R. HARRISON COLLINS. C. COX HOPPER.

COLLINS & HOPPER,

EDITORS AND PUBLISHERS.

BERNARD CARTER, ESQ., of the Baltimore bar, has been elected provost of the University of Maryland in the place of the late S. Teackle Wallis.

THE Crisfield Times says, relative to the Congressional fight: "Give us Miles, and Somerset will honor herself by the majority with which she will endorse his candidacy in November."

PHILEMON B. HOPPER, ESQ., prosecuting attorney for Queen Anne's county, and one of the editors of the Centreville Record, is being strongly advocated as a candidate for the Congressional nomination in the First district.

MR. J. F. CONNELLY has petitioned Collector Shaw, for an appointment to an unclassified position in the Baltimore Custom House. There are about forty of the unclassified positions, and Kent has already registered thirteen applications.

THE DELEGATION of representative Kent county Democrats in attendance at the meeting of the State Central Committee in Baltimore on the sixth instant, have returned, and many of the gentlemen positively state that with a united Democracy, Kent county could secure the nomination of one of her sons for Congress. If this be the case, as we sincerely trust that it is, let unity prevail. We know of no reason why it should not be so. Certainly the influence of the TRANSCRIPT is, and shall be for a united Democracy and harmony all along the line, looking to the success of the party in the county and throughout the State,—unless such harmony and such success must be at the cost of a surrender of the best interests of the people, and the sacrifice of the manhood and honor of the individual. If that be the cost, we now enter our eternal protest against any such harmony. We do not intend that any act of ours shall be said to have prejudiced the interests of any proper Kent countian for so responsible a trust as Congressman of the United States. No gentleman eminently worthy of the support and confidence of the party and people, not only in Kent, but in the First Congressional District, shall be prejudiced by our utterances or acts.

The nomination of a tried and true party man, thoroughly in sympathy with, and interested in the revival of our prosperous agricultural interests, is the man this county and congressional district most needs in Congress. The present it will be found is not the time for needless exhibitions of local jealousies. Mr. Vickers still refuses to announce his intentions relative to the contest, but should he, at the proper time determine to enter the field, the Democracy of Kent county it were safe to say, will be found at its post laboring for his success. It is claimed that we are in error in stating that there exists any semblance of friction in local ranks, now let the gentlemen who claim that we are in error, prove the virity and truth of their assertion. As a Kent countian, as a staunch and abiding Democrat, Mr. Vickers should have the undivided support of his county and the local managers of his party, should he enter the contest for the congressional nomination.

AN INFORMAL LUNCHEON will be enjoyed by a large number of invited guests, at the Merchants' Club, Baltimore, to day, at three o'clock. The invitation says: "You will have the pleasure of meeting the presidents of the various corporations and organizations of this city, and also the proprietors of its newspapers; the purpose being a better acquaintance with the objects and plans of this association, and to have it enjoy the benefits of your advice and most earnest co-operation in making our celebration of the One Hundredth Anniversary of Baltimore's Incorporation as a city the occasion of a great 'Southern Exposition' commensurate with its geographical and commercial importance, that were so significantly and unanimously endorsed by the entire south through their representatives in the Inter-State Industrial Congress assembled in the city of Augusta, Ga., upon the 30th ultimo." Baltimore city stands preeminently the great commercial centre on the Atlantic seaboard, and it behooves her as well as every citizen and newspaper in the State, so far as is possible, to make, in its truest sense, the proposed exposition worthy the centennial occasion of the richest and most progressive city in the south.

MARYLAND JOURNALISM.

The Easton Democrat, John Y. Todd, editor, with Saturday's issue, celebrated its tenth anniversay. Mr. Todd assumed control of the Democrat in September, 1888, and by dint of constant labor, a painstaking and intelligent management of its affairs, has forced it to the front, until to-day it claims the largest circulation of any journal in Talbot county. Would not it have been a dainty and highly gratifying recognition of the occasion, had President Cleveland on Saturday sent on to the Democrat's editor his official appointment as postmaster at Easton?

