The Bijou theatre in New York possesses a drop curtain of decidedly classical turn. A procession of a Roman patrician and his suit is preceded by a child leading a fawn. At the bottom of the picture runs the legend "Salve." An old lady looking thereon was heard to remark to her two pretty daughters:

'What kind of an ointment can it be that they are advertising on the curtain; they call it salve.'

The daughter explained that the word in question was a Latin one, and meant, 'How d'ye do,'

'Well,' replied the old lady, 'I think the procession is just indecent, look at their clothes. To my mind the goat is the only natural thing in the whole concern.'

And so the old lady babbled on till the curtain rose.—Daily Graphic.

'That must be a swell,' said the commercial traveler. 'Do you know who it is?'

'The Duke of Northumberland,' replied his Grace of Buccleuch.

'And they said,' exclaimed the traveler, 'that our nobility is haughty. Why he talked to two snobs like you and me, as though we were his pals!!!'

FOR THE YOUNG FOLKS.

RYE'S STORY.

BY A. G. IN GOLDEN DAYS.

Two years ago we all went up to Barclay to stay a year. Father owns a place up there, and the doctor said the change would do mother a great deal of good.

I hated to go, for I didn't see how I could get along without our school, and the girls and everything. Mother said that was rather selfish, but I didn't care for that.

It didn't make a bit of difference to the others, for Jimmy was happy anywhere, and Tony was only a year and a half old.

When we had been at Barclay about a week, my cousin June Ackers came to live with us.—June's home was in Boston, but her folks had gone to Europe, and she was to stay with us till they came back.

I liked staying at Barclay better after June came. We had splendid fun. One morning mother said, just after breakfast:

'Girls, I think you may begin your school this morning.'

I expect I must have turned pale, for you see, I never thought of such a thing as going to school in that country place.

I begged mother not to send me, but mother is firm, I can tell you.

June kept very quiet. I expected she would be awfully cross, but when we went up stairs to get our hats, she shut the door and said:

'Of course we've got to go, but I guess we can think up something that will pay Aunt Charlotte off.'

So we went—Jim and us two girls.

June scared Jim so on the way that mother had a terrible time to get him to go inside the school house. June told him the teacher had horns, and that she cut off every boy's ears if he couldn't spell 'hippodrome.'

Mother was ahead of us, and didn't hear anything June said, so she was dreadfully mortified when we got in the school and Jimmy began to walk around the teacher and stare at her. He wasn't afraid while mother was there, so he said:

'Say, you ain't got on your horns to-day, have you? and I can spell hipperdrome, too, so you can't cut off my ears, either!'

Mother tried to stop him, but she couldn't do it. She explained to the teacher that Jimmy had never been to school before, but I think the teacher thought we were funny people.

Well, we went to school there, for mother made us, but June and I didn't like it.

Jim was pleased. He thought every thing was splendid. June and I didn't behave very well. We acted as bad as we could, to tell the truth, and Miss Penley went to see mother about it, and there was an awful time.

One day—it was Saturday—mother sent June and me down to the end of the garden to pick currants. While we were there we saw the nurse—her name was Norah Pinder—fixing Tony in her carriage, where she could see us, and in a baby way be amused. Presently, Norah went into the house and left Tony sitting there.

Tony's name was Victoria, but Jim couldn't say it at first, so he called her Tony.

June never said a word, but went and got Tony and brought her down where we were.—Tony was so fond of June that she would go anywhere with her.

'Rye,' said June, 'let's take her down in the woods and get her asleep and leave her there, just a little while to scare Aunt Charlotte and Norah.'

I never thought what I was doing—honestly, I never thought—but hurried off down the path to the woods with the carriage afghan in my hand, and June coming behind carrying Tony.

They couldn't see the path from the house.—We went through the thick woods to the place we called our 'den,' and sat down.

Finally, Tony went to sleep. So we put her down on the afghan and ran back toward the house. We meant to go right back to the garden so we could see the fun when Norah came out to look for Tony.

But just as we got into the path we saw Sue Lane coming. Sue asked us to come up to her house and see a new sun-shade her aunt had sent her from New York.

June said she couldn't go then, for we were in a great hurry to go down and get some tintypes taken to send to her uncle, who was governor of Massachusetts.

Of course it wasn't true, for father is the only uncle June ever had, but Sue believed it, and it just took her down, I tell you.

After Sue went on, June said why couldn't we go and get some pictures; so we did go, and we had such fun!

By the time we got home, we had forgotten all about Tony. When we were almost at the gate, Bridget rushed out to meet us.

'Arrah, thin! yez haven't the child wid yez, at all at all!'

She expected we had Tony with us. By this time, mother and Norah and the hired man had come out.

