COLLINS & HOPPER,

EDITORS AND PUBLISHERS.

MR. C. RIDGELY GOODWIN, the newly appointed Collector of the Port of Baltimore, took formal possession of the office on Monday, succeeding Capt. W. D. Burchinal, of Kent county.

HON. THOMAS J. KEATING, the newly appointed State tax commissioner, qualified on Tuesday before the clerk of the Court for Queen Anne's county, and went to Annapolis yesterday and took charge of his new position.

SUBSCRIPTION BOOKS for the Chestertown Light, Power & Railway Company are now open at Stam's drug store. Let this enterprise receive the endorsement which its merit and importance deserve, and it will go immediately through.

JACKSON, the murderer of George J. Leager, on April the eighteenth, was sentenced on Tuesday to be hanged by the neck until dead, on such date as the Governor may hereafter designate. When asked if he had anything to say, he simply repeated his statement as given on the witnessstand, claiming self-defense. J. E. Lister was sentenced to eighteen years in the penitentiary for the killing of a colored boy for a pair of boots, particulars of which were given in the TRANSCRIPT at the time.

A MEETING of representative business men of Queen Anne's county, was held in Centreville on Tuesday in the interest of the proposed ship canal. Col. W. S. Roberts called the meeting to order, and W. H. DeCourcey was made chairman, and W. H. Gibson, secretary. Speeches were made by Col. Roberts, ex-Congressman John B. Brown, P. B. Hopper, Wilmer Emory and John Dodd. The committee on resolutions was appointed and reported a set of resolutions to the effect that the Senators and Representatives in Congress should be called upon to obtain aid from the government to build the canal; that the Queenstown route was the best, and that a committee of five from each district of the county be appointed to attend the mass meeting in Baltimore. The resolutions were adopted, and a committee of thirty-five was appointed to attend the meeting in Baltimore.

CONGRESSMAN ROBERT F. BRATTAN, died of Bright's disease, at his home near Princess Anne, at eight o'clock on Thursday morning last. Mr. Brattan had held several important political offices, and always with honor to himself and to the satisfaction of his constituency. Popular, a successful business man and a fine lawyer, he had a bright future before him. He was born in Barren Creek Springs, in Wicomico county, on May 13, 1845, and was graduated from Washington College, at Chestertown, Md., in 1864. He was appointed deputy register of wills immediately after his graduation, and while holding that office studied for the bar. He was a member of the State convention in 1865, which sent delegates to a peace convention held in Philadelphia, and at various times was a member of other State and Congressional conventions. His first elective office was to the House of Delegates in 1869. In 1873 he was sent to the State Senate, and was thereafter returned several times. In 1890 he was unanimously elected president of the Maryland Senate, and then, in the elections for the Fifty-third Congress, was sent to the National Capitol as a Democrat.

NEWS OF THE RAIL-ROADS.

The stockholders of the Baltimore & Delaware Bay Railroad, met at their office in Chestertown, on Saturday morning last, and elected the following directors for the ensuing year: S. R. Maxwell, president of the Jersey Central; J. W. Watson, treasurer of both the Jersey Central and the B. & D. B. R. R.; S. M. Williams, 2d vice-president and treasurer of the Jersey Central; Samuel Knox, secretary of both the J. C. and the B. & D. B. R. R.; George F. Baker, 1st vice-president Jersey Central, and R. W. DeForest, counsel for the J. C. The gentlemen came down by special train and were accompanied by Col. E. P. Stacey, superintendent of the Baltimore & Delaware Bay road.

Just as the noon train on the B. & D. B. R. R. came to a standstill at Chestertown on Wednesday of last week, one end of the heavy steel bar connecting two of the large driving wheels of the engine, dropped to the ground. An examination disclosed the fact that the pin had broken off, and a serious accident had been narrowly averted. Had the bar fallen from its place while the engine was in rapid motion, Engineer Horace Reed, whose seat is in the cab, just over the heavy drivers, must have received injuries of a most serious and possibly a fatal character.

One day last week, an engine on the switch leading from the depot to the paper mill, caught its smokestack into a heavy wire leading across the track to a stable, and tore down the wire and pulled out a portion of the stable, but did no damage to the engine.

The regular freight trains on the Queen Anne's and Kent road have been taken off, and much to the inconvenience of the traveling public, mixed freight and passenger trains will be run. The morning train will leave Centreville at 6.50 A. M., and will arrive at 11.55 A. M.

BROOKLYN'S TABERNACLE BURNED.

Dr. Talmage's Brooklyn tabernacle, the largest church edifice in the United States, was burned to the ground on Sunday. Dr. Talmage has lost three churches, and each time the fire fiend has swept them away on Sunday. The fire was first discovered in the organ just after the morning sermon. About one hundred persons were still in the building talking to the great preacher. The loss on the church is estimated at about $500,000, but scarcely less than two millions in property was destroyed, including the loss of other buildings. The trustees have decided to rebuild, but will erect a less expensive structure, and on a different site.

