majority. The House passed Senate bills regulating the sale of oleomargarine; to resubmit the question of prohibition in Prince George's county; to extend the time for completing the Drum Point Railroad, and the Frederick county almshouse and jail bill. The bill to resubmit the prohibition question in Anne Arundel county was indefinitely postponed. In the Senate the high liquor license bill for Washington county was passed as amended by the House. A committee of holding over Senators was appointed to investigate the reformatory, charitable and private educational institutions of the State, and report to the next General Assembly. House bill to abolish grain weighers in Baltimore city was defeated. The Wilkinson tobacco inspection bill was amended and postponed till Saturday. The oyster bill (House) was amended and passed under suspension of the rules. The general appropriation bill for 1886 was passed as amended Thursday, and returned to the House. A joint committee was proposed to inquire into the need in Maryland for an institute for imbecile children.

SATURDAY.

The Senate of Maryland on Saturday passed House bills permitting policemen to leave off their uniforms when not on duty; regulating the commissions of executors and administrators, with amendments to be concurred in by the House; enabling the mayor and city council of Baltimore to guarantee $400,000 second mortgage bonds of the Maryland Central Railroad Company; prohibiting the creation of irredeemable ground rents, with amendments to be concurred in by the House; authorizing the Governor to appoint five measures of oysters; to prevent frauds in the sale of canned goods; exempting sewing machines from execution; requiring all railroad companies in Baltimore to place safety gates at street crossings; to maintain the sinking funds, and to regulate the drawing of juries in Baltimore city; the Wilkinson House bill in regard to tobacco inspections, with the compulsory feature stricken out, which is yet to be acted on by the House. The city extension bill was read the second time. The House of Delegates recalled from the Senate and defeated the Electro Motor Cable Railway bill. The House also defeated the Senate bill to compel gaslight companies to obtain the consent of the city or county authorities to lay down mains, &c. Senate amendments to the oyster bill were concurred in and the bill again passed. Senate bills were passed to legalize trades unions; to protect the health of employes in factories; to amend the conspiracy laws, making with the bill for a bureau of statistics four out of six of the Governor's labor measures; forbidding marriages between white and colored people; authorizing commitments by justices and trustees of the poor of children to St. Vincent's Orphan Asylum; authorizing Baltimore city to take care of disabled and super annuated firemen and policemen. The legislative session will expire by limitation at 12 o'clock to night.

MONDAY, MARCH 31ST.

The Legislature of Maryland adjourned sine die at 12 o'clock Monday night. Among the measures defeated was the bill to extend the limits of Baltimore city; the high license bill for Washington county; the bill to incorporate the Baltimore Butchers' Abattoir Company; to appoint boards of medical examiners; to make railroad companies responsible for the wages of workmen employed by contractors; to appropriate $2,000 for two years to the Maryland Academy of Sciences. Among the acts passed last day were bills to prevent the future creation of irredeemable ground rents; to enable the city of Baltimore to subscribe $2,000,000 to the Richmond and Danville Railroad; to permit policemen to leave off uniforms when not on duty; enabling the city to pension disabled firemen and policemen; the general appropriation bill for 1886; the bill to appropriate $5,000 for Maryland representation at the New Orleans exposition, to incorporate the Annapolis and Bay Ridge Railroad Company; to regulate the extension of piers in the harbor of Baltimore; making ten hours a day's work in Allegany and Garret mining regions. The total number of bills passed during the session is over 400. The expiring hours of the Legislature were passed in a struggle for free inspections of tobacco, which ended in defeat.

ADJOURNMENT OF THE LEGISLATURE.

OUR LAW-MAKERS RETURN AFTER NINETY DAYS.

Annapolis, Md., March 31.—The Legislature of 1884, which closed its session at 12 o'clock to night, passed 478 laws. There were the usual closing scenes. The Legislature as usual worked right straight along to the moment of adjournment, but a great deal of unfinished business was necessarily left over. Outside of the four labor bills the most important matters of the session were the general oysters law, the Potomac oyster law, the executors' commissions law, the appropriation bills, the Susquehanna and Tidewater canal settlement, measures looking to the maintenance of the sinking funds, the pleuro pneumonia act, the Baltimore and Ohio Elevated Railroad bill, and the bill to prohibit the future creation of irredeemable ground rents.

Among the measures which failed to pass was the great Cable Motor Elevated Railroad scheme, the bill for equalizing taxation, the bill increasing the number of policemen in Baltimore, preventing tearing up streets, for a civil service commission in Baltimore, to prevent political assessments, the high license law, the eight hour labor bill, the bill for the assessment of property and the collection of taxes in Baltimore, and the Baltimore city extension bill.