The State, a Republican weekly, published in Baltimore, made its bow and stepped upon the stage of journalistic life on Saturday last. The State announces that it will not recognize factional contests or bickerings within the ranks of the Republican party, but will labor for the solidification and upbuilding of the party and its principles.

ELKTON AND SOUTHERN.

Another Railway Company to Connect with the System.

A certificate of incorporation of a new railroad to be known as the Eastern and Chestertown Railroad, was filed on Friday in the clerk's office at Centreville, by the following incorporators: James A. Pearce and Charles T. Westcott, of Chestertown; George E. Haddaway and Wm. Goldsborough, of Easton, and P. H. Feddeman, of Centreville. The capital stock is placed at $500,000, to be issued in 10,000 shares of $50 each. The projected road is an extension of the Elkton and Southern system.

The proposed route begins at Easton, and will run through Talbot, Queen Anne's and Kent counties, through Centreville and Church Hill to Chestertown, with branches from the main line, as may be considered advantageous. This is the third line which has been incorporated connecting Easton and Chestertown, and as they traverse a section of country noted for its richness and much in need of better facilities for transportotion, the prospect of the successful construction of one of them is very flattering. The residents of the counties are alive to its necessity and would readily grant the right of way upon favorable terms.

THE BASE BALL FIELD.

Another Triumph for W. C.—The Federalsburg Game.

The ball game last Saturday between Washington College and Johns Hopkins University was a walk over for the former. Hopkins after the second inning was completely snowed under and never had a ghost of a show to win. They arrived on the ground about 5.30 P. M. having had a break-down on the way. They were sent to the bat first, and all they could do was to score 2 runs in the second, after which goose eggs were all that were drawn. The home team played 7 innings while Hopkins had their full game of nine. Burris struck out 13 of the visitors and allowed but 5 hits. Zearfoss caught in his usual fine style and Woodruff showed up well again at second. Boston occupied right field for the college and besides capturing a fine fly made two hits. All he needs is use and he will be all right. Polk was not up to his usual pace, making several errors. The remainder of the team were decidedly in the game. The visitors can not be said to have played a fast game at any point. They were over-matched and knew it. Below is the score:

The Lutherville-Johns-Hopkins-University-Baltimore-city-State-of-Maryland-base-ball combination came to Chestertown yesterday, and, thanks to the unusual magnanimity of the home team in surrendering a point to which they were clearly entitled by the rules, won from the Washington College team by a score of 4 to 5. The visitors should not have been indulged in their childish sulkiness in threatening "not to play" because of an intense desire to win, rules and common sense to the contrary notwithstanding. The home men could have maintained their position, without in the least subjecting themselves to any adverse criticism of unfairness, and they should have done so. The score follows:

AN UMPIRE DEFENDED.

MESSRS. EDITORS:—We are inclined to believe that some of our town papers were somewhat harsh in their criticisms of the umpire of the game of Saturday, June 2, and displayed very poor taste in using their sarcasm so freely in their accounts of the game.

Had the umpire been a man wholly uninterested in our college athletics and uninterested in the "boys," such criticisms might have been appropriate. But we beg leave to call attention to the fact that he is the man to whom the association goes in time of financial embarrassment, and to whom the manager goes whenever help is needed.

And again, we feel perfectly confident that both papers are ignorant regarding the proper decision of the point in question. We all know this was the first game of the season played with one umpire, and while we do not claim that the umpire was excusable for not seeing the point, we do say emphatically that it is very hard for a man to umpire the game alone when he is accustomed to two umpires.

So coming to the point, the said papers do not seem to take into consideration the fact that the umpire did not see the play, consequently could not call the man out. Then we say there was no rotten umpiring, for the umpire could not pass judgment on a point that he did not see.

COLLEGIAN.

The Federalsburg club, which claims to be the champions of the Eastern Shore, will drive all the way to Chestertown next Saturday to show "the college boys how to play ball." They are the victors of 13 straight games without a defeat this season. The Messrs. Goldsborough brothers, former students of the college, on a visit to their alma mater this week, state that the Caroline boys have as fine a field as they ever saw. The only trouble they will have will be with Pitcher Burris. The patrons should not miss this game, as it promises to be highly entertaining.

