The fashion in bonnets is constantly changing
In style and material, texture and hue,
And somebody's fancy is ever wide ranging,
Inventing, of course, some atrocity new.
Some styles are quite hateful and others delightful;

But the latest invention is certainly frightful,
The conical, sugar loaf, six-story hat.

Ochiltree's last speech was not what might be regarded as a success. He said:

'Mr. Speaker, the generality of mankind in general are disposed to exercise oppressions on the generality of mankind in general,' when he was pulled down to his seat by a friend, with the remark—

'Tom, you better stop; you're coming out of the same hole you went in at.'—Anon.

'The development at the back of the head, my friends, indicates parental affection,' explained the phrenologist. Is this not so, my lad?'

'Naw.'

'What's that? You do not love your parents?'

A boy ten years old can stand out in the street of a quiet village on a calm summer afternoon and make the air quiver, and startle the dozing population out of a year's peace by shrieking to a boy three-quarters of a mile away. 'Oh, Skinnee! Comin' nout tafter supper? And the other lad will yell back with awful distinctness and care, 'Yes! Git yer nigger-shooter'n come to the auction store!' And they will converse in the same thrilling pitch and maddening force if they are only ten feet apart. But twenty or thirty years afterward either of those boys will get up to address a public meeting in a hall not fifty feet deep, and ten feet away from the speaker not a living soul can hear a word he says.—Hawkeye.

A belle was about to start for Sarat oga.—She had peered into the baggage room to see that her trunks were there. She came back in agitation.

'Blest if I'll ever believe a line I read again,' she said. 'The paper said there was a new law forbidding anybody to smash baggage. It's a lie. One of my trunks out there's got the lid whacked right off. I couldn't say a word, because I couldn't identify myself with the contents. I had trusted in the newspaper, don't you see, and packed some of the most interesting parts of my wardrobe right on top, and there they are, burst into full view. Oh, I wouldn't claim them for a thousand dollars.'—N. Y. Sun.

When a woman tries on a pair of new shoes she pulls them on part way carefully, twitches them off again to take a last look and see if she has got the right one, pulls them on again, looks at them dreadfully, says they are just right, then takes another look, stops suddenly to smooth out a wrinkle, twists around and surveys them sideways, exclaims, 'Mercy, how loose they are,' looks at them again square in front, works her feet about so that they won't hurt her quite so much, takes them off, looks at the heel, the toe, the bottom and the inside, puts them on again, walks up and down the room once or twice, remarks to her better half that she won't have them at any price, tilts down the mirror so she can see how they look turns in every possible direction, and nearly dislocates her neck, trying to see how they look from that way, backs off, steps up again, takes thirty or forty farewell looks, says they make her feet look awful big and will never do in the world, puts them off and on three or four times more, asks her husband what he thiuks about it, and pays no attention to what he says, goes through it all again, and finally says she will take them. It is a very simple matter, indeed. —Anon,

Once upon a time, when crowded about his presidential aspirations, Mr. Thurman replied: 'I really have no ambition in that direction.' A look of incredulity on every face was the only response. The Judge took in these looks and related a little story:

'One summer I was at the Oakland House, Maryland, spending a little vacation up in the cool mountain region. We got telling fish stories. I related something of my own experience when I was present and saw caught a catfish weighing ninety pounds. When I told the weight there was a general laugh, and I was humorously awarded the prize for telling fish stories. I quietly remarked to my incredulous friends that I hoped soon to convince them of the correctness of my story that in western waters there were catfish of ninety pounds weight. When I returned to Columbus I went to the leading restaurateur and instructed him to procure me the largest catfish that could possibly be secured. He reported in a few days that he had one. I walked over, and found an excellent specimen, weighing seventy-five pounds. I had him boxed and carefully packed in ice, and shipped him by express to my disbelieving friends at the Oakland. From the restaurateur I got all the recipes I could for catfish chowder, catfish steaks, stuffed catfish, roast, &c., and sent them on by mail. I telegraphed as follows: 'Skin your fish before you cook him,' a catfish's skin being so rank as to spoil the flesh when the fish is cooked with it on. They got my telegram and were puzzled. When the box arrived, dripping from the melting ice, they were more puzzled. The letter, which arrived by the same train as the fish, explained all.—They had a fine feast, and at it formally organized with a president and secretary, and passed the following resolution, which was sent to me:

"Resolved, That the truth of Allen G. Thurman's statements should never be questioned; that his fish stories are always absolutely true, especially his catfish stories."'—Cleveland Press.

Short Talks with the Boys.

'Come now let me ask you a few questions. What is a locomotive?'

'Why, it's a machine which draws the cars.'

'What is an engine?'

'Well, it's another machine to run mills, boats, factories, etc.'

