—Mr. Joel C. Slaughter has evaporated about 40,000 pounds of fruit at his dryery this season.

—Two Frenchmen and a tame bear gave street exhibitions to admiring audiences in Chestertown on Monday.

—Dr. Caldwell, the Presiding Elder of the M. E. Church of this district, preached in Chestertown last Sunday morning.

—A great many Kent county, Md., people attended the Dover fair last week. There were well on to a hundred from Chestertown alone. All parts of the county besides were represented.

—Fire was communicated from an engine on the Baltimore & Delaware Bay Railroad to a corn shock in Mr. Charles Wickes' field on Friday afternoon, and did considerable damage before it was extinguished.

—Smuggler was yet in bad condition, and did not do himself justice, at the Dover fair. There are a great many people in this county who will never rest satisfied until he and Cyclops come together again.

—The Esther Oratorio again to-night, which is the last night. Seats were all taken last night, and those desiring comfortable seats this evening, will do well to apply early. Tickets and diagram of seats at J. K. Aldridge's.

—The town commissioners have laid a surface sewer from opposite Mr. George McWhorter's residence to Cross street, running thence down Broad street to the corner of the Episcopal Church, from which point there is a natural drain. The sewer is lined with brick and stone.

—A partial eclipse of the moon last Saturday evening was plainly visible in this locality. When first observed the eclipse was very nearly a total one, but the shadow upon the moon's face grew less rapidly and in the space of an hour she presented a full face, as bright as on a December night.

—There will be a public meeting of the 4th district Cleveland, Hendricks and Gibson club at the Court House in Chestertown on Friday evening. The meeting will be addressed by H. H. Barroll, Esq., and by T. B. Gardner, Esq. The meeting next week will probably be addressed by speakers from a distance. The meeting next week will be on Wednesday evening, the regular meeting night for the club.

—The valuable Chestertown dog has recently been amusing himself after his favorite manner of killing poultry and sheep. H. W. Carville recently lost forty turkeys; E. N. Roland, eleven; W. H. Brown and others lost a number. Fifteen dogs have been killed. We understand that Mr. E. J. Watson lost a number of sheep by dogs last week. It is pleasant to think that fifteen of these valuable dogs have gone to join their ancestors in the happy hunting grounds. It is doubtless much pleasanter to the farmers to think of them as hunting the spirits of departed turkeys and sheep, than it is to have them do the hunting in the flesh.

—The County Commissioners on last Tuesday appointed the following to serve as judges of election in the various districts.

1st Dist.—Eugene Gooding, George A. Ireland, Thos. F. J. Smith.

2d Dist.—Daniel U. Dewees, H. Creighton Wallis, C. B. Krusen.

3rd Dist.—Samuel H. Crawford, James S. Harris, Harrison I. Parsons.

4th Dist. 1st precinct.—Jno. R. Gray, L. S. Fowler, Jas. W. Lambert,

2d Precinct.—Thos. D. Fance, Gustavus Startt, C. G. Hadaway.

5th Dist.—James L. Beck, Wm. F. Baker, Wm. W. Coleman.

—Edward Saulsbury, white, and Louis Bowser a young colored man, both at work for Mr. J. W. Hubbard, in Broad Neck, had an altercation on Tuesday, Sept. 23 during which the latter struck Saulsbury on the head with a stone or other hard substance, facturing his skull, and from which he continued to suffer intensely until relieved by death Wednesday night of last week. The facts being made known to Coroner Bordley he summoned a jury and held an inquest on the body on Thursday: After hearing the evidence and a post mortem by Drs. Price and Hines the jury returned the following verdict: "That the said Edward Saulsbury came to his death by a hit from a stone or some hard substance by Louis Bowser, colored, on Tuesday, Sept 23, 1884." Bowser was arrested by Sheriff Parsons several days before Saulsbury's death and lodged in jail. It is said that both parties had been drinking on the day of the fatal occurrence.

—His Honor Judge Wickes on Thursday of last week drew the following jurors for the October Term of the Circuit Court, which begins on the third Monday, the 20th:

J. Frank Wilson, administrator of Geo. W. Howard, deceased, filed his account of sales of the personal estate of the said deceased.

On application, Milton Melvin was appointed guardian to Francis W., and Edwin B. Melvin, and Samuel E. Moffett.

