C. G. WOODALL
Editor and Publisher.

THE Republican organs and the Republican leaders are now busy explaining what did it. Mr. Blaine thinks it was the Rev. Burchard's "Rum, Romanism and Rebellion" that struck him. A great many other good authorities think it was St. John and Daniel. It is an interesting question, and we hope our friends of the opposition will find out exactly what it was that beat Mr. Blaine. A great many people who did not vote for Mr. Blaine think that what beat Mr. Blaine was Mr. Blaine himself.

ROSCOE CONKLING is talked about for the United States Senate from New York. The next Legislature of New York will be Republican by 24 majority on joint ballot. There is, therefore, no show for electing a Democratic Senator. If there should be 13 Stalwarts in the next New York Legislature who would stay out of caucus and stick to Conkling these, with the Democratic vote, could send him to the Senate. Roscoe Conkling possesses magnificent talents, and as an Independent in the United States Senate he would be a power. Conkling's vote was never controlled by the monopolies, and his voice would therefore be heard in the interests of the people. It really looks as if Roscoe might again tower in the Senate chamber.

IT demands a higher order of skill, a broader and clearer intelligence to direct a Presidential campaign than it does to direct a great army in battle. Theoretically, it would seem that the right should win and the wrong should fail in a political contest, without any particular management. The wrong, however, is so often put in a favorable false light, and there are so many plausible lies told to sustain the wrong that the right cause, to win, must be intelligently kept under the public nose. The Hon. Arthur P. Gorman, of Maryland, more than any other one man, directed the Democratic side of the late Presidential contest, and he did it in a manner that has made him recognized as probably the greatest political general in the nation. He has a cool head, a clear head and a strong head, such as few men possess. The party in Maryland can afford to be proud of him unanimously.

JAMES G. BLAINE is at length satisfied that he will never be President of these United States. He has expressed himself as having no regrets on his own account. Oh, no! His only regret is for the nation. Mr. Blaine should be easy. He will find that this nation will get along and hold together without him. The outlook may be a little doleful for the Jay Gould and the Russell Sage class, but for the nation as a whole it has been some time since the prospect ahead was brighter. To be sure, we are just now in the beginning of a threatened business depression. A great many factories are closed, and it is said eighty thousand employees are without employment. Even Mr. Blaine, however, would scarcely charge this state of affairs to a Democratic administration, as a Democratic administration will not begin until the 4th of next March. The depression is more likely the result of a general over-production brought about by the unhealthy protective system, under which factories have multiplied. Mr. Blaine need not lay awake of nights. The interests of the country will be cared for.

THE tariff question is by no means a settled question. It will not drop out of national politics, as some of our big-city contemporaries would have it do. Indeed, it cannot be said that the question of a protective or a non-protective tariff has yet been made a national issue. In the contest just past, both parties dodged a square stand upon the question. Upon the tariff, both party platforms were as uncertain in their utterance as a Delphic oracle. What they said was said in such a manner that it could be twisted to suit the views of everybody. To be sure, Mr. Blaine when he took the stump even had the immense cheek to talk protective buncombe to the farmers. The vote which he got in Illinois, Wisconsin and Michigan, which have hitherto been Republican strongholds, show plainly enough that the people in the agricultural sections of this country are beginning to understand the true inwardness of a protective tariff. They are beginning to inquire if it is really true that a nation can be built up and made great and everybody be made rich and happy by a system of taxation. They are beginning to ask why the manufacturing sections, that roll in accumulated wealth, should be made richer by a tax imposed upon struggling agriculture. The tariff question has only had its beginning as a national issue. In the next four years it will be talked over and thought over and better understood. By the year 1888, old issues that have long been dead will have been buried. The contest of 1888 will be fought upon new and living issues, and principal among these new issues will be the tariff question. The voice of the great Northwest will be heard when the election returns of 1888 come in.

SPEAKERS IN CONGRESS.

PECULIARITIES OF FORMER AND PRESENT PROMINENT MEN.

[From the Washington Post.]

'Yes, it is over thirty five years,' he said, 'since I began reporting the Senate proceedings. A long time, is it not? And yet it has gone quickly, and with it a good many men of great abilities and reputation.'