Russell Sage who has a mortgage of $125,000 on the church property, and is also the owner of the site on which it stood, is fully insured.

The magnificent Hotel Regent was totally destroyed, entailing a loss little short of $850,000. Dr. Talmage said: "There is mercy on top of the disaster. If it had occurred one-half hour before, it would have been the calamity of the century. The church and all the rooms adjoining were packed with people, and the panic would have left the whole scene one of indescribable horror. Or, if it had occurred two or three hours later, when the Sunday school was in session, there would have been a thousand households bereft in Brooklyn. Little children, helpless children, what would they have done? God cared for them; and even in this calamity his mercy is infinite.

DENOUNCED ON ALL SIDES.

The Tariff Bill Pleases Only the Beneficiaries of the Compromise.

Doubtless Senator William L. Wilson will allow Maryland's Senior Senator, to hold undisputed, his well-merited honors as father of the present tariff monstrosity, which many admirers of the Maryland senator are anxious should be known as "The Gorman Bill."

The New York Herald, says of the "Gorman Bill:" "Denunciation and criticism assail the Gorman compromise tariff bill on all hands, except from the Senators and Representatives who are the beneficiaries of the compromise.

Republicans denounce the bill, because, they say, it is not uniform in protecting American industries, and has only taken care of those that were able to bring sufficient pressure to bear upon the Democratic Senators to secure what they wanted. Genuine tariff reformers on the Democratic side, who steadfastly refused to go before the committee and ask that the interests of their localities be protected, fear the fruits of their victory at the polls in 1892 are to be thrown away because this Senator wants protection on one thing and the other Senator wants it on something else, and they have been able to make combinations and enforce their demands.

The Democrats who are responsible above all others for bringing about this condition of affairs are: Gorman, of Maryland; Gibson, of Maryland; Murphy, of New York; Smith, of New Jersey; McPherson, of New Jersey; Faulkner, of West Virginia; Camden, of West Virginia; Blanchard, of Louisiana; Caffery, of Louisiana; Brice, of Ohio.

These men have been responsible in different degrees for what has been done. Senators Faulkner and Camden, of West Virginia, for instance, would not have voted against the tariff bill had coal and iron ore been kept on the free list, but when protection was being distributed they were not backward about taking their share of it.

The Alabama Senators added their influence in favor of the coal and iron ore duties, though the tariff reform sentiment is so strong in their State they would hardly have dared to have stood out for these duties, and they would have been powerless to force concessions.

Senators Gorman, Brice and Smith have been generally credited with being the most active workers in bringing about the various deals, and Senator Jones, of Arkansas, and Vest of Missouri, who represented the Finance Committee in drawing up the compromise bill, must accept a full share of the responsibility for the result of their labors.

Senator Jones, upon whom has fallen the burden of arranging the tariff bill to suit enough Democrats to secure its passage through the Senate, is an earnest advocate of tariff reform, and those who have talked with him on the subject, know he has not relished his task, but when he once began to make concessions there was no place he could stop until every man who had a vote in the Senate and wanted anything in exchange for it, had been satisfied. The Democratic margin in the Senate is so small, he was practically compelled to pay each one his own price, and he did it on the principle that nothing could be quite as bad, from his point of view, as the McKinley bill.

The Democratic contention for free raw materials has been practically abandoned, except as to wool, and the only reason the compromise does not put wool on the dutiable list, is that none of the trading Senators happened to be sufficiently interested in protecting this article to form a combination in its behalf. Even the woolen manufacturers have had their protection increased to a point that tariff reformers consider out of all proportion to their necessities. Yet the fact that the bill still leaves wool on the free list is its only redeeming feature to many Democrats, and if it gets through the Senate and is agreed to in the House, it will be because it promises some small measures of relief to the buyers of woolen goods.

It may turn out that Senator Gorman and his fellow-compromisers have overreached themselves, and public opinion among Democrats may be so strong as to compel them to back down from their extreme demands and pass a bill more nearly on the lines of the measure passed.

CITY COLLEGE DEFEATED.

Washington College Men Play Great Ball and Down the City Nine—Other Notes.

On Saturday afternoon, the Washington College team won its second game from the B. C. C. on the Johns Hopkins grounds, at Clifton, by superior all round play. The City College men put up a fine game, but gave evidence from the first that they were outclassed, and were not "in it" with the visitors. Burris and Zearfoss put up splendid ball for the Washington College team, and the Richards were themselves again. Brice played a great game, and his magnificent assist from first to third was a feature of the game. Woodruff at second played fine ball, and his stop of a grounder was equal to the finest of professional work. Armstrong played a fine game at short, and showed what he can do with practice. Polk at third distinguished himself by a brilliant catch of a fowl fly. Holloway, Beaston and Boston did well in the outfield. Woodruff for B. C. C., batted finely, while M. Whitehurst at second, Brewer at first and Wilson put up a fine game.