—The meeting at Kennedyville on last Saturday evening under charge of the Cleveland, Hendricks and Gibson club of the second district, was largely attended. The meeting was held in the new hall, which has a very pleasant audience room. The assemblage was composed pretty equally of the old democracy and of the young democracy,—veterans whose political experience dates back to the days of General Jackson, and young men whose maiden vote will be deposited for Grover Cleveland. Thomas B. Gardner of Chestertown was the first speaker introduced. Mr. Gardner discussed the records of the nominees for president of the two leading parties. C. G. Woodall discussed a protective tariff in its relationship to agricultural communities. James A. Pearce outlined the history and policy of the Republican party from its origin down. Mr. Pearce discussed at fuller length the more recent record of the party, and gave very special attention to the record of the present nominee of the party. James W. Hurtt of Locust Grove, was called for after Mr. Pearce. Mr. Hurtt after repeated calls rose in his seat. He began by saying that he did not intend to make a speech, but he kept the house in a good humor for about twenty minutes in a speech abounding in humor and anecdote. A number of second district citizens were called for, but each one excused himself.

The Second district club of which Mr. L. C. Justis a representative of the young democracy is president, is in a flourishing condition.

Crushed to Death by a Wheat Thresher.

A wheat threshing machine, drawn by a traction engine, came up from Quaker Neck on last Tuesday about noon time and passed up High street, Chestertown. The engine and thresher halted a short time in market space. A crowd of small boys gathered around, and when the engine started a number of them clambered up on the machine to ride. Among these was Howard Pippin, the nine-year-old son of Mr. R. K. Pippin. At Wheatley's corner, the engine turned into West Kent street. Howard, it seems, was riding on the tongue of the thresher. As the engine turned his hat blew off, and he jumped off and ran to get it. He succeeded in getting his hat, and started to scramble on again. He failed and fell, and the threshing machine passed over his body. When the machine had passed over him, he got upon his feet and walked a few steps, then fell and immediately became unconscious. In fifteen minutes after the accident he was dead. When the news of the accident was taken to the child's mother, she was terribly shocked and fainted. She has taken the matter very hard, and is said to be partially paralyzed. Mr. R. K. Pippin, the father, was away from home at the time of the accident. Mr. David Ford, the driver of the engine, was not aware of the accident until he had returned from delivering the engine and thresher. The sad fate of little Howard Pippin teaches a lesson with regard to clambering on any kind of moving vehicle, which parents should impress upon their children.

A U. S. Signal Station at Chestertown.

Dr. Bardeen lately received a communication from the Signal Service Department at Washington in regard to taking meteorological observations for use in making out weather reports, and gathering data respecting the various phenomena of storms. It is becoming more and more apparent, as the laws governing such phenomena are better understood, that storms of all kinds are susceptible of being classified and their causes ascertained. Electric and magnetic phenomena, together with variations in temperature and pressure are among the principal causes. The object of the Signal Service office is to collect data in detail from a large number of local observers competent to take such data, and from the mass of such data to evolve matter of value in predicting storms and also to aid in rendering the weather reports more reliable. The Weather Bureau will furnish all necessary blanks, forms and instructions, and Dr. Bardeen has signified his willingness to co-operate to the extent that his facilities will allow. If the college authorities saw fit to equip the college with the proper apparatus we see no good reason why Washington College might not be made a permanent observing station for the Weather Bureau. The work involved would certainly be good discipline for the advanced students under the Professor's direction, at the same time taking no time from their regular studies. Storm signals could be run up on the flag pole and thus notify quite an area of country around about. We also presume the people of Chestertown would feel some pride in having her chief Educational Institution thus aiding in what is now admittedly a good thing—viz. "Old Probabilities."

THE EMMA A. FORD.

GREETED ADMIRINGLY ON HER ARRIVAL IN CHESTERTOWN.

Two or three hundred people met and welcomed the new steamer "Emma A. Ford" of the Chester River line, on her first arrival in Chestertown on last Tuesday afternoon, and a stream of visitors continued until the sun went down.