In response to the challenge issued by the second nine of Washington College, through the TRANSCRIPT, to play any nine in the county, for the championship, the Kennedyville nine has taken up the gauntlet, offering to meet the college men on any Saturday. The sixteenth will be the only Saturday left before the college team disbands, and as the first team has a game for that date, it seems that no satisfactory arrangement can be made for a contest.

A Cecilton team defeated the 3d nine of Galena, in a fourteen-inning game on Saturday by a score of 5 to 3.

Galena defeated Millington on Saturday by a score of 38 to 3.

At Kennedyville on Saturday, Kennedyville, 16, Locust Grove, 27. At same place, Kennedyville 9, Betterton 0. Next Saturday there will be a game between the old men and the young men of Kennedyville.

CHILDREN'S DAY EXERCISES.

Delightful Programmes Rendered by Children—Large Audiences Approve Their Efforts.

The Sunday school of the M. E. Church, of Chestertown, on Sunday evening last, observed Children's Day with an elaborate and delightful programme, instead of the regular evening service. This annual celebration has for its object the raising of funds, which are turned over to the Board of Education, which board lends out the money to young men, deserving and yet without means, in order that they may equip themselves for missionaries and ministers of the gospel.

This year's programme was full of interest and instruction, and was most creditably and successfully carried out before a crowded audience. The theme of the most important feature of the evening's entertainment, was "The Church of the Future," and the back of the pulpit was a neatly constructed representation of the front of a church, of Roman architecture, supported by six large pillars. After music by the choir, prayer by the Rev. W. P. Compton, pastor, responsive reading by the school, and the singing of a hymn, a highly creditable introductory address was delivered by Mr. Charles Pippin.

Maltese crosses were then successively hung upon the pillars of the church, containing inscriptions, which as they were severally hung, were shown to be, together with Christ as the foundation, essential requisites, to a successful establishment of "The Church of the Future." The first, "Christly Love," was hung, with a short recitation, by Miss Adel France; "Aggressive Work," by Messrs. McMorman and Brinsfield, who, in a dialogue, showed the necessity thereof; "Social Reforms," and the accompanying address by Mr. Covey; "Christian Equality," by Misses Mary Vickers and Minnie Peregoy, showing in a dialogue the possibility and necessity of equality in Christ's Church, and "Young People," by Messrs. Dashiel and Harry Anthony. At this point an exercise by the infant class was introduced, consisting of singing and recitations. Four girls then gave recitations on "The Great Tomorrow." "The Glory of a Child," a duet by Misses Clara Downey and Claudia Thompson was splendidly rendered. The last cross was hung by the superintendent, Mr. W. Bradford Copper, who then led the school in a responsive reading, closing with the board's motto:

A collection from every school;
A dime from every scholar;
A dollar from all who can give it;
Thousands from the rich.

The pleasant exercises were frequently interspersed with music by the choir, Miss Belle Pippin presiding at the organ, accompanied by Mr. Jacob Thompson, on the cornet. After the collection and the closing hymn the programme was concluded with the benediction by the pastor.

May this beautiful custom long continue to lend strength, viror and hope to the girls and boys of christianized and christianity in America, led by a triumphant gospel.

AT CHRIST M. P. CHURCH.

A specially prepared and finely rendered programme greeted the crowded house at Christ Church, Chestertown, on Sunday last. It was surely a day for the children. At the morning service, the pastor, Dr. S. R. Murray, delivered a most excellent address especially to the children. He spoke appropriately of the ancient observance of Children's Day among all nations, and traced its continuance in modified forms to the present day. He also urged the importance of training the child to feel his responsibility in society, and to realize that it is a part of his life work to make some one else happy. The principal feature of the day, however, was the evening exercises. The church was handsomely decorated with blooming plants and cut flowers, and with the smiling faces and gay costumes of the little ones, presented a scene of joy and gladness. The programme used was prepared by the Rev. T. E. Coulbourn, missionary steward of the Maryland Conference. The committee in charge of the preparation of this prgramme deserve great credit for the excellent manner in which it was rendered. Every one performed his part nobly, and it is only for want of space that we do not particularize on any individual participant. The chief feature of the programme was "A Talk to the Nations by Telephone." Five boys, each in his turn, advanced to the telephone and called up China, Japan, India, the islands of the sea, and America, to know how Christ's cause was advancing in these lands; and each received the reply that "it has brought them out of the darkness of sin into the light of righteousness and truth." The singing, under the direction of Prof. W. W. Chapman, was of an especially high order. Christ Church Sunday School is noted for its liberality, and it did not fail on this occasion to contribute a gratifying sum to the cause of foreign missions exclusively. The collection amounted to $62 00; and the successful contestant for the banner was Mr. J. D. Bacchus' class, which contributed $12.00. The three highest classes were:

