National Democratic Ticket.

FOR PRESIDENT:

GROVER CLEVELAND,
OF NEW YORK.

FOR VICE-PRESIDENT:

THOS. A. HENDRICKS,
OF INDIANA.

FOR CONGRESS:

CHAS. H. GIBSON,
OF TALBOT COUNTY.

AT the recent election in Maine, the question of prohibition was voted upon. There was a curious interest to know how the Republican Presidential nominee would vote upon the question. Mr. Blaine dodged the issue. He voted neither for nor against prohibition.

ANOTHER great bank defalcation is one of the sensations of the week. The national bank of New Jersey, of New Brunswick, has been shown to be a million dollars short. This vast amount was gambled away in stock speculations by the president and cashier. These officers, on being found out, did not employ the usual plan of skipping to Canada. They both committed suicide.

WE are glad to note that a number of Kent county farmers are turning their attention to improved breeds of stock. In these days, the farmer who wastes his substance raising inferior stock will get left just as surely as the farmer who spends his energies in third-rate farming. The farmer whose grass is consumed by a three-dollar sheep or who can make his land produce only ten bushels of wheat to the acre, and who has also to contribute his portion of protection tax toward keeping the factories open, will find it troublesone to square accounts on the 31st day of December.

SOMEBODY has remarked that Mr. Arthur does not seem to know that a presidential election is near at hand. He is enjoying himself as a beau of the first water, and does not begin to take the interest in the campaign he would have taken if the Republican party had shown the good taste to nominate him. The departments too are lethargic, and the Blaine managers are meeting with trouble in collecting funds to help pull their nominee through. Mr. Arthur is not working the machine as he would have worked it in the interest of Chester A. Arthur.

THE new Maryland oyster law, since work has partially begun under it, appears to be more of a complicated puzzle than ever. It seems that no clear understanding as to the real purport of certain provisions of the law can be had, until these provisions are passed upon by the courts in test cases that shall be brought for alleged violations.

There is a demand for oysters far beyond the ability of the tongers to supply. The demand is likely to continue greater than the supply, until the dredging season opens. There is reported no marked increase in the beds resulting from the five-month rest, which they have been allowed. Marked effects however, are not to be expected in a single season. The wisdom of giving the beds a rest during the entire spawning season, can only be tested after a trial extending through a number of years.

THE election for Governor, held in Maine on last Monday, gave the Republicans a majority of 16,000. This is a much larger majority than the Republicans got in 1882. Certainly. All this is true, but it is sheer nonsense for the Republican journals to whoop up the Maine election as a startling Republican victory. It was understood in Maine and everywhere else, that the September election in the State would be taken as an indicator of the State's attitude toward Blaine. State pride will of course carry over many Maine Democrats to the Republican party this year. The only wonder is that the Republican majority is not more than 16,000. If it had been 30,000 instead, there would have been no surprise in Democratic quarters. In Vermont, where State pride did not enter as a factor the Republican majority was greatly reduced, at the election recently held, as compared with majorities of former years,

The Chestertown Transcript is preaching "free trade" to the Democracy of Kent. If that paper was not such an obscure organ, the State managers would doubtless repudiate it, for no matter how they inwardly feel about the tariff, they dare not declare publicly in opposition to protection. If the laboring classes of Kent have the average intelligence, and we doubt not they have, they will no longer call themselves the kind of Democrats the Transcript represents.—Cambridge Era.

The patent-outside sheet published half in Baltimore and half at Cambridge and known as the Dorchester Era, is not by any means an "obscure organ." The ancient hand-press upon which the inside of this powerful journal is worked off once a week is doubtless one among the great engines that is contributing to the civilization of the world; if the crank of this great engine should happen at any time to break, or if the outside of this powerful journal should on some occasion fail to reach Cambridge in due time, we can well understand how nineteenth century civilization would receive a great shock. The Transcript will be greatly obliged to the brilliant individual who works the crank of the engine that turns out the inside of this powerful journal, if he will bring his magnificent intellect to bear and tell us exactly how the laboring classes of Kent, or of Dorchester, are benefitted by high-tariff taxation.

