THE STARS AND STRIPES.

Special Honors Paid to Old Glory on Thursday—Its History.

The fairest flag among the nations—the glorious stars and stripes—on Thursday waved throughout the country in honor of the Continental Congress' adoption, in 1777, of our national ensign. The history of this bright banner is full of interest. It was nearly a year after the Declaration of Independence was signed that a committee was appointed to select a suitable design for a national flag, John Adams, of Massachusetts, being the master spirit. On June 14 the committee made its report, recommending that the flag of the thirteen States consist of thirteen stripes, alternate red and white; that the union be represented by thirteen stars—white, in a blue field—representing a new constellation. The report was accepted, and a sample flag of silk was displayed in Congress. The blue union was made square, reaching to the eighth stripe. The stars were arranged as the circumference of a circle.

Though the national flag was adopted in June, formal announcements was not made until September 3d, when, for the first time, its folds were flung to the breeze as a national ensign. The first public use of the flag was made by Paul Jones, who ran it up to the masthead of his brig, the Ranger, at Portsmouth, and put to sea to prove himself a terror to English merchant shipping. Prior to this nearly every colony had from one to five symbols, but all now carried the Stars and Stripes. The flag was first flown on land during the campaign which resulted in the capture of Philadelphia by Lord Howe. From that time it was the recognized ensign of the republic until May 1, 1795, when the number of stars and stripes were each increased to fifteen, to take on Vermont and Kentucky. This was secured by Senator Bradley, of Vermont. This enlarged flag was floated during the war of 1812 and 1814.

In 1816 a number of new states having been admitted, Congress appointed a committee to consider the question of altering the flag. Captain Reed, the naval hero, advocated before the committee the reduction of the number of stripes to thirteen, and the adoption of a number of stars equal to the number of states, formed into the shape of one large star. This arrangement was not wholly approved, but the following year a similar bill, with the exception of the arranging of the stars, was approved by President Monroe on April 14, 1818, and this is the flag we see daily floating from our public buildings. The union has now been changed from a square to a rectangle, and on it are forty-four stars, symbolic of the number of states. The stars are arranged in six straight lines, the upper and lower lines having eight stars, and the other four lines seven stars.

RABBIT WHIPS A SNAKE.

How a Timid Animal Fought to Protect its Young.

Of all animals the rabbit has the reputation of being the most timid. There are times, however, when even the rabbit will fight, as an incident witnessed by G. F. Kinnamon one day last week will show.

Mr. Kinnamon lives on Col. Thomas Hughlett's "Pleasant Valley" farm in Goldsborough's Neck. When going to Easton one day last week he saw a pitched battle between a rabbit and a huge black snake, several feet long and as large as a man's wrist. From the actions of the belligerents Mr. Kinnamon concluded that the rabbit was protecting its young from the snake.

For fully half an hour the battle waged. The snake would coil itself and fly at the rabbit, when the rabbit would dodge the attack and in turn bite at the snake. On more than one occasion the snake had wrapped itself around the rabbit's body, but the rabbit managed to slip out of the coils each time.

Finally the snake would grow tired, and then the rabbit would jump on it, bite it in the back and claw it from head to tail. Repeated assaults of this kind had covered the entire body of the snake with blood. Then the fight would be resumed in earnest, the snake flying at the rabbit and the rabbit dodging, biting and clawing.

The rabbit at last won the battle, and appeared to be unhurt, while the snake, thoroughly played out, dragged itself across the road and into the woods, a bloody trail marking the direction it had gone.—Easton Ledger.

The Pretty Pink Peach.

Peaches are a tonic, an aperient, a food and a drink combined; or to put it briefly, they are meat and medicine. A good meal may be made on cut peaches, with sugar and cream, bread and butter. After a meal of this variety a person will feel more like attending to the duties of the afternoon than if he or she indulged in heavy foods. Peaches are good before breakfast and after dinner; they are good for the digestion, good for the blood and good for the complexion. Some people eat them without cream or sugar, and with good results. The fruit is so rich in sugar and acid that it preserves its flavor a long while, but to get the full benefit it should be eaten as soon as it is cut. Redness of the nose, due to congestion; inflamed complexions, scrofulous and bilious tendencies are said to be materially influenced by a liberal consumption of this luscious fruit.

An Old Rhyme Reset.

"Affliction sore long time she bore
Physicians were in vain."
At last one day, a friend did say,
"You'd soon be well again if you would take, as I did, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, for that is the cure for all the peculiar ailments of women. It is safe, simple and sure remedy. It banishes those distressing maladies that make woman's life a burden, curing all painful irregularities, uterine disorders, inflammation and ulcerations, prolapsus and kindred weaknesses. As a nervine it cures nervous exhaustion, prostration, debility, relieves mental anxiety and hypochondria and induces refreshing sleep." She took the advice and is well. "Favorite Prescription" is the only remedy for the delicate derangements and weakness of females, sold only by druggists, under a positive guarantee of curing in every case, or money paid for it returned.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Fletcher is on every wrapper.