Norah was crying and wringing her hands. Mother was just as white as a ghost, and all she said was:

'Where is the baby, Rye?'

Her voice sounded just like one crazy. I was scared, I can tell you. I couldn't speak a word. It all rushed over me, the awful thing I had done to hide our dear little baby.

But June laughed.

'I guess Tony is not far off in the woods, Aunt Charlotte. I saw her going down that way a while ago.'

Mother never looked at June, but said to me, in that dreadful tone:

'Go and get her, Rye!'

I ran, you can believe. I never hurried so in all my life.

June followed. I believe she was afraid to stay there with mother.

Well—I can hardly tell it even now—when we reached the 'den,' the baby was gone. I never had such a feeling in my life as when I came upon the place where we had left Tony, and found she wasn't there. I sat down on the moss and looked at June. She didn't laugh then. She just turned around and said:

'Rye, I believe they'll hang me, for I've killed your little sister.'

I didn't dare go back and tell mother Tony was gone. I think I had a wild notion of going and jumping into the river.

But before I could move the hired man appeared. He saw that we were frightened, and that Tony was gone. He just grabbed June by the arm and shook her as hard as he could.

Then he said:

'Now tell where that baby is, you wicked little wretch.'

So June told, as well as she could, all about it.

Jerry—his name was Jerry—just started for the house like a race-horse. I don't know what he told, nor what they said, for June and I stole up the back stairs and hid in the attic. I never passed such an afternoon. I could hear them running all through the house at first; then everything got still, only I could hear some one crying bitterly somewhere.

Once a carriage drove up, and I saw father get out.

About dark, I saw the doctor, (our old doctor from R——), come up the walk. I wondered in a dazed sort of way, who was sick. I did not speak nor June did not speak all that afternoon.

After Sue went on, June said why couldn't we go and get some pictures; so we did go, and we had such fun!

By the time we got home, we had forgotten all about Tony. When we were almost at the gate, Bridget rushed out to meet us.

About dark, I saw the doctor, (our old doctor from R——), come up the walk. I wondered in a dazed sort of way, who was sick. I did not speak nor June did not speak all that afternoon.

In a minute, I heard Norah saying:

'It's here she is, ma'am, safe and sound. Can't ye see her, ma'am—yer own little Tony?'

I can't tell you how I felt. I know I rushed down stairs and into mother's room. Nobody noticed me, for mother was lying in bed, and I thought she was dead. She never opened her eyes, nor stirred. There were two doctors there, and father and Aunt Helen. Nobody spoke to me; even Norah pushed me away. I felt like a murderer. I thought I was one.

I went up to our room and told June that Tony was found, but that we had killed mother. And June never spoke. I cried all that night. I couldn't sleep. I just cried and cried.

The queerest thing was June, though. Not a word did she say. She just sat there and stared at nothing. I couldn't help being afraid when I looked at her.

Well, after a long time—it seemed a year—it was morning, and I went down stairs again.—Mother was better, but very weak.

Tony was lying in mother's bed. I won't ever tell what I said to mother, nor what she said to me. I shan't forget it, though.

After a while mother told me to bring June in. So I did.

June walked along like one asleep. She never seemed to see mother at all. But the minute she saw Tony she began to cry. Oh, you never heard any one cry so! It was awful. She just hugged Tony up in her arms, and it seemed as if she'd kill herself crying. I was frightened. Mother didn't say a word.

Father came in and put his hand on June's head, and said:

'June—why, June—I—I—'

And then father actually cried, too.

Finally, they took us away, for mother was very weak. Father told us we were forgiven; but I can tell you we never played any more tricks on any one.

It seems that a farmer from the other side of the woods found Tony, and not knowing who she was, carried her to his house. It was almost dark before father and Jerry found her.—We never talk about it, for it makes us feel dreadfully.

June was a different girl after that. She was so good, mother really cried when her folks came home, and June went back to Boston.

A MARVELOUS STORY
TOLD IN TWO LETTERS.
FROM THE SON: "28 Cedar St., New York, Oct. 28, 1882.
"Gentlemen: My father resides at Glover, Vt. He has been a great sufferer from Scrofula, and the inclosed letter will tell you what a marvelous effect has had in his case. I think his blood must have contained the humor for at least ten years; but it did not show, except in the form of a scrofulous sore on the wrist, until about five years ago. From a few spots which appeared at that time, it gradually spread so as to cover his entire body. I assure you he was terribly afflicted, and an object of pity, when he began using your medicine. Now, there are few men of his age who enjoy as good health as he has. I could easily name fifty persons who would testify to the facts in his case.
Ayer's Sarsaparilla
Yours truly, W. M. PHILLIPS."
FROM THE FATHER: "It is both a pleasure and a duty for me to state to you the benefit I have derived from the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.
Six months ago I was completely covered with a terrible humor and scrofulous sores. The humor caused an incessant and intolerable itching, and the skin cracked so as to cause the blood to flow in many places whenever I moved. My sufferings were great, and my life a burden. I commenced the use of the SARSAPARILLA in April last, and have used it regularly since that time. My condition began to improve at once. The sores have all healed, and I feel perfectly well in every respect—being now able to do a good day's work, although 73 years of age. Many inquire what has wrought such a cure in my case, and I tell them, as I have here tried to tell you, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. Glover, Vt., Oct. 21, 1882. Yours gratefully,
HIRAM PHILLIPS."
AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities, aids digestion, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and strengthens the whole system.