MR. GIBSON ACCEPTS.

A LETTER WHICH WASTES NO WORDS, BUT USES ENOUGH.

To Col. Samuel Wetherill, Sr., Chairman: Messrs. John W. Smith, J. T. Hayman, W. H. Gale, Samuel Cacy, John F. Dawson, Wm. McKenney and William F. Applegarth: GENTLEMEN:—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 25th inst., advising me officially of my nomination by the democratic convention at Cambaidge, as a candidate to represent the First Congressional District, of Maryland in the next Congress of the United States.

My selection by such a body of representative democrats of this congressional district, pronounced with such flattering unanimity, and its announcement by you accompanied with such generous expressions of personal and political confidence and esteem, command my profound and heartfelt acknowledgment. With an abiding sense of the great responsibilities I assume, and with a grateful appreciation of the high honor conferred, I accept the nomination; and shall, if the choice of the convention be ratified by my countrymen in November next, dedicate my best energies to the faithful discharge of the duties imposed by the high position. I am gentlemen, your obliged and obedient servant,

CHAS. H. GIBSON.

Our Washington Letter.

WASHINGTON, September, 5, 1884.

Quiet still prevails in political circles in Washington. 'Nothing new of importance' is the invariable word given out at the headquarters of the Congressional Committees when inquiry is made thereat.

The Republicans are endeavoring to get up something of a hurrah over the Vermont election, but their efforts in this direction has no more effect than the announcement that the Dutch have taken Holland has on the people of that nationality. The fact is a Vermont election doesn't indicate anything as to the probable result of a national election. If it did, it would be the Democrats who should rejoice over the outcome of the late contest in the Green Mountain State, since if the Republican majority falls off throughout the country as it did in that State this week, we cannot see that they can have a ghost of a chance of electing their candidate for President.

It will not be until the October States are heard from that good ground for predictions as to the outcome of the national contest will be afforded.

The news from Ohio, as far as there is any, is most encouraging. The managers who brought that State so grandly through the battle of last year, have the reins in hand again, and it is certain that they will do the best that can be done in the Buckeye State, and that means a glorious triumph for the Democracy.

The Death of Secretary Folger shocked everybody by its suddenness. It was not generally known that he was seriously ill. He was an honorable man, a good Secretary of the Treasury, and an upright man in every station and position of his life. This much may be said of him while it can be stated with equal truth that but for his ambition he might be alive to-day. The disappointment occasioned by his overwhelming defeat in the contest for Governor of New York against Mr. Cleveland was so severe as to hasten the end of his life.

One of your corps of correspondents who is now cavorting about in the highlands of the Virginias, sends an account of his observations, political and social, there which may not be without interest to the readers of the Transcript, so we give his letter, which is dated at the White Sulphur Springs, West Va.

What a grand, gay, glorious place old "White Sulphur" is! Over half a thousand people are here. And why do they come, do you ask? One of our American rhyme-makers says:

"They read, and they write, and they dance,
(With other unspeakable things,)
And they pray, and they play, and they pay,
And that's what they do at the Springs."

They do all these things, and sometimes more of the last mentioned thing than is agreeable, and at some places more than they ought to, and had our poet been at the White Sulphur this season he would in all likelihood have added: they talk politics and the New Orleans Exposition, for these themes are on everybody's tongue.

On the first mentioned topic there is scarcely anything heard but demand for reform—a change of administration and honest government. The scandals touching the private character of the two prominent candidates are not talked about. It is their public records that are looked at, and that of Mr. Cleveland meets the requirements of the people.

From my conversation with prominent party leaders who are here, these things have been clearly pointed out: The Democrats will carry West Virginia and in all probability Ohio in October, and Virginia and Indiana will certainly go for Cleveland and Hendricks in November. There is less opportunity of judging of the temper of New York from this point, as there are very few here from the Empire State, but what I have said of the four Southern and Western Commonwealths may be set down as facts.