The city extension bill was defeated tonight in the House by referring it to the city delegation, with the Senate amendment for the city to vote on the matter. It never came out of the delegation again. Also, the abolition of the compulsory tobacco inspection law, which was fought out by the House. The city extension bill got its coup de grace from Mr. Robson, who always opposed it as making too many concessions, and it may be said to have died in the house of its friends unregretted.—Some of the city delegation claim that the bill might have been passed had they been given an opportunity to discuss the merit of the measure as amended.

THE LAST ACTS.

The last bill passed the Senate was House bill legalizing the bequest of Emeline Irving, late of Baltimore county, to the Home of Aged Methodists.

Four House bills on third reading file not acted on were: To reduce license for billiard tables; to compel all persons who buy hay, straw, &c., at the neighborhood of hay scales in the State, except for private use, to take out brokers' license; to ventilate mines in Garrett and Allegany counties, and for uniform registration of voters in the State.

At midnight President Lloyd said, "The wings of time have brought us to that hour which, by constitutional limitation, bids us to adjourn sine die," and without any further remarks the Senate was declared adjourned.

The Senate bill to prevent bribery and corruption at elections was read in the House, when the report of the conference committee on the tobacco bill came up. The reading of the bill was suspended to make way for the tobacco question, and as this occupied the time up to midnight, the bill necessarily failed for want of time.

The last bill passed in the House was to amend the charter of New market, Frederick county. Before the adjournment Messrs. Robson and Weiner resigned as members of the House. Speaker Thom delivered a neat farewell speech, and after the adjournment Mr. Wilkinson was set up in the Speaker's tribune and pelted with journals and bill files.

GENERAL LAWS.

The following are among some of the more important of the general laws passed:—

Regulating the catching of oysters, defining conspiracy, legalizing trades unions, protecting the health of employes in factories, regulating the fees of executors, to prevent fraud in the sale of canned goods, for the appointment of measurers of oysters, exempting sewing machines from execution, appropriating $1,200 a year for two years to the German Orphan Asylum, establishing a uniform standard of time in Maryland, appropriating $750 annually for two years to the Hebrew Orphan Asylum, appropriating $10,000 annually for the iceboat Maryland, appropriating $750 annually for two years to the Hebrew Hospital Association, requiring purchasers of hay and straw other than for private use to take out licenses, appropriating $500 to repair treasurer's office, providing for the investment of the money set aside for the sinking funds, to further provide for the maintenance of the sinking funds, appropriating $2,000 annually for two years to the Baltimore Manual Labor School, regulating licenses to horse brokers, regulating actions for the recovery of costs and securing renewals, providing for the renewal of 99 year leases, providing for transfer of registered voters in new districts, requiring wills of all kinds to have two witnesses, forbidding marriages between white and colored persons, to remove boilers from the State House and provide for ventilating the same, to give notice and allow hearings before assessing property, to cede to the United States a site in the State House grounds for the De Kalb statue, compelling persons to pay costs when taking out peace warrants, for serving process on agents or attorneys of corporations where the president and directors reside out of the State, the general appropriation bills, to protect dealers in batter (the oleomargarine bill), appropriating $2,000 to the Maryland Historical Society, for a State subscription to Brantley's Reports, establishing a penalty for not complying with the law regulating the weight of corn in the ear at 335 pounds to the barrel (the legal weight

Our WAGONS,

CARTS & DEARBORNS

Have a reputation throughout this Peninsula. We have sold them in New Castle county, Del., and in Cecil county, Md., and as far as Salisbury, Md. We have over ONE THOUSAND of these running to-day, and as far as our personal knowledge extends we do not know of twelve set of tyres cut in the whole of them. This is evidence enough of what kind of lumber we use in making them.

We could give you testimonials enough to fill one side of the Chestertown Transcript to establish this fact if it were necessary, but the public already knows of the standing of these goods.

We have justly earned the high reputation we hold as manufacturers by our manner of doing business—

We give our own personal supervision to every minutia in building;

We see that all lumber is well seasoned before it is used, and every other part is what it should be.

We do all kinds of

JOB-WORK & REPAIRS

We also sell

Plow Castings and Plows,

such as Wiley's, Concaves, and Minor & Horton's. These Castings are all ground and polished and sold cheap.

HARROWS,

Such as Twin and Double, and Single A's.

You will find a large lot of Single, Double and Three-horse Trees of the best hickory, well ironed; also, Plow Hames.

You will see by calling at our works that we have too much at stake to do mean or shoddy work.

Thankful for past patronage and hoping for a continuance of the same,

We are respectfully,
CHAPMAN & LAMBERT.