The new boat is very handsome. Inside and out, she is painted in quiet, tasteful shades. In general appearance, she is strikingly like the B. S. Ford, but inspection shows her to be larger, and to possess more ample accommodations. All the passenger rooms are larger than were those of the burned boat, from the ladies saloon to the main saloon. The ladies saloon is tastefully carpeted, and the upholstery is in crimson silk plush. The wood work in the ladies saloon is in cherry. The passenger room on the lower deck is roomy and has side seats in cherry. Below deck the dining-room and kitchen accommodations are much larger than those of the burned boat. Below deck front, where the bar of the B. S. Ford was located, there is a large and comfortably furnished smoking room. The new boat at present has no bar. There is a stairway front and aft, leading up to the main saloon, and also a stairway connecting the main saloon with the ladies cabin. The main saloon is very perceptibly wider and longer than was that of the B. S. Ford. The saloon is carpeted in body brussels of a handsome patern. The side wood-work of the main saloon is paneled, and painted in a subdued gray, with delicate brown trimmings, and here and there a touch of gilt. The skylights of stained glass make the light of the saloon very pleasant. The upholstery is in walnut and cherry. Aft on the upper deck, there is a pleasant open air saloon very similar to that of the B. S. Ford. On the first deck forward, is a large baggage room. The gangways and freight accommodations of the first deck are much roomier than those of the old boat.

All who visited the Emma A. Ford on Tuesday, including among the visitors a large number of ladies, were greatly pleased with the new steamer, and expressions of admiration were many and enthusiastic. Capt. McConnor, who is very popular with Chestertowners, was cordially greeted after his long absence. Two large and handsome boquets, which set in vases on the shelf in front of the large mirror, with Captain McConnor's name on a card attached to each, demonstrate that the Captain's popularity is not confined to the masculine part of the traveling public. The Captain is again looking smiling and happy, though he was anything else than smiling and happy when the B. S. was burned. "How does she work, Captain?" "How do you like her?" were asked him time and again. "Oh, she works like a charm. She handles beautifully," said the Captain each time. President Warfield and Doctor Ford also came over on the first trip, and politely assisted in showing the visitors around and in answering questions. The boat was detained at pretty nearly every wharf she stopped at by admiring visitors who desired to inspect her, and was consequently late in reaching Chestertown. Mr. Bush, the engineer of the B. S. Ford, is engineer on the new boat; Mr. W. P. Howard is mate, Mr. Armon Godwin purser and Mr. P. McFeely purchasing agent.

AN OYSTER CASE.

"BUYING TO CARRY" DIFFERENT FROM "CATCHING AND CARRYING."

Justice Burgess of Chestertown had an oyster case before him last Tuesday involving a new question. Capt. J. B. Willson arrested S. T. Craner, of Crumpton, for carrying oysters without State license. He pleaded guilty of the charge but interposed the plea that he had license to catch, which under the decision of the State Fishery Board entitled him to carry. The point was made against him that he had not only been carrying his own catch, but had been a purchaser, and was then engaged in carrying as a business and required a State license as a carrier. The justice thought the point a good one and held the party in $300 bail for court—Dr. F. N. Sheppard, of Crumpton, entering bail. It was thought that the justice had jurisdiction in the case—Sec. 22 of the oyster law implying this—but upon application to Judge Wickes he gave the opinion that the circuit court was the proper tribunal for trial.

Mr. Craner evidently had no intention of violating the law, and when he took out his license to catch he acted under the advice of Dr. Sheppard and other intelligent gentlemen, who believed that the decision of the State Fishery Board allowed to carry as well as catch—and that his carrying was not intended to be restricted to his own catch.—News.

The Queen Esther Opera.

A full house greeted the first presentation of the Queen Esther Oratorio on Tuesday evening. Every possible space in the court house not taken up by the stage, was made to do service in seating the audience.

The following principal parts were filled as follows: Queen, Minnie F. Usilton; Queen's Attendants, Annie Estes, Gertie Stewart; Queen's Maids, Fannie Russell, Lillie Fowler; Queen's Pages, Mamie Taylor, Palmer Carroll; Zeresh, Mollie Parks; Zeresh's Child, Amy Russell; Zeresh's Attendants, Effie Taylor, Lottie Russell; Prophetess, was to have been taken by Miss Bell Pippen, but being unavoidably kept away, the part was taken by Miss Mary R. Bowers; Mordecai's Sister, Mary R. Bowers; Maid of Honor, Addie Brice; Angel, Mary Chapman; King, was to have been filled by J. W. Bordley, but he was kept away by death of relative, and the part was taken by Mr Snyder of Centreville; King's Pages, Tom Quimby, Preston Usilton; Haman, John N. Dodd; Mordecai, W. Melvin; High Priest, John W. Finch; Hegai, W. A. Biscoe; Scribe, W. W. Chapman; Herald and Harbonah, Thomas Bowers; Guards, J. D. Bacchus, Larry Russell, J. N. Wheatley, Fred Usilton; Organists, Lulie Lambert, Sadie Wright; Cornetist, H. L. Dodd.