'Your recollections run back as far as Webster, then, do they, Mr. Murphy?'

'Yes,' he answered, musingly; 'I remember him very well. A very slow, careful speaker, easy to report because of the extreme moderation with which he spoke. Yes, I reported Webster and Clay and Cass, and later on the great men who took their places, Sumner and Seward and all the others.'

'Do you join in the often-expressed opinion that greatness has departed from the halls of Congress, and that the statesman to day is a pigmy as compared with that of a quarter of a century ago?'

'No; on the contrary, I think that the Congress of the United States, take the members as a class, averages up better now than it did in earlier days. There are not, perhaps, just now any very great minds which tower up beyond all the rest, as seemed to be the case with Webster and a few others then and since, but take the average statesman then and now, and I think that he of to-day bears comparison very well.'

'How long has Congress been stenographically reported?'

'The Senate was first so reported in 1848. There were one or two attempts earlier, but they were unsatisfactory and soon abandoned. The present system began in 1848 in the Senate and about 1860 in the House and has been continued since.'

'Will the present much-criticised system, which permits members to revise their speeches before publication, be remedied, do you think?'

'Doubtful, I think. There has always been talk about it, but only talk. There were efforts twenty-five years ago, perhaps more, to have that feature eliminated and to have the debates printed exactly as they occurred. I remember that Jeff. Davis was one of the most vigorous in denouncing the system permitting revision and in urging that the debates be printed exactly as they occurred. And yet Davis was one of the fastest speakers of the Senate at that time, and it would seem that if anybody needed to revise his remarks, on the stenographic report of them, it would be he.'

'Did he often do so?'

'No; he scarcely ever looked at his speeches in manuscript.'

'No, rather the reverse. As a rule the men who stand out most prominently in the history of the Senate were of such habits of speech that there was little occasion for them to revise the reports of their speeches. Webster, as I said, was a slow speaker and a careful one. Seward usually wrote his speeches beforehand and committed them to memory, so that often he did not require them to be reported at all, turning them over in manuscript. This was not always the case, however. I remember on one occasion he asked me to come and take breakfast with him and take a speech he was going to deliver on some important subject. I did so, but when he got ready to speak he said he desired to have his speech taken again, as he would make some changes from the original one. So it was reported and the manuscript furnished him, and when it was returned I found that it was neither the first nor the second speech entire, but a third one, embodying portions of both the others. Seward was pretty careful about his sentences, and would often change a word here and there to polish them up, as it were. Sumner was rather a slow speaker, and did not make many changes in his speeches. Mr. Chase, of Ohio, was much given to making changes in his speeches. Lincoln? Well, I never reported him, but know that he was a very slow speaker. Douglas was the opposite, a very rapid speaker. Evarts? Well, everybody knows about his long sentences. They are terrible. I remember one in his speech on the impeachment of Johnson which made, I think, eighty-odd lines in the Record. I never knew but one man like him, and that was Bell, of Tennessee. No; there are not many men now in the Senate who are especially difficult to report. Mr. Edmunds is one of the fastest talkers. You would not think so to listen to him. He speaks in a rather low tone, a sort of conversational manner, and rushes out his sentences in a hurry. Ingalls is a pretty fast talker, but his enunciation is so distinct and clear that it is a pleasure to report him. Mr. Beck is a very fast talker, and will keep it up for hours, too. Logan is about an average. Blaine? Well, he is not the most agreeable man in the world to report. Fast at times, and sometimes not so fast—a sort of jerky way that is not comfortable to the stenographer.

ST. JOHN IN HIGH FEATHER.

AS SMILING AS A BASKET OF CHIPS AND GETTING READY FOR A LONG CRUSADE.

Kansas City Despatch to the Chicago Times.

Wildly sensational telegrams have been wired to all portions of the country telling of threats and danger to Ex-Governor John P. St. John, late candidate for the Presidential nomination on the Prohibition ticket who resides at Olathe, Kan. This morning a representative of the Times visited Olathe and found the great temperance apostle busily engaged in opening letters and messages of congratulation. In answer to the inquiry as to whether he was at all disturbed by the great hue and cry now coming from the Republican ranks, Governor St. John replied: 'Not in the least. I rather enjoy the funeral which the Republicans are celebrating over my body. I am flooded with telegrams and letters, and am in the best of temper and spirits as to the final outcome. I have no desire to interfere with the Republican picnic. In due time I will be heard in no uncertain way and am content to wait that time patiently. I never cross a bridge until it is reached, but when the right time comes I propose to go ahead.'