The Junior base-ball club of Chestertown, Harrison W. Vickers, Jr., captain, and M. deK. Smith, Jr., manager, crossed bats with a nine from Church Hill, on the Washington College campus, on Monday last. The game was interesting and well-played throughout. The heat of the contest centred around the respective batteries but the Chestertown boys were too much for the visitors and defeated them by a score of 14 to 12. The home battery was Lucas and H. Greenwood in the box and Vickers behind the bat. Catlin and Trenchard formed the battery for the visitors. The Juniors will play a return game at Church Hill, on Saturday afternoon next.

The Betterton and Kennedyville baseball clubs played an interesting game on Saturday, at Still Pond. The Betterton team was short of a centre and right fielder, and in consequence went into the game with odds against them, but by strong general work defeated their doughty opponents by a score of 7 to 9. The batteries were: Wheeler and Owens for Betterton, and Johnson brothers for Kennedyville.

WITH THE BOATMEN.

A Handsome New Vessel—A Stranger in Port—Other Items of Interest.

The handsome new schooner, Sarah E. Vickers, built at the head of Lankford's bay, by Capts. John and Geo. Vickers, will be towed to Baltimore this week to receive the finishing touches before being finally christened and given to the seas. Capt. John E. Vickers has watched with tireless devotion the completion of the beautiful craft which will embody and represent many valuable suggestions given by him. The Sarah E. Vickers is a handsome model, and is built of the finest seasoned locust and cedar timber, natural growth. An experienced builder said on Saturday, that the Vickers is one of several boats built by the Vickers Brothers, and is one of the finest built vessels on the Chesapeake. She will have a carrying capacity of from 3800 to 4000 bushels of grain. The vessel is a beautiful model, is painted white, and bears the name of the deceased wife of Capt. John Vickers. The new vessel was launched in October last. Her masts, sails and rigging will be of the finest materials, and will be received in Baltimore. Congratulations to the fortunate owners, and wishes for a long and successful career are extended by the TRANSCRIPT.

One of the most interesting vessels which has ever visited Chestertown, is the William A. Wynant, of Pocomoke City. The boat is 90 feet long, and was built for freighting between Pocomoke City, Deal's Island and other points, and has the distinction of being the first and only vessel of the kind in the world. Though like a steamer in appearance, she has no smokestack, and there is a total absence of steam. Gasoline, which, combined with water and air, are converted into gas, supplies the fuel. The gasoline, notwithstanding its highly inflammable character, is rendered absolutely harmless because of the character of the methods used in its application as a fuel. An explosion would be out of the question, and the danger is less than from steam. The Wynant has a lower saloon, a roomy upper deck, and in addition to being peculiarly adapted for freighting purposes, is a delightful excursion boat. She has a passenger capacity of about two hundred persons, and can make from eight to ten miles per hour.

The pretty schooner Edna and Alice, belonging to Capt. Joseph Downey, is receiving a new suit of paint and a thorough overhaulding at Scott's Point.

The pleasure yacht, May, of Capts. Carl and Jack Westcott, is being repaired at Scott's Point, by Builder George E. Atkinson. The May, it will be remembered, was roughly used by the heavy storms and floods of last fall. After repairs are made, she will be handsomely painted.

Capt. Spencer Hurtt's steam launch, Marie, is being repainted and gotten ready for the pleasure season.

Capt. Col. William P. Howard has one of the handsomest boats of the Chestertown fleet.

Capt. William Taylor, of the Emma A. Ford, is one of the most vigorous riders in the Chestertown Cycle Club. It will be seen that the captain is not less at home on land than on the sea.

JACKSON MUST HANG.

William Jackson Found Guilty of the Murder of George J. Leager.

William Jackson, the negro, charged with the murder of George J. Leager, a farmer living in the upper part of Queen Anne's county, and attempting to murder Leager's fifteen-year-old stepson, Nathan Crossley, was put on trial at Centreville, on Friday morning, and convicted of murder in the first degree. Mr. T. L. Harley, assigned to defend Jackson, elected a trial before the court, consisting of Chief Judge John M. Robinson and Associate Judges Wickes and Stump. The courtroom and corridors were packed with people. Jackson pleaded not guilty.

Mrs. Leager, wife of the murdered man, was the first witness. She testified that at noon or the day of the shooting, she told Jackson to get her some water, which was a part of his daily work. Jackson refused to obey her orders and grew very impudent and abusive. She then told him to leave the house, and Jackson, who had been standing outside the door, mounted the doorstep and commenced cursing her. She told her husband of the affair, but he seemed to attach little importance to the threat, and left to borrow a feed-cutter. She then testified as to hearing the pistol report, and the finding of her husband in a dying condition a few minutes after.