The first scene of the first act discloses the Persian court, with Haman in the foreground, and a group of beautiful maidens singing "Long Live Haman." The second scene of the first act, represents Haman petitioning the King and closes with a tableau. The second act opens with Mordica lamenting the condition of his people, and in this act, Esther first appears. In act the third, complying with the objurgation of Mordecai, Esther appears before the King. In the fourth act, the first scene again brings Haman and Zeresh to the front, with a chorus of maidens in the background. This scene closes with a fine tableau. In the second scene of the fourth act, the King consults Haman as to what shall be done for the man whom the King delighteth to honor. The fifth act is divided into a number of scenes. In the first scene, Haman heads the trumphal march, proclaiming Mordecai as the man whom the King delighteth to honor. In this scene, too, all the performers to the number of a hundred enter. There is a large chorus of boys and girls in fancy costumes introduced, and the marching is very pretty. In the second scene Haman and Zeresh bemoan the humiliation to which Haman was subjected in proclaiming Mordecai. The third scene is the banquet scene in which Esther denounces Haman, and the King condemns Haman to hang on his own scaffold. Haman is hung on his own scaffold, in full view of the audience.

The audience was caused to smile several times during the performance, at places where no smile properly came in. In the banquet scene, the King and Haman in drinking their wine smacked their lips, and drank with a gusto that seemed to indicate that it was very good wine indeed, and that it was rarely they got hold of such a fine brand. The special compliment which the King and Haman paid the wine may be accounted for from the fact that each comes from a local-option community. The hanging of Haman in view of the audience was also a little shocking, but as Haman is given an opportunity to come down and sing in the last chorus, perhaps the fair thing was done by Haman after all.

The performance altogether, however, was very well rendered and very entertaining, and did credit to our local talent and to the capacity of Prof. Wyatt as a trainer. Of course it is not to be expected that an opera with briefly-trained amateur singers can be presented with the perfection in which it is rendered by trained professional singers. The stage and other accommodations for presenting the performance are also woefully inadequate. The romantic story of Queen Esther was very touchingly brought out, however, and the singing of many of the parts gained the full appreciation of the audience. Miss Minnie Usilton, who took the character of Queen, sang her parts with much feeling and effectiveness. Miss Mollie Parks made a very handsome Zeresh and acted and sang with a full understanding of the character she represented. Miss Mary Bowers, Miss Mary Chapman and Miss Addie Brice also took prominent parts with much credit. Mr. Snyder the King, Mr. John N. Dodd as Haman, Mr. John W. Finch as the High Priest and Mr. W. Melvin as Mordecai each won the favor of the house.

The house was filled again on Wednesday evening, and the attendance this evening will also most likely be large.

The Cyclops-Smuggler Race.

Ed. Transcript—We see by Mr. E. B. Emory's advertised statements and by sundry articles in the Queen Anne's papers, that the Kent County Agricultural Association has been grossly misrepresented. We deem it just to the public and to ourselves, to state the facts in the case. The Association offered a sweepstake purse for the two noted horses, Cyclops and Smuggler, to bring them to notice for stock purposes. Our secretary was instructed to communicate with Mr. Emory, which he did; stating conditions.

In reply, after making some grave charges against the Association (for which a member moved his letter be sent back), he offered to make the race, national rules to govern. Now we will see how far he wants to be governed by national rules. He said in his letter: "It is not usual to pay entrance in sweepstake purses." We will only refer to rule No. 2, sec. 4, and rule No. 11.

Rule 2, sec. 4, says,—"Nominations for sweepstakes shall not be privileged to compete unless the payments have been made as required by the conditions. [Advertised conditions]. And nominations for premiums may be rejected when not accompanied by the entrance money."