'The Republican press of Kansas, as well as the country at large, are charging you with every crime save murder.'

'Yes, I know it, and all because I voted as I thought best, as also my friends. Why, it was said not long ago that the only vote I would receive would be my own; but now they are singing another tune.'

'The Republicans seem to forget all about Butler.'

'Certainly; that is their way at the present time. No one seems to think of burning him in effigy. Oh, no! He is all right to these men now. I was nominated as a Prohibition candidate for the Presidency, and the party is to day stronger by thousands and thousands of votes and will continue to grow so long as these madmen go about the country burning me in effigy and venting their spite, as has been the case lately. Why, the Prohibition party is twice as strong as it was three months ago, and it will continue to grow. This action of the Republican party makes Prohibition votes daily.'

He said in conclusion: 'I will remain in Olathe a few weeks and obtain a needed rest after the hard work of the campaign. I will then start out for a four-years' campaign for constitutional prohibition. There can be no doubt as to the ultimate triumph of the cause. It will triumph because it is right, and the right will always win.'

Summing up the Battle.

The election of Grover Cleveland to the Presidency is now conceded by all and the great battle of 1884 is ended. The following is the vote of the several States as nearly as it can be ascertained, with the electoral vote. It will be seen that Cleveland has a majority of 37 in the Electoral College and nearly or quite 100,000 popular majority:

TO THE FARMERS

—OF—

KENT, QUEEN ANNE'S & CECIL

IT is universally acknowledged by the most practical farmers that the Ohio Chilled Plow is the best plow in the world for neatness of work, and lightness of draft to the team. As I have ordered a large number of these plows, both two and three-horse, farmers will do well to give me an early call.

We also keep on hand, the Old Reliable Concave Nos. 9, 10 and 11, Polished Minor and Horton, Wiley Nos. 3 and 4, and Two-Furrowed Plows, and Harrows, Twin, Single A, and Double A A, Cultivators and Cultivator Teeth unsurpassed by any manufacture. Single, Double, 3 and 4 Horse-Trees and Hames.

As there have been a great many Chilled Plows sold in these counties, and as farmers have been put to a great deal of trouble to get Castings for them, if they will only give the name and number of the Plow, I will endeavor to keep them on hand at my shops in Galena and Chestertown. I always have on hand Plain and Slip Shares for the Ohio, Oliver, Roland, Advance and Syracuse.

If any of you are in need of anything in my line, please give me a call, as I intend to sell them low for the cash.

Thankful for past patronage, I solicit a continuance of the same.

STAM'S DRUG STORE.

Trustees' Sale

OF VALUABLE

REAL ESTATE.

THE undersigned, under and by virtue of a decree of the Circuit Court of Kent county, in Equity, will offer at public sale in front of the store room of B. B. Adkinson, Esq., at Edesville, in Kent county, Maryland, on SATURDAY, the 22d of November, 1884,

AT 11 O'CLOCK A. M.,

THE REAL ESTATE,

of which James H. Edes, late, of Kent county, owned at the time of his death, consisting of a

FARM & A NUMBER of LOTS, &c

THE FARM

lies at or near said village of Edesville, in the Fifth Election District in said county, on the east side of the public road leading from said village into Piney Neck, adjoining the lands of Mrs. Sarah E. Page and others, and contains

145 Acres of Land,

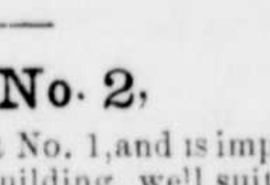

MORE OR LESS.

The Farm is conveniently divided into fields, and under fair fencing. The soil is of good quality, well adapted to the growth of cereals, fruits, &c., and in good health, convenient to churches, schools, post office, &c., and very desirable as a residence.

The Improvements

ARE A NEW

2-Story Frame Dwelling

and all necessary out-building, in fair repair.