Mr. J. D. Bacchus	$12.05
Mrs. T. R. Hubbard	8.25
Mr. W. W. Hubbard	8.00

Dr. Murray delivered the banner to the successful class with some appropriate remarks, after which the pastor, assisted by the advisory committee of the church, received into full membership Messrs Holloway, Baxter, Smith and Cowman. This was a most fitting conclusion to that day's services, which has for its object the bringing of the young men and women into the work of the church.

THE DAY AT UNION.

Children's Day was observed by elaborate and beautiful exercises at Union M. E. Church, in Queen Anne's, near Chestertown, on Sunday morning last. Back of the altar was a magnificent pyramid of flowers, over-spanning which was a graceful arch. Palms, ferns and potted plants added further to the beauty of the church. The programme:

THE DAY AT ST. JAMES.

St. James has never known a more delightful celebration of Children's Day than that of Sunday last. Flowers, palms, sweet music and the joyous, smiling faces of boys and girls formed a pleasing picture indeed. Parents proud of their children and teachers not less delighted with the splendid results of their labors, were there, while Superintendent of the school, G. Wash. Skirven had every reason to be more than gratified at the splendid success of his stewardship. The church was handsomely decorated, and sweet music added to the charms of the occasion. The following is the programme so successfully rendered:

THE DAY AT WORTON.

The Union Church, of Worton, celebrated Children's Day on Sunday evening last. Throngs of people crowded the windows outside, while inside every seat was occupied. The pulpit of the church never showed to better advantage than on this happy occasion, when all the children's hearts blended together in perfect happiness. The whole background of the pulpit was covered with evergreen, while to the front hung lace draperies crossed with box wood and cedars, which swung gracefully from the highest points of the pulpit presenting a picture of perfect loveliness. The music was of the finest selection and was exceedingly well rendered, every voice resounding through the church with the sweetest sentiments. The recitations were beautifully delivered, reflecting much credit on the children's skillful instructors. Throughout the whole programme the pieces seemed to be highly appreciated. The following is the programme:

THE DAY AT WESLEY CHAPEL.

Children's service was held at Wesley Chapel last Sunday morning and evening. The floral decoration was grand and beyond description. The church was beautifully decorated throughout, and a vast number of cut flowers of rare beauty were greatly admired. But in addition to this, was an arch placed over the altar, with a pretty basket of flowers suspended from the top. The space back of the arch to the wall was filled with flowers, which formed a sloping bank, which was about seven or eight feet high at the wall, and leading from this up the wall several feet was a frame covered with evergreen boughs, on which hung a beautiful cross made of daisies, altogether forming a most delightful scene. Indeed it seemed almost impossible to have a more beautiful arrangement of flowers. The chirping of the canaries and the melodious strains of music by choir and school, and the beauty of the flowers, seemed to form one harmonious chord, and no doubt gave inspiration to the children, for they took their parts in the service grandly. The programme rendered in the morning was the programme as arranged by the M. P. Foreign Missionary Board, with the addition of several songs by the children. The singing was good and highly appreciated, but the congregation was wonderfully pleased with a solo by Master Douglas Gresham, (a boy four years old.) It surely was rendered nicely. Many of the other pieces were well rendered and deserve special mention, but as they all did so well we would hardly know where to begin or where to leave off, except by giving the whole programme. The evening programme was arranged by the school, and showed what the children have done and what they hope to do.