Rule 11 says—"In all match races, these rules shall govern, unless the contrary be expressly stipulated and assented to by the club, association or proprietor of the course over which the race is to come off."

But rule No. 3, section 3, says: all entries shall be governed by the published conditions, and shall be bound for the entrance fee, and does not allow one nominator privileges differing from another, and if we allowed Mr. Emory fifty dollars out of the purse, if he lost, we were bound by the rules to allow Mr. Hines the same, which he has received. When Mr. Emory brought his horse to the stand, he and his horse were in the hands of the judges and bound for the conditions, which may be seen by reference to rule No. 3, section 1, and rule 17, section 1.

But Mr. Emory set aside the sweepstake, when he asked and accepted the conditions of a second money to pay expenses if he lost. He made no claim in case he won.

Mr. Emory charges the Association with not dealing squarely. He has been paid, after deducting entrance fee, four hundred dollars on the race, and if he feels aggrieved he has his redress through the board of appeals. We think he had better retire himself and all his horses from the track or read the rules by which he proposes to be governed.

He says the track was no better than a fresh plowed field. The track was in good order on that day, as was shown by the time his horse made the next day,

We have made this statement in reply to unjust and uncalled for statements on the part of Mr. Emory, affecting the fairness and honor of our association. We could make charges against Mr. Emory, which we have evidence to sustain: we have no desire, however, to enter upon an acrimonious controversy and should not have gone this far, had we not deemed that Mr. Emory's published statements compelled us to do so.

"Notes by the Way."

This has been the longest drouth we have had since 1851. That year it continued from the first of May 'till the middle of October. The next protracted drouth was in 1865.

Farmers will generally begin to seed corn ground in wheat this week. Very little fallow is in good condition, and a great deal has not been ploughed. The avereage to be seeded in wheat will fall considerably below the average.

J. T. Ireland sold his "Favorite" peach the last week in September for $2.50 per basket.

J. Z. Clark has had several hundred baskets of the largest Duchess pears we have ever seen grown here.

Ex-Senator Hepbron has evaporated nine tons and John Dudley four tons of peaches this season.

W. D. Penington has a standard kieffer pear tree, five years old, that will yield about one bushel and a-half of pears this season.

William Willis and A. J. Hackett are building dwelling houses here.

Dr. James M. Magraw (of Harford Co.) has been visiting his uncle Dr. Maxwell (here) during the past week.

Mrs. M. Rosalie Mitchel is visiting friends here.

Revival services are being held at Betterton M. E. Church.

If a vote for St. John does not count here it will count in eternity.

Hymenial.

GOWEN—ROBINSON,—Miss Alice Robinson, eldest daughter of Hon. John M. Robinson, chief judge of the second judicial circuit, was married in Centreville on Wednesday of last week to Mr. Francis Innes Gowen, of Philadelphia, and nephew of Franklin B. Gowan, ex-president of the Reading Railroad. The groom's friends, including a number of prominent Philadelphians, came down in the morning by special train of parlor cars from Philadelphia, in charge of Conductor Hitch and Engineer Morgan, of the Pennsylvania Railroad. The ceremony took place at St. Paul's Episcopal Church, and the ceremony was performed by the pastor, Rev. Jas. A. Mitchell, assisted by Rev. Robert F. Innes, of St. Mary's Church, Philadelphia. The church was handsomely dressed for the occasion, the church and arch being dressed with ivy and golden rod, the pink oleanders in full bloom placed at either side; a marriage bell of pure white pompon dahlias, swung gracefully overhead, suspended by white ribbon.