ORDER OF PUBLICATION.

MARY S. HYNSON, VIRGINIA W. MOODY, vs.
WILLIAM T. HYNSON, ANDREW J. HYNSON, FRANKLIN P. HYNSON, GEORGE W. HYNSON, ROMEY W. HYNSON, MACY B. HYNSON, COREY C. HYNSON.

In the Circuit Court for Kent county, in Equity.

THE object of this suit is to obtain judicial construction of the last will and testament of Elizabeth Walker, late of Kent county, deceased, dated the Eighth day of June, in the Year Eighteen Hundred and Forty-eight, and duly probated on the 21st day of February, in the year Eighteen Hundred and Forty-nine; and also to obtain a decree for the sale of certain land devised under said last will and testament.

The bill of complaint states that the said Elizabeth in her aforesaid last will and testament, among other things devised the farm she bought from William Apsley and others, subject to the life estate therein of Mrs. Wroth, the widow of Wm. Wroth, to her daughter—the said complainant—Mary S. Hynson for life, and after her death to her grandson, Christopher C. Hynson, (the son of said complainant) in fee simple, upon the condition when he became entitled to have and possess the said farm, he should pay to his sister, Virginia W. Hynson (the said complainant, Virginia W. Moody), and his sister, each the sum of one hundred dollars; but, provided, if he should die before he got possession of said farm, that it should be divided between his sisters, as appears by a certified copy of said will filed as a part of the bill.

That at the time of the making and execution of said will, the said Christopher C. Hynson had only two sisters, Virginia W. Moody, the said complainant, and Emma A. Hynson. That the said Emma A. Hynson departed this life an infant and without issue, the said testatrix and also her mother, the said complainant, Mary S. Hynson, living, and leaving her brothers, Andrew J. Hynson, William T. Hynson, Franklin P. Hynson, Christopher C. Hynson, George W. Hynson, and her sister Virginia, her only heirs-at-law. That the widow of the aforesaid William Wroth died many years ago.

That since the death of the aforesaid Mrs. Wroth, the said complainant, Mary S. Hynson, has had and now has the possession of said farm as devisee for life under the will.

That the said Christopher C. Hynson before he became entitled to have and possess the aforesaid farm, died, to wit: in the year Eighteen Hundred and Eighty-two, leaving his children, Romey W. Hynson, Macy B. Hynson and Corey C. Hynson, his only heirs-at-law, and Mary F. Hynson, his widow, and the said complainant, Virginia W. Moody, his only sister.

That the buildings and other improvements on the aforesaid farm are in a dilapidated and ruinous condition and that the land has depreciated in value.

That these complainants are advised under a proper construction of the aforesaid devise of said farm, since the said Emma A. Hynson died in the life time of said testatrix, and the said Christopher C. Hynson having survived the said Emma, and died before the termination of the life estate of his mother, the said complainant, Mary S. Hynson, that upon his death the remainder in said farm vested in the said complainant, Virginia W. Moody, and that they can sell, and by a joint deed convey a valid fee simple title in and to said farm.

The bill further says that the said complainants are prevented from making an advantageous sale of the aforesaid farm, because of the claim and apprehension on the part of the said Andrew J. Hynson, William T. Hynson, Franklin P. Hynson, George W. Hynson and the aforesaid heirs of Christopher C. Hynson, as the heirs-at-law of the said Emma A. Hynson, with the complainant, Virginia W. Moody, have the remainder in an undivided moiety of the aforesaid farm.

And the bill further says that it would be greatly to the interest and advantage of all the parties entitled, to have the said farm sold, and the net proceeds arising from such sale so invested that the said complainant, Mary S. Hynson, may receive the interest thereon during her life, and after her death, the person or persons entitled to the principal may receive the same.

And that said Franklin P. Hynson and George W. Hynson are non-residents of the State of Maryland.