LOT No. 1

contains about ½ of an Acre of Land in said village, improved by a TWO-STORY FRAME DWELLING and Store Room, also, Granary, Carriage House and Stable. This is the best location in the village for a store, and desirable as a residence.

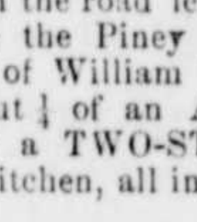

LOT No. 2,

10x16 feet, adjoining lot No. 1, and is improved by a Small One-Story Building, well suited for a shoe shop or barber shop.

LOT No. 3

adjoining lot No. 2, contains about ½ of an acre of land, is improved by a

TWO-STORY FRAME DWELLING

and Kitchen, in good order; also, a Stable, Hay Loft, Carriage House and Meat House, in fair repair.

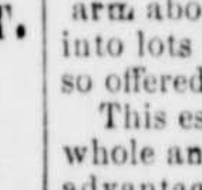

LOT No. 4

is situate near said village on the road leading from the Rock Hall road to the Piney Neck road, adjoining the property of William Wagner and others, contains about ¼ of an ACRE of Land, and is improved by a TWO-STORY FRAME DWELLING and Kitchen, all in good order.

LOT No. 5

adjoins lot No. 4, contains about ¼ of an ACRE of Land, improved by a

FRAME DWELLING

of one and a-half story and a Shed Kitchen.

There is also a WOOD LOT lying at or near said village, and on the opposite side of the said public road leading into said neck, from the arm above described. This lot will be divided into lots suitable for building lots, and will be so offered at the sale.

This estate will be offered in parcels and as a whole and sold as the trustees may deem most advantageous to all the parties concerned.

A survey of the farm and lots will be made, and plats exhibited on the day of sale.

THE TERMS OF SALE

as prescribed by the decree are, one-fourth of the purchase money to be paid in cash on the day of sale or in sixty days thereafter, at the option of the trustees; one-fourth in twelve months, one-fourth in two years and one-fourth in three years from the day of sale; the credit payments to bear interest from the day of sale, and payment threof to be secured by the bond of the purchaser with security to be approved by the trustees.

THE CENTURY

IN 1885.

A GREAT ENTERPRISE.

Papers on the Civil War.

The important feature of the Century magazine for the coming year—indeed, perhaps the most important ever undertaken by the magazine—will be a series of separate papers on the great battles of the War for the Union, written by general officers high in command upon both the Federal and the Confederate sides,—General Grant (who writes of Vicksburg, Shiloh, and other battles), Generals Longstreet, McClellan, Beauregard, Rosecrans, Hill, Admiral Porter, and others. The series opens in the November Century with a graphically illustrated article on written by the Confederate General, G. T. Beauregard. Brief sketches, entitled 'Recollections of a Private,' papers chronicling special events, descriptions of various auxiliary branches of the service, etc., will supplement the more important series by the various generals.

The Battle of Bull Run,

A strict regard for accuracy will guide the preparation of the illustrations, for which the Century has at its disposal a very large quantity of photographs, drawings, portraits maps, plans, etc., hitherto unused. The aim is to present in this series, not official reports, but commanding officers' accounts of their plans and operations,—interesting personal experiences which will record leading events of the war, and possess, at the same time, a historical value not easily to be calculated.

Fiction.

In this line the Century will maintain its prestige, and furnish the best stories by American writers that can be procured. In November begins

A New Novel by W. D. Howells,

Author of 'Venetian Days,' 'A Modern instance,' etc. This story deals with the rise of an American business man. A novel by Henry James, a novelette by Grace Denio Litchfield, and short stories by 'Uncle Remus,' Frank R. Stockton, H. H. Boyesen, T. A. Janvier, H. H., Julian Hawthorne, and other equally well-known writers will appear at various times.

Miscellaneous Features.