The bride wore a white ottoman silk, with tulle veil and orange blossoms, and bouquet of pure white tea roses. Leaning on the arm of her father she moved gracefully up the aisle, preceded by the ushers and bridesmaids, and was met at the chancel by the groom. The ushers were Messrs. Ralph Robinson, brother of the bride; Ernest Hemsley, of Queen Anne's and Charles Windor, of Talbot county, also relatives of the bride; Wm. R. Philler, Chas. E. Ingersoll and James Hood, of Philadelphia; Ensign Wm. F. Fullman, U. S. N., and Samuel Hopkins. Mr. Gowen, brother of the groom, acted at "best man," and the bridesmaids were Misses Sallie, Marie and Bessie Robinson, sisters of the bride; Miss Maria Lansdale, daughter of Dr. Philip Lansdale, U. S. N.; the two Misses Gowen, sisters of the groom, and Miss Hood, of Philadelphia, and Miss Essie Gowen, daughter of ex-president F. B. Gowen. The bridesmaids wore white cashmere, trimmed with silver braid and flower bonnets—four of them red and four pink—four carrying baskets of Bon Saline buds and roses, and the other four carrying baskets of Jacquimenot roses. After the ceremony the members of the immediate families present went to "Waverly," Judge Robinson's residence, about seven miles from Centreville, where a collation was served. In the afternoon the bridal party took their special train for the North. Mr. and Mrs. Gowen will reside at Mount Airy, near Philadelphia. Many friends and relatives of the bride and groom were present from Baltimore, Philadelphia, Washington, Annapolis and elsewhere, including many from Queen Anne's and Talbot counties. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Ingersoll, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Ingersoll, Mr. and Mrs. Harry McCall, Mr. and Mrs. Effingham Morris, Mrs. Charles Morton Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Gowen, Mr. and Mrs. James Gowen, Col, Boyd, Mr. Charles Ingersoll and Mr. George B. Keim, of Philadelphia; L. Winder Emory, of Baltimore, uncle of the bride; George Emory, son of Gen. W. H. Emory, of Washington, D. C., who is an uncle of Mrs. Judge Robinson, and others. The bride was the recipient of a large number of handsome presents.

PENINSULA ITEMS.

The Dover fair was this year, as usual, a big success, both in the racing and in the exhibition departments.

Jacob Tome, the millionaire of Cecil, aged 75, was married on Wednesday of last week to a young lady of 27. The bride, formerly a Miss Nesbit, is the daughter of a Port Deposit merchant.

Easton, the home of Hon. Chas. H. Gibson, is to have an all-day Democratic meeting on Saturday, October the 18th. According to the Easton Ledger, an effort will be made to have present at the meeting Governor McLane and all the ex-governors now living. These are,—Philip F. Thomas, Enoch Louis Lowe, William Pinkney Whyte, James Black Groome, John Lee Carroll and William T. Hamilton.

In addition to the forest fires raging near the Somerset county line, fire broke out in the swamp belonging to Mr. Tubman Conway, below Quantico, a few days ago. Several men worked very hard night and day to prevent the flames reaching a large tract of timber land, but their efforts were unavailing, and the timber was soon in flames. A large tract was burned over, and at last accounts was still burning. Other swamps are on fire in Wetlipquin Neck. It is said that the swamps were never so dry as now, affording plenty of inflammable material to feed the devastating element.

A collision of passenger trains occurred at Clayton on Friday morning last, the express train on the Delaware road running into the Delaware and Chesapeake train. Both trains were crowded with passengers. The D. & C. train was a little late, going in at a good rate of speed; the engine, baggage and mail car had got on to the main track of the Delaware road when the express train going north crashed into the D. & C. train cutting off the engine, baggage and mail car, completely overturning and crushing the four head passenger cars, injuring several persons, in a manner that may prove fatal. The last cars of the train were also cut off and the passengers escaped uninjured. No one on the express train was injured and no one on the D. & C. was killed. All the physicians in Smyrna were summoned immediately, and Drs. Collins, Ashcraft, Clifton, Cloak and Moore responded promptly. Dr. Harmonson, of Clayton, was on the spot when the accident happened. A list of the wounded is as follows:

Miss Clara Simmons, of Warwick, face badly cut; Mrs. Eliza Hall, of Warwick, arm broken; Mrs. W. Patchen, of Union Grove, head cut; Mrs. Maria Edwards, of Slaughter's, head seriously cut; Julia A. Harris, colored, of near Kenton, hand injured; Harry Fitzgerald, of Cordova, Md., was the most unfortunate of all, and is the most seriously hurt. The doctors had a consultation and decided that there was probably a fracture of the internal table of the skull. Harry Fitzgerald's brother also received a scalp wound; Miss Griffin, daughter of John Griffin, near Hillsborough, Md., had her shoulder dislocated.

KITTY PUSS, by Frank Pierce, Jr., 485, was a fast road mare, of great endurance; in addition to being the dam of Cyclops, she was the dam of Live Oak 2.43; dead heat 2.40, Middletown, Del.