It is therefore ordered this 11th day of August, A. D. 1884, that the complainants, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Kent county once in each of four successive weeks before the 12th day of September, 1884, give notice to Franklin P. Hynson and Geo. W. Hynson, the non-resident defendants, of the object and substance of this bill, and warn them to appear in this court in person or by attorney, on or before the 12th day of December, 1884, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

TO THE FARMERS

—OF—

KENT, QUEEN ANNE'S & CECIL

IT is universally acknowledged by the most practical farmers that the Ohio Chilled Plow is the best plow in the world for neatness of work, and lightness of draft to the team. As I have ordered a large number of these plows, both two and three-horse, farmers will do well to give me an early call.

We also keep on hand, the Old Reliable Concave Nos. 9, 10 and 11, Polished Minor and Horton, Wiley Nos. 3 and 4, and Two-Furrowed Plows, and Harrows, Twin, Single A, and Double A A, Cultivators and Cultivator Teeth unsurpassed by any manufacture. Single, Double, 3 and 4 Horse-Trees and Hames.

As there have been a great many Chilled Plows sold in these counties, and as farmers have been put to a great deal of trouble to get Castings for them, if they will only give the name and number of the Plow, I will endeavor to keep them on hand at my shops in Galena and Chestertown. I always have on hand Plain and Slip Shares for the Ohio, Oliver, Roland, Advance and Syracuse.

If any of you are in need of anything in my line, please give me a call, as I intend to sell them low for the cash.

Thankful for past patronage, I solicit a continuance of the same.

WANAMAKER'S.

Philadelphia, September 8, 1884.

What happens to a maker of any article of general use who surpasses other makers who make the same thing? He gathers the trade. Nothing but woful mismanagement can keep him from heading his industry, whatever it is.

There's a maker of cashmeres who does that; Lupin. There are many other makers of cashmere; a great many others as good as the makers of other like stuffs. But, when we put their cashmeres side by side with Lupin's, price by price, to be looked at and felt of, taken or rejected, by ladies who wear them, Lupin's are taken and the others rejected with almost unanimous judgment. There is, something in the feel of the goods, something that responds to the touch rather than sight, a certain solidity added to softness, a certain firmness in the very delicacy of the fibre itself, something alluring, something assuring, that wins the satisfied choice. If Lupin's weave is not there, the others are soft and smooth and pleasing enough. Comparison alone brings out the supreme refinement of work and material that cannot be accidental. It is work of a master; material refined by a master's skill.

There is no Lupin. The famous maker has done his work and gone. His fame is entrusted to worthy successors who honor the name by keeping the factory standard up. The supremacy of the name is made the more significant by the very fact that the winner of the unquestioned laurel is out of the race. There is no longer any personal triumph in the name. There is a fortune for the inheritors of its use. There is release from watchfulness for the merchant. There is confidence for the buyer. There is a standard of magnificent attainment for the makers of similar stuffs. There is cheer for deserving in every sort of industry. The world is a gainer every way.

We are led to these pleasant reflections by the rather prosaic fact that a new lot of Lupin's 50-cent cashmeres has come; twenty colors or more. But that's no wonderful thing. We had already about the same colors in the finer grades of Lupin's cashmeres, 60, 75, 85 cents and a dollar. They are constantly coming and going. The new are not new, and the old are not old. When you look at them piled on the shelves, it never occurs to you, "Are they new or old?" "Are they Lupin's?" "They are." And then you wonder whether you are not going to pay something for the prestige of an eminent name; and you want to see other makers' cashmeres. So we also keep them. But we try not to keep anything to look at and never to sell; and, when we buy cashmeres other than Lupin's, we are apt to be sparing. We can't lay them in with so generous hand.

On the whole there is no other collection of cashmeres in town that approaches our own, especially when the range is widened a little and kindred fabrics taken in. In town did we say? Is there any beyond Jersey? Where, anywhere, is there a store that gathers so for rich and poor alike? Where, anywhere, a store that makes the trade of the rich so help the trade of the poor, and the trade of the poor so help the trade of the rich? But that is another subject