Under this heading may be included a series of papers on the Cities of Italy by W. D. Howells, the illustrations being reproductions of etchings and drawings by Joseph Pennell; a series on being an interesting group of papers by E. V. Smalley, Lieut. Schwatka, Principal Grant (of Kingston, Ontario), and others, descriptive of little-known regions; papers on French and American art,—sculpture and painting, with some exquisite illustrations; papers on

The New North-West,

Astronomy, Architecture, and History, the first being by Professor Langley and others. Under Architecture are included more of Mrs. Van Rensselaer's articles on Churches, City and Country Houses, etc. Colonel George E. Waring, Jr., will describe

Progress in Sanitary Draining;

E. C. Stedman, Edmund Goose, and others will furnish literary essays; George W. Cable will contribute in various ways; several papers on sport and adventure will soon be published, and will write from time to time on outdoor subjects.

Readers of the CENTURY may feel sure of keeping abreast of the times on leading subjects that may properly come within the province of a monthly magazine. Its circulation is now about 140,000 monthly, the November number exceeding that figure. Subscriptions should date from this number beginning the War Series and Mr. Howell's novel. Price $4,000 a year, 35 cents a number. All book-sellers and news-dealers sell it and take subscriptions, or remittance may be made to the publishers.

A free specimen copy of The Century will be sent on request. Mention this paper.

ST. NICHOLAS

FOR YOUNG FOLKS.

Attractions for 1884-5.

No printed periodical can take the place of parent, pastor or school teacher; but a good magazine can supplement their work and influence to a wonderful degree. In view of this, it is not extravagant to say that—instead of 'Can we afford to take ST. NICHOLAS?'—the question of every earnest household in English-speaking countries, to-day, should be 'Can we afford not to take ST. NICHOLAS?'

The magazine, during its eleven happy years of existence, under the editorial charge of

has grown familiar to hundreds of thousands of young readers; and their interest and intelligent enjoyment have constantly inspired the editor and publishers to fresh effort. To-day, its strength is in its wholesome growth, its sympathy with young life, its hearty recognition of the movement of events, and its steadily increasing literary and pictorial resources. The following are some of the good things already secured for future numbers of ST. NICHOLAS:

'His One Fault,' a serial story for boys, by the popular author, J. T. Trowbridge.

'Personally Conducted,' illustrated papers on famous places in Europe. By Frank R. Stockton.

'Historic Girls,' a companion series to 'Historic Boys.' By E. S. Brooks.

'Ready for Business;' suggestions to boys about to choose an occupation,—based on personal interviews with prominent representatives of various trades and professions. By G. J. Manson.

'Driven Back to Eden,' a serial. By E. P. Roe.

'Talks for Young Folks,' a series of popular papers, by H. H. (Helen Jackson.)

'Among the Law-makers;' recollections of a boy-page in the U. S. Senate,—containing much political information, both instructive and amusing. By Edmund Alton.

'Davy and the Goblin,' a very funny serial story by a new writer, Chas. Carryl.

Short Stories by Louisa M. Alcott

'The Progress of Invention;' 'From Palanquin to Parlor-car,' 'From Cross-bow to 100-ton Gun,' etc. Descriptive papers, by Chas. E. Bolton.

'Art Work for Young Folks;' papers on decorative handicraft, by Chas. G. Leland.

'Sheep or Silver?' a story of Texan life. By the late Rev. William M. Baker.

'A Garden of Girls,' being six short stories for girls, by Six Leading Writers.

'Tales of Two Continents;' stories of adventure, by H. H. Boyesen.

'Cartoons for Boys and Girls,' funny pictures, by St. Nicholas Artists.

'From Bach to Wagner;' brief, pointed biographies of great musicians. By Agatha Tunis.

Special Papers by chosen writers, including Mary Hallock Foote, Joaquin Miller, Alice Wellington Rollins, G. B. Bartlett, Harriet Prescott Spofford, Rev. Washington Gladden, Julia Schayer, Anna Lea Merritt, W. O. Stoddard, D. Ker, Ernest Ingersoll, Clara E. Clement, Lieutenant Schwatka.

The Illustrations will be the work of the very best artists and engravers,—and there will be plenty of them. In the November and December numbers are beautiful

COLORED FRONTISPIECES.

Buy the November number for the children. It costs only 25 cents, and all book and news-dealers sell it. The subscription price is $3 00 a year, and now is just the time to subscribe.

A free specimen copy of St. Nicholas will be sent on request. Mention this paper.