FRANK PIERCE, JR., 485, by Frank Pierce by Beppo, could trot in 2.40, and sired Phil Doughorty 2.26, Lady Wright 2.39, John P. Jenkins 2.35, dam of Brigadier 2.22, Frank Pierce III, sire of Stonewall 2.24½, and dam of Cyclops 2.27.

Cyclops was withdrawn from the stud in August, at the urgent request of the people of Kent to trot a match with Young Smuggler 2.29½ for $500, offered by the Agricultural Association to the winner. The trot came off on the 23d of September, and was won by Cyclops distancing Young Smuggler in the first heat in 2.31¾. The mangers said the match had been made as a test to see which was the best horse to breed from. It did not go off as they hoped for and they paid off $100 short. But Cyclops was kindly complimented by the people and a large stud patronage promised him. Those wishing to breed will please send their mares to Poplar Grove at once.

SERVICE FEE $50, with privilege of return in spring, 1885, should they not prove in foal. Ample accommodations for mares left at the farm to be bred. On grass, $1 per week, with grain $2 per week. ☞ Every care will be taken against accident or escape, but no responsibility taken.

Wanamaker's.

PHILADELPHIA, October 6.

It is an unexpected and unexpectable time in dry goods. Never, since we began to sell them, and never we believe before, have prices ranged so low. But in the depth of this depression comes a deeper plunge. The most unheard of things occur. The explanation is to be found in this clipping from the Philadelphia Ledger's New York Letter:

There has been no demand for goods suitable for autumn, and as the season is pretty well advanced the prospect is that many of the leading dealers wi have to carry over their stocks until ne year, or sell at a sacrifice, in either case making a serious loss.

The other day we began in the morning to sell 3000 yards of silk-and-wool black poplin at 25 cents a yard. It was worth 60 to 75 cents. Most of it went before night. That was the very cheapest dress-stuff we ever knew of in trade; but it was quickly over.

Last week we began to sell Lupin's Cachemire Hindou for 65 cents, 35 cents under value, and several other of Lupin's $1 stuffs for 65 and 75 cents, and Lupin's Camballo for 85 cents, 40 cents under value. They are still going at the same rate, and will last a week yet; for. the quantities are very large. Absurd things are done with little lots of goods sometimes; but, when great quantities are concerned, a tumble from the very top of the market to the bottom is very rare. This Lupin tumble is a leap from the top of the market clear to the bottom. It is probably the cheapest large lot of fine, fashionable and every way acceptable dress-stuffs we ever had to do with.

And now comes another just such. Ladies'-cloths, $1 ladies'-cloths, for 75 cents; 54-inch.

In one sense this is less surprising; in another, more so. The cloths are made by a first-class maker, less eminent than Lupin, not by one who stands head and shoulders above everybody else in his line. A tumble in his cloths shakes a smaller part of the world of trade than a tumble in Lupin's stuffs. But they are cloths; and for cloths to tumble is a rarer event than for lighter dress-stuffs; because cloths have a wider range of wear than those lighter stuffs, and enter into trade more largely. Lupin's stuffs are staple in their range. Such cloths as these are staple in a range of trade comprehending all classes. And so this tumble of cloths is possibly a bigger local event than the tumble in Lupin's stuffs. At any rate more people will be glad to see it

A month ago we began selling $1 ladies'-cloths for 75 cents; and it was a wonderful thing to do. We are selling them yet.

These now put down from $1 to 75 cents are another sort, better, better wool, out of a better factory, better-made, made for a more exacting trade: and all these things go to make the tumble a bigger tumble.

We still have ladies'-cloths at $1. How do they differ from these at 75 cents? Different makers, different in the make, different as they happen to be: but the reason of the difference in price is the difference in their cost to us. It is by no means true that values always vary with prices; it is true only in the most general way.

We have twenty-eight colors in these $1 cloths at 75 cents; and some of the colors are only to be found in the higher grades of cloths:

Three gray mixtures.	Four blues.
Two brown mixtures.	Three browns.
Four mixtures of several colors.	Six drabs.
Four garnets. Cardinal.	Myrtle, olive, bronze.

Indeed we may say these excel the other 75-cent cloths in color as well as in fabric: for it is always true that better wool and better make makes better color.