Nathan Crossley, the stepson, also testified as to the threat he heard Jackson make at noon, and about Jackson calling for his father while they were nailing a feed-cutter to the floor of the barn. He stated that his father approached Jackson in a very mild manner, and in response to Jackson's request for a settlement of his wages due him, started to get out his pocket-book, when Jackson knocked him down and shot him. The boy, in his attempt to defend his father, was also shot. He is a lad of fourteen years, and small for his age.

Dr. J. L. Finley, who performed the autopsy, testified as to the character of the wound. Wesley Stevens, colored, testified that Jackson sought refuge at his house after the murder, and that Jackson told him of what had occurred, and remarked that he expected it would be wise for him to remain in the woods during the night. Policeman Amos B. Kelley, of Chestertown, testified as to the arrest of Jackson at the house of Wesley Stevens, and the finding of the pistol and hatchet. The prisoner was put on the stand and claimed that Mr. Leager made an assault on him with a hatchet, and that he acted in self defense.

Judge Wickes stated that as the State had such a clear case it would be closed without argument, and within exactly two and one-half hours after the case was called, the verdict of murder in the first degree was rendered. Before Judge Wickes had finished speaking, a great commotion was raised in the court-room by an attempt on the part of the spectators to applaud. This was quickly stopped. Sentence was deferred.

The murder was one of the most cruel and cold-blooded in the history of the Eastern Shore, the particulars of which have already been published in the TRANSCRIPT. Centreville has scarcely ever before seen so great a crowd at any trial.

MRS. STEVENSON ARCHER on Saturday last visited her husband, at the hospital where he is now under treatment. Saturday was the first time Mrs. Archer had seen her husband since she bade him good bye, and he left her to confess his guilt. As stated last week, Mr. Archer is now a free man, through the executive clemency of Governor Brown.

A $100,000 fire occurred in Boston Tuesday night, and over 500 families of the medium and lower classes are homeless. The fire was an incendiary.

EPWORTH LEAGUE ANNIVERSARY.

A Splendid Record Shown by the Reports of Committees.

The Chestertown chapter of the Epworth League celebrated the fifth anniversary of the organization, on Sunday evening last. The programme was elaborate, varied and interesting throughout. First came a delightful organ voluntary by Miss Anna G. Lambert, followed by the beautiful quartette, "Praise Ye the Lord," sung by Mrs. Miller, Miss Sue Lambert, sopranos; Miss Stiles, Miss Clara Downey, altos; J. W. Bordley and Arlie Sparks, bassos; Edward Lambert, tenor. Singing by the League was followed by a fervent prayer by Mr. Howard Covey, of Washington College. After a pretty vocal trio by Miss Stiles, Miss Anna G. Lambert and J. W. Bordley, Miss N. E. Gooding read a carefully prepared and intensely interesting paper, "Our Epworth Wheel." Following singing by the League, Miss Elisabeth Stuart read an exhaustive report showing the splendid work accomplished by the League. The work of the League is divided into six departments. Under the head of the Department of Christian Work, Miss Stuart showed the following highly satisfactory results: From a beginning of four, the attendance upon the Epworth prayer meetings has increased to an average of over one hundred for the year, 416 persons have taken prominent parts, 354 songs have been sung, 208 prayers offered, 253 testimonials given, and nearly 6000 persons have attended these services. In the Mercy and Help Department, it was shown that on Feb. 6, a Mercy and Help Circle was organized, composed of a band of 20 earnest christian workers; 151 visits were made to the sick, 19 visits to new comers, 292 religious papers and tracts, with one Bible were distributed. Flowers were carried to 18 sick persons, 72 articles of clothing were distributed, and $34 given in practical charity. This department has also furnish clothing to whole families, enabling them to attend religious services each Sunday.

Once each month the almshouse is visited, religious services are held, and flowers and delicacies for the sick are given out. Under the head of the Literary Department, earnest and systematic Bible study was pursued, a delightful "Evening with Early Methodism" was spent, and the pleasant and instructive lecture by Mr. Takaki, was given. By the Department of Entertainment, several delightful social occasions were provided, flowers gotten for the church, music provided for special occasions and ushers appointed. It is now laboring for the necessary carpet, furniture and other articles for a church parlor, which can be secured at a cost of about $100. The room will be made bright, pretty and generally attractive. Both the treasurer and secretary made interesting reports. President of the League, M. W. Thomas, made an interesting address, "The Ideal Epworthian." Rev. W. P. Compton also made a pleasant address. The evening was one of unusual pleasure.