The day was one well spent. Our school is wide-awake in the missionary work. The amount of collection was $45.50. The programmes were announced by two of the scholars of the school, Misses Julia Burgess and Ella Stevens, one announcing the recitation and the other the music. The superintendent enjoyed this new feature of the occasion and says it was one of the most pleasant children's services he ever attended. We all would be glad to have such a pleasant day again in the near future.

The Children's Day exercises held at the Crumpton M. P. Church, were witnessed by an immense audience. The church was beautifully decorated with flowers and evergreens. Mrs. Dr. Hackett labored zealously in arranging for the enjoyable programme.

The Children's Day exercises of the Kennedyville M. P. Church will be different from former celebrations of the day, in that they will include both the morning and evening services. The pleasa nt programme will be given on Sunday next.

A GLORIOUS RECORD.

Centreville Methodists Celebrate Their Centennial Anniversary—Religious Persecution.

The interesting exercises of the Centennial Celebration of the Centreville M. E. Church, commenced on Wednesday of last week. The church was handsomely decorated with potted plants and bright blossoms. Suspended over the chance in large characters made of evergreen, appeared the sentence, "1794—Methodist Meeting House—1894. The exercises opened with a Love Feast from 9.30 to 10.30 A. M., conducted by the Rev. J. E Bryan. At 10.30 A. M., Rev. J. E. Willis preacked the opening sermon, taking his text from St. John XII, 5. In the afternoon Rev. Charles A. Hill read an interesting, historical address, prepared for the occasion.

The Methodist Episcopal Church in Centreville became a corporate body, December 26, 1834. The present church structure was built and dedicated to the worship of Almighty God, on December 25, 1856, Rev. Thomas W. Simpers being the minister in charge.

Said Mr. Hill in his address: "Our church in Centreville has given to the church at large one bishop, John Emory, who was licensed to exhort March 5, 1807, when his name first appeared in records of this charge. From her fold have gone out many ministers to preach the unsearchable riches of Christ. John Ruth and James Bateman, 1806; John D. Crouch, E. Reed and Wm. Quinn, 1817, John Scull, 1818, John W. Bordley, 1827, Edward Sanders, 1834, Wm. Maginnis, 1835. Edward Townsend, 1851, R. W. Todd, 1853, Joel Brown, 1863, E. B. Newnam, 1866, John A. Cooper, 1868, J. C. Russum, 1878, I. L. Wood, 1884, R. T. Coursey, 1887."

Says the Centreville Record:—"The evening programme opened with song service, conducted by Rev. R. T. Coursey. The remainder of the evening was devoted to personal reminiscences by Revs. B. F. Price, J. S. Willis, J. E. Bryan, Theodore Stevens and T. E. Bell.

"The services on Thursday morning were opened with song service, conducted by Rev. C. W. Prettyman, and was followed by an excellent sermon by Rev. Theodore Stevens, from the text, 'And he said, I beseech thee show me thy glory'—Exodus XXXIII. 18.

"In the afternoon Rev. B. F. Price read a twenty-minute paper on 'Sunday School.' Rev. J. P. Otis read a paper on 'General Church Statistics.' Mr. Olin Bryan read a paper on 'Our Epworth League.' Each of which were listened to with attention and gave much pleasure and information.

"In the evening the exercises began with song service conducted by Rev. Ralph T. Coursey, which was followed by reminiscences by Revs. J. O. Sypherd, C. W. Prettyman, J. P. Otis and C. A. Hill. The subject, 'Our Boys in the Ministry,' was discussed by Rev. Joel Brown, Isaac L. Wood, Ralph T. Coursey and Joseph C. Russum."

PERSECUTION OF A MINISTER.

Freeborn Garrettson was persecuted and imprisoned for his devotion to the cause of Methodism. When he was stationed on Kent circuit in 1778, he labored in Kent and Cecil, and a part of Delaware without molestation. When he came to Queen Anne's, however, he was threatened with imprisonment. As he was riding into Kent, between Church Hill and Chestertown, his persecutors seized the bridle of his horse and told him he must go to jail. Mr. Garrettson remonstrated, whereupon he was beaten over the head and shoulders with a club, and was left on the ground in an insensible condition. He was restored to consciousness, and was brought to Mr. Dudley's, where he sat in his bed that night and preached to a few Methodists. Thomas Ware traveled Kent circuit in 1784. This was the year when a new impulse was given to Methodism by a distinguished arrival from England, the great Dr. Thomas Coke.