'How wide is a railroad track?'

'Oh, five or six feet.'

'What is the weight of a flat car?'

'I dunno.'

'What is the cost of an ordinary passenger coach?'

'Never heard.'

'Ah, my lad! I just wish I was about fourteen years old and had the chances you are daily throwing away.'

'What would I do?'

'Why, I'd post myself. For one thing, I'd walk down to the depot, and when a locomotive brought in its train and went off to the round-house to be wiped up, I'd follow it and find out how it was made. I'd have a peep at every lever, and crank, and cog, and wheel, and rod. I'd know why and how steam exerted its power. I'd satisfy myself why that boiler mounted on wheels was able to pull and push. When I left the round-house I'd go to a factory and overhaul a stationary engine and see where the two differed. Then I'd get hold of some railroad man, and pump him until I was posted even as to the quantity of oil used to run a locomotive a hundred miles.'

'Why, what good would that do me?'

'Why? Because a born fool has just as good eyes as you have. He sees a train speeding along the track, and he realizes that it is a train. That is all you realize, although you have every chance to know more. I don't say that it will be money in your pocket to know these things, but it will be a satisfaction to you which money cannot buy. You never expect to visit the Cannibal Islands, but their location, number, products, area, etc., are given in geography to post you and broaden your mind.

'One of the grandest bussinesses of the age is railroading. Go down to the Union Depot and count the trains going out and coming in for an hour, and you will be amazed. Every one leaves on time—every one come in almost to the minute, barring accident. If it were not so, the business of the entire country would soon fall into confusion. The train which is due in Chicago at 8 o'clock A. M. or in Buffalo at noon, or in Cincinnati at 2 P. M., must be there to the minute if nothing breaks down. Passengers expect it—the post office officials, banks, merchants—everybody expects it, and all business arrangements are made accordingly.

'Have you any idea of the millions of money required to build, equip, and run a railroad.—Have you ever asked yourself how many locomotives, coaches, cars and men such a road as the Michigan Central must keep constantly employed? Did you ever figure on what a fortune it must cost each year to keep up all this rolling stock, track, stations, tanks, etc? And think o' the perfect system that prevails in all the departments. No trains leaves the depot until the gong strikes the exact minute; and from the time it leaves here until it reaches its destination it is under the watchful eye of the train dispatcher, and all its movements are known through the telegraph. Go down to the depot at 11 o'clock A. M., and ask the train dispatcher where the train is which left for the west three hours before, and he will locate it.

'Every conductor has his orders. He must run by these until the telegraph makes a change. There is a continual click! click! of the telegraph all along the line, and if there are fifty trains on the rails each one makes its run without bothering another. There must be a perfect system, and men must obey orders to the very letter.

'Ride the length of a railroad and you see piles of rails here, and heaps of ties there, old car-wheels and scrap-iron by the acre, and you must imagine that great recklessness prevails in the financial management. No corporation cuts expenses closer than a railroad. Every tie is counted—every car-wheel has its value—every hundred pounds of scrap-iron is looked after. On some roads the engineers are limited as to the amount of oil to be used each trip. It is even figured down just how long a wheel will run and how long an axle will last.

'People talk about the position of President of the United States as if it demanded great ability on the part of the incumbent. The active superintendent of a first-class railroad exercises five times the brain power required in any political office in the land. Think of the many stations along the route—the hundreds of section hands—the train men—the rolling stock—the purchasing, selling and repairing! He may not burden himself with every detail, but he must see that others do. He must have the head to control others' hands.

'As I said before, it may not be money in your pocket to know these things, but it will be food for the mind. You cannot post yourself too much. The mind is a book in which there is always room for another page.'—M. QUAD.

Precocious Comments.

'Mamma, where's papa gone to?' asked a little girl the other day. 'He's gone to town to earn more bread and butter for you, darling.' 'Oh, mamma! I wish he would sometimes earn buns,' sighed the child.

A little girl remarked to her mother: 'I am not afraid in the dark.' 'Of course not,' said the mother. 'I was afraid once, though, when I went into the pantry to get a tart,' she added. "What were you afraid of?' 'I was afraid I would not find the tart,' was the humorous reply.

A little boy who was asked if he had a good memory, said: 'No, but I have a good forgeteney.'

'Will you have a small piece of the light meat or a small piece of the dark?' asked Bob's uncle, as he carved the turkey at dinner. 'I'll have a piece of both,' said Bob.

'What is a lake?' asked the teacher. A bright little Irish boy raised his hand. 'Well, Mikey, what is it?' 'Sure it's a hole in the kettle, mum.'

'Why,' asked Professor Miller, 'is a good name of more value than riches?' And the smart bad boy at the foot of the class said he reckoned it was because it was so much rarer. He was marked ten plus.

