RASPBERRY RECEIPTS.

The common garden raspberry has at least the dignity of old family. As far back as the fourth century it was cultivated by the Romans. This species was the first of the name; but there are other varieties, among them a few American natives of less value than those from an imported stock. All of them, foreign or domestic—yellow, red or black—have a delicious and characteristic flavor, the red possessing in especial measure a bouquet that is almost aromatic.

As is the case with most other fruits, the raspberry is never quite so grateful to the palate as when eaten fresh, with or without sugar and cream. It may be used as a substitute for strawberries in many made desserts, and has one advantage over the strawberry in that it does not lose so much of its peculiar flavor when cooked.

Raspberry Meringue.—Line a pie-plate with good light pastry, and bake in a quick oven. While still warm, spread thickly with red raspberries. Make a meringue of the whites of 4 eggs beaten stiff with a half-cupful of powdered sugar, and when it is a froth stir lightly through it a half-pint of raspberries. Heap the meringue on top of the berries in the pie-plate, and brown very delicately in the oven. Eat as soon as it is cool.

Raspberry Cream.—Half-box gelatine; half-cup cold water; half-cup boiling water; 1 cup sugar; 1 pint cream, whipped; 1 pint raspberry juice. Soak the gelatine one hour in the cold water, then put it with the sugar and boiling water in a double boiler over the fire, and stir until thoroughly dissolved. Add the rasberry juice; strain and set in a cool place. When it has begun to form stir in the whipped cream, turn into a mould, and set on the ice to harden.

Raspberry Trifle.—6 small sponge-cakes, such as are sold for a cent apiece at baker's shops; 1 quart milk; 5 eggs; 1 cup sugar; 1 quart red rasberries; 1 cup sweet cream; vanilla for flavoring. Make a custard of the milk, the sugar, and the yolks of the eggs, flavoring with vanilla. Split the cakes; lay half of them in the bottom of a glass dish; pour over them half the cream, and strew thickly with the berries sprinkled with sugar. Cover these with a second layer of cake, moistened with the rest of the cream, and spread with the remainder of the berries. Pour the ice-cold custard over all; beat the whites of the eggs to a stiff meringue with a little powdered sugar; mix in a handful of berries, and heap the meringue on top of the trifle.—From Harpers' Bazar.

POOR PEACH PROSPECTS.

Report of the Agricultural Department, Falling Off in Maryland.

The report of the statistician of the Department of Agriculture for June, says that a glance at the percentages of condition of peaches on June 1st is sufficient to show how disastrous the season has been thus far. The returns at this date relate principally to bloom in the more northern districts, and, were conditions high, it would yet be too early to form an opinion as to crop results. As fruit does not recover from a low condition early in its history, as other products often do, it is safe to construe the extremely low figures into a practical failure of the crop. The condition for 1894 in the States producing the commercial crop, as compared with 1893, makes a poor showing for this year as follows:

New Jersey, 1893, 104; 1894, 65. Delaware, 1893, 93; 1894, 15. Maryland, 1893, 93; 1894, 21. Virginia, 1893, 63; 1894, 15. Georgia, 1893, 82; 1894, 7. Ohio, 1893, 74; 1894, 43; Michigan, 1893, 86; 1894, 70. California, 1893, 83; 1894, 85.

The best prospects east of the Rocky Mountains are in New Jersey and Michigan. The condition of apples is somewhat better than that of peaches. In sections of New England, where the season is far enough advanced for the fact to be determined, prospects are unusually promising. In New York trees have bloomed full, but counties report damage from frost and cold rains. A sudden decline in the conditions begins with New Jersey and Pennsylvania, due to the causes just stated, and the increased damage from the freezing weather of March further south is clearly indicated.

A CURIOUS CALCULATION.

The Capacity of Heaven as an Expert in Figures Calculates It.

A correspondent of the Newcastle Chronicle says: From Bombaugh's "Gleanings for the Curious" I read the following curious calculation on the capacity of Heaven: The base of the calculation is found in Revelation xxi. "And he measured the City of Jerusalem with a reed 12,000 furlongs. The length, the breadth and the height are equal." Let us see; 12,000 furlongs, 7,920,000 feet, which cubed is 948,088,000,000,000,000,000,000,000 cubic feet. Half of this we will reserve for the throne of God and the court of Heaven, half the remainder for streets, leaving a balance of 124,198,272,000,000,000,000. Divide this last by 4,096, the cubical feet in a room 16 feet square, and you will find that there is still enough left for 30,321,843,750,600,000 rooms.

We will now suppose that the world always did, and always will contain 990,000,000 inhabitants, and that a generation lasts 13½ years, making in all 2,570,000,000 for each century—that the world will stand 100 centuries, making in all 2,970,000,000,000 inhabitants. Supposing there are 100 worlds equal to this in point of inhabitants and duration of years, making 297,000,000,000,000,000, then Heaven, according to the measurement above, is large enough to allow 100 rooms each 16 feet square to the human soul.

THE old Philip Le Compte residence, at Castle Haven, Dorchester county, built in 1774, was destroyed by fire.