ALABASTINE
A Superior Substitute for Kalsomine, etc.
Alabastine is the first and only preparation made from calcined gypsum rock, for application to walls with a brush, and is fully covered by patents and perfected by many years of experiments. It is the only permanent wall finish, and admits of applying as many coats as desired, one over another, to any hard surface, without danger of scaling, or noticeably adding to the thickness of the wall, which is strengthened and improved by each additional coat, from time to time. It is the only material for the purpose not dependent upon glue for its adhesiveness. Alabastine is hardened on the wall by age, moisture, etc., while all kalsomines or whitening preparations have inert soft chalks and glue for their base, which are rendered soft or scaled in a very short time.
In addition to the above advantages, Alabastine is less expensive, as it requires but one-half the number of pounds to cover the same amount of surface with two coats, is ready for use by adding water, and easily applied by any one.
For sale by your Paint Dealer. Ask for Circular containing Samples of 12 tints, manufactured only by the ALABASTINE Co., M. B. CHURCH, Manager, Grand Rapids, Mich.

For sale by E. J. Plummer, Worton Md., as agent for the well-known importers and breeders, N. P. Boyer & Co., of Chester county Penn Seventy-five head of Jersey Heifers in calf, for Sale Cheap.
To make room for new importations we will sell sevensy-five head of pure blood Jersey Heifers in calf, at $85 to $125 each, as to age, style and earliness in calving. They are all very large and handsome, good colors and finely developed in all points that go to make up a first-class dairy cow, for butter or milk. Are all from first-class thoroughbred Jersey cows, making 14 to 17½ pounds of butter per week, and are served by solid colored Herd Registered Jersey bulls. Due to calve in March, April, May and June.
These heifers are all sired by the celebrated Herd Registered Jersey Bulls, Lord Darnley No. 3730 Lowrie No. 2484, and Earl of Willow Glen No. 2843; all solid color, full black points. They have been served by Imported Devon bull No. 7910 (of the celebrated Cocmassie strain), one of the best young Jersey-Bulls that ever left the Island. Rapier No. 3743, Winsome Boy No. 5496, Maurus No. 4639, and Hercy Douglas No. 3769. These bulls are all from the very deepest milking strains, and from the very best butter families. Solid colors, full black points. They cannot fail to produce very fine calves.
Carefully boxed, delivered on board the cars, free, with feed, &c., for their trip, warranted to reach purchasers safe. Also, for sale, thoroughbred and imported sheep; thoroughbred and imported hogs; improved breeds of poultry. Full information as to prices may be had upon inquiry of

Elliott & Gemmill's
Farmers' Agency
Will furnish at short notice and Bottom Prices, any Implement manufactured in the United States.
We make a specialty of the Iron Turbine Wind Mill, manufactured by Mast, Foos & Co.; also, the Buckeye Force Pump, especially adapted to deep wells and forcing water.
Any one needing a wind Mill we say try a Turbine. They are strength and durability itself. We control this Mill for the county, and have no sub-agents. Will make prompt estimates for any one desiring a Mill.
We would also call the attention of Farmers to our NEW BUCKEYE GLASS FEED FERTILIZER DRILL, which we pronounce, after thorough testing it last season, to be the best combined Grain and Fertilizer Drill ever offered to the trade. Our reasons are—
First, It is a perfect Wheat Seeder
Second, You have no cog wheels to take off or put on to chance quantities.
Third, With the Glass Feed for Phosphate you can sow any quantity of Fertilizer without clogging, gumming or pasting, from 100 to 500 lbs., and can make the changes while walking along.
Fourth, Both wheat and phosphate are distributed within plain view of the operator.
Fifth, It has double force feed for wheat, which makes it sow regular in whatever position it may be placed, especially when seeding side hills. All other drills will seed more or less according to position.
Call and examine it before buying, it will pay you.
Farmers clubbing together can make it pay.
Remember we have no sub-agents Save money by giving us your orders direct.
We have in use in Queen Anne's county eighty-three of the Buckeye Drills. In 1882 we sold there 28; in 1883 we sold 55.