On one occasion when Sir Walter Scott was in Ireland he came to a gate he could not open. At that moment a shoeless lad came up and opened it for him. He wished to make him a present, intending to give him sixpence; he found he had only a shilling. 'Here my boy,' said he, 'is a shilling, and remember that you owe me sixpence.' 'Och!' said the lad, 'may your honor live till I pay you!' 'How,' remarked Sir Walter, afterward, 'could any one pay a more delicate compliment? It simply wished me immortality.'

When the overheated small boy takes a swim
He won't go home until his hair has dried
Lest his watchful mother should catch onto him
And undertake to tan his youthful hide.

When the small boy wants some fishing worms to find
He will spade an acre field and not feel tired,
Though for digging he is not at all inclined,
And to weed a garden never could be hired.

ALABASTINE

A Superior Substitute for Kalsomine, etc.

Alabastine is the first and only preparation made from calcined gypsum rock, for application to walls with a brush, and is fully covered by patents and perfected by many years of experiments. It is the only permanent wall finish, and admits of applying as many coats as desired, one over another, to any hard surface, without danger of scaling, or noticeably adding to the thickness of the wall, which is strengthened and improved by each additional coat, from time to time. It is the only material for the purpose not dependent upon glue for its adhesiveness. Alabastine is hardened on the wall by age, moisture, etc., while all kalsomines or whitening preparations have inert soft chalks and glue for their base, which are rendered soft or scaled in a very short time.

In addition to the above advantages, Alabastine is less expensive, as it requires but one-half the number of pounds to cover the same amount of surface with two coats, is ready for use by adding water, and easily applied by any one.

For sale by your Paint Dealer. Ask for Circular containing Samples of 12 tints, manufactured only by the ALABASTINE CO., M. B. CHURCH, Manager, Grand Rapids, Mich.

is the only Machine with a successful Phosphate Attachment for dropping in the hill. The Evans is a strong, simple machine; excelled by none as to quality and price.

BUCKEYE RIDING CULTIVATOR!

This implement is well known in Kent County. It excells all other machines in the following points:

It has Rotary Shields, the best and only practical shield made. The shovels are strong, scour well, are adjustable to throw earth to or from the corn. Depth is regulated from the seat without stopping the team. Has high wheels, and will pass over corn in the last plowing. Is worth twice its cost in preparing fallow and corn ground for wheat.

Is easier to manage than any other Cultivator now before the public.

Buckeye Twine Binder

Handy Double Adjustable wheel, B shaped cutter box.

Easily managed, perfectly automatic.

The Buckeye is an old standard machine, and was as near perfect three years ago as other Binders are to-day

TO FARMERS

Engines and Vibrators

THE N. S. & CO. TRACTION ENGINE

Is the Strongest built, Most Powerful and Easiest Handled Machine yet produced. These points were thoroughly illustrated on the streets in Chestertown, Tuesday, April 22d last. All persons who saw how quickly our competitors left the field will readily understand that they did so because they saw that their engine would not handle as easily and quickly as the N. S. & Co. Engine. We challenge any and all engines on the market for quality of material, strength of build, finish, ease of management, economy in fuel and water, and power.

VIBRATOR.

Nichols Shepard & Co., of Battle Creek, Michigan, built the first Vibrator ever produced, and have continued to build them for 33 years. So sweeping has been the success of these machines that all other builders of threshing machines have been driven to imitating them. The most valuable features of these machines are fully covered by letters patent and cannot be used on any other machine.

Simplicity, Durability, Ease of management, Great Capacity are the strong points of this machine.

Our 36 inch Vibrator with a sufficient numbers of teams and men will, if kept full, thresh sure and clean 1800 bushels per day, and do better than any apron machine ever made. We leave to your own engineers and threshermen to pass judgment on these machines.

Repairs for Both Always on Hand.

BUCKEYE GLASS-FEED DRILL

NO MORE CLOGGING.

NO MORE RUSTING.

NO MORE UNEVEN SEEDING OF PHOSPHATE.

The Phosphate Feeders in this Drill are made of ¼ inch thick glass. Won't rust, won't corrode. Phosphate drops in plain sight of man following the Drill. Quantity changed from 100 to 800 lbs. per acre in one second. No cogs to change. This Drill is the best result of all previous Grain Drills, combined and improved. We noticed one crop of wheat a short distance above Chestertown, so poorly drilled that the owner will lose enough wheat to pay for two Drills. No implement on the farm should be selected with more care than a Grain Drill. Upon its good work depends the whole crop of wheat. This is an important matter. The number of these Drills to be obtained this year is limited, and farmers must place orders at once to be sure of obtaining them.