Rev. Francis Asbury, afterward bishop, was then preaching in Queen Anne's. Worn by travel and preaching, he arrived on Sunday, during public worship, at Barrett's Chapel. There stood in the pulpit a man of small stature, ruddy complexion, brilliant eyes and gowned as an English clergyman. Asbury ran up to the pulpit, embraced him and kissed him before the whole congregation, for he was no other than Thomas Coke, LL. D., called then the man of smallest stature and largest heart that Methodism ever knew. He came direct from John Wesley to cheer the heart of the lonely laborer, and to effect the most momentous revolution in American Methodism. He had been ordained bishop by Wesley just before his departure. On his way to the Christmas conference, Dr. Coke passed through the bounds of Kent circuit.

RIDDLED WITH BULLETS.

One of the Murderers of Constable Edward Carver Shot Down in His Cell.

Isaac Kemp, the ringleader of a band of twelve negro berry-pickers, who brutally murdered constable Edward Carver, by slashing him with a razor after having beaten him senseless with an empty beer bottle, at Miller's store, Somerset county, on Wednesday of last week, was riddled by bullets in Princes Anne jail on Friday. Carver became embroiled with the men while trying to preserve order in a store, where they demanded liquor to drink, which was refused them. Frank McCready, who went to the constable's assistance was also brutally beaten. After their performances at Miller's store, ten of the gang were captured by a hastily-organized searching party. The two others were subsequently secured, and they were all locked up Thursday night in Princess Anne jail. It is said the negroes are all from Virginia. The ringleader of the gang, Isaac Kemp, was chained to the floor of his cell, and was shot as he lay, about 2 o'clock Friday morning. The mob surrounding the prison numbered seventy-five men. The jailer was awakened at about 1 o'clock. Two men were at the jail door, who said that they had two prisoners. No one but the two men being in sight and not suspecting anything wrong, the jailer returned to his room, put on his clothes and returned to the outer door with a lamp. As soon as he opened the door he was pinioned by a number of men, the lamp was thrown to the floor and the keys of the jail demanded. The sheriff refused to surrender the keys. In the meantime Sheriff Stirling and a young man by the name of Gibbons, both of whom were stopping in the jail, were aroused and rushed into the hall. These gentlemen were also immediately pinioned. The mob, after a few minutes, not finding the keys, secured an oak beam, two by eight inches and ten feet long, and by using it as a battering-ram broke down the door and gained an entrance to the corridor of the jail. They again asked for keys to the cells, and also demanded that Kemp be pointed out to them, threatening to kill every prisoner in the jail until they had accomplished their purpose.

After a few minutes they found Kemp and shot at him three times through the grating of the door. They then proceeded downstairs in the jailer's private room, after a thorough search, found the keys, and with a hurrah rushed upstairs, threw open the cell door and riddled the murderer's body with bullets, about fifty shots being fired. The mob then wanted to take the body with them, but after some argument they consented to leave it.

None of the other prisoners in the jail committed for the same crime were troubled by the mob, their only object being the death of Kemp. The mob consisted of about seventy five men, most of whom were masked, carrying guns, pistols and rifles.

The men who told Warden Dryden they had a prisoner to deliver said the prisoner was in a wagon. There was a wagon but it contained not a prisoner, but a heavy piece of oak timber, with which they battered down the iron grating leading to the upper floor. Kemp's cell was protected by two doors, one of iron, the other of oak wood.

There were eight wounds on the body of Kemp, any one of which would have been fatal. Samuel and Sewell Webb, whose masks fell off, are claimed to have been recognized as among the raiders.

Isaac Kemp was a black, burly negro, about twenty-three years of age, and very muscular, with an extremely vicious countenance. He came from Key West, Fla.
