Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."
DR. G. C. OSGOOD, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
DR. J. F. KINCHELOE, Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."
H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

SUMMER BOARDERS.

The Season for the Preparation for Summer Guests Approaching.

With the approach of the spring and summer season, the progressive Kent county farmer and his frugal wife should not be forgetful of the necessity of providing for the arrival of their warm-weather visitors. Each year the comfortable homes, picturesque landscapes and cool breezes of Kent have increased in attractiveness and charm to the pent-up, suffering citizens of the steaming, dusty city. Baltimore city and Philadelphia have continued year after year to increase their complement to our summer population, until last year the number of delightful transient guests who summered in our midst ran well up in the hundreds, breaking all previous records. In Baltimore, as well as in Philadelphia, there are hundreds of families who have season after season wished for the quiet, refreshing ease and freedom from the steaming heat of the city which is offered in every section of Kent county. With over thirty miles of picturesque bay shore and nearly twice as many miles of beautiful river shore studded with magnificent situations and comfortable homes, no county in the State offers such incomparable inducements to visitors during the summer months.

Her people are intelligent, hospitable and cultured, her lands are fertile and splendidly cultivated; for healthfulness the county has become an acknowledged sanitarium for the sick, while her proximity to Baltimore and Philadelphia are considerations of first importance to business men. By steamers from Rock Hall, Tolchester and Buck Neck, running as per schedule of last year, it was possible to leave Kent and in two hours be in the city. Business men of Baltimore could come over, spend the night with their families and return the following morning in time for business. The Chester river line, the Tolchester line, the Sassafras river line and Ericsson line form a splendid system tapping Kent county on every side, offering transportation facilities equaled by no county in the State.

The taking of summer boarders, from the farmer's standpoint has long ago passed the experimental stage; its advantages are already known from practical experience. Last year thousands of dollars were placed in the pockets of the farmers, and hundreds of refined, cultured and elegant people were attracted to the county, all of whom were delighted with their entertainment, and promised to return this year with hosts of friends.

Now, let our farmers prepare to entertain their summer guests. An abundance of fresh vegetables, fruit, milk, butter, comfortable beds, and room in which to move around, are the principal requirements of summer boarders, and all of these requisites every Kent county farmer can supply in all of their unadulterated purity and without stint. Of course a pleasant drive or fishing excursion occasionally, are little incidental pleasures which visitors would enjoy and render their stay more agreeable.

From what can be learned from those who have entertained during the summers, the city boarder is not as a rule unreasonable in his demands, and is never niggardly in paying for what he wants and gets. This is a field from which a golden harvest may be reaped with pleasure and comparative ease. Mr. and Mrs. James E. Lambert, of Rock Hall; Mr. and Mrs. James L. Beck, the Misses Rose and Ida Bramble, Mr. and Mrs. George E. Noland, Tolchester; Mr. and Mrs. John Gale, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Stephens, Worton Manor; Mr. and Mrs. John Brice, Mrs. Wilmer and Mr. and Mrs. Crew, Betterton; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Stewart, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Brown, Chestertown, and many others at all of these points have met with most pleasant results in this comparatively new field.

FOX HUNTING IN KENT.

A Baltimore Lawyer's Delightful Hunting Experience Following the Hounds.

Mr. Charles A. Briscoe, a member of the Baltimore bar, last week returned home from a pleasure trip to Rock Hall. While visiting on this side of the Chesapeake he was a guest of Mr. John Brice, Jr., at the Hermitage Farm, about seven miles from Rock Hall, and received and gladly accepted an invitation from the Kent County Fox-Hunt Club to participate in a run. The start was begun at Rock Hall at 7.30 A. M., and at that time there were 28 riders in the saddle and a pack of 52 hounds. Among the most popular riders were: Messrs. John Brice, Jr., Robert Wickes, William Porter, Herbert Wilkins, Charles Smith, Murray Smythe, Page Strong, William Cooper, James Bennett, Harry Rash, Samuel Maslin, Walter Maslin, Conley Beacham and Charles A. Briscoe.

They rode toward Broad Neck, and as they approached it the hounds got on the trail of a fox, and then the run began—the fox, the hounds and the horses—and it was a steady run for three or four hours. The fox ran through Broad Neck to Poplar Neck, to Tolchester, to Fairlee, back again to Poplar Neck, and he was run to his death in the swamps, a few miles from Poplar Neck, and about 10 miles from Rock Hall, with Mr. Briscoe in the lead, about three or four miles ahead of the party, and Mr. Briscoe got the bush (which he now has at his office). Several of the party were lost in the chase, and, after the rest of the party got together, it was after 3 o'clock, so they all rode back toward Rock Hall, to the shores of the Chesapeake Bay, on the farm of Mr. Herbert Wilkins, where a repast of oysters and refreshments was served. The oysters were tonged right out of the bay, and cooked by willing hands.

Mr. Briscoe rode John Brice's famous fox-hunting horse. This horse is noted as having been in more fox hunts and capturing more fox-bushes, than any other horse in Kent county. He is 23 years old, and during all that time he has never been worked or ridden for any other purpose than for fox-hunting, and in that he excels all others, for he takes as much interest, and knows as much about the sport, as the hounds or the hunters.—Baltimore Herald.

The good farmer sees many a harrowing sight.

Farmers may be toothless and yet have many an acre.

It makes a farmer have a wry face to see his grain crop short.

A farmer's face may be smooth, although his fields are furrowed.

To a farmer corn in the field is worth more than corn on the toe.

The farmer's crop differs from a chicken's and is generally more valuable.

Many a farmer is small potatoes himself, although he raises very large ones for the market.

Sometimes a farmer looks as seedy as his farm in the spring.

A good farmer likes to turnip the soil, even if he gets beet in doing so.

The farmer should always sleep in a bed, but never in a celery bed.

Some farmers are very slow, although they may have any quantity of hops.

When heifer a farmer starts to raising stock he shouldn't let anything cow him in an attempt to bull the market.

"I have never had a day's sickness in my life," said a middle-aged man the other day.

"What a comfort it would be," sighs some poor invalid, "to be in his place for a year or two." Yet half of the invalids we see might be just as healthy as he, if they would only take proper care of themselves, eat proper food—and digest it.

It's so strange that such simple things are overlooked by those who want health.

Food makes health.

It makes strength—and strength wards off sickness. The man who had never been sick was strong because he always digested his food, and you could become the same by helping your stomach to work as well as his.

It will make you strong and healthy by making the food you eat make you fat.

Druggists sell it. Trial bottle 10 cents.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

AUTUMN SONG.

A song of the reaping time,
Of the feast days of the year;
A song of the grain and the well filled wain,
And the husking time that's near.
Here's hey, for a merry romp
In the brown old fields and vales!
And ho, for the mead where the cattle feed!
And ho, for the autumn gales!
A hunt through the tall, dim woods
For the fruit of the oak and vine,
A peep at the nest of the last redbreast
And a call where the chipmunks dine.
A smile in the morning skies,
And a laugh in the streams that flow
As they share their joy with the girl and boy
That today may a-rambling go.
—Frank Walcott Hutt in St. Nicholas.

WHAT THE GRAND DUKE HEARD.

European Officers Discussed the Capture of American Cities.

The Grand Duke Alexis was at Kiel. He is a full Russian admiral now, and the head of the Russian navy. He was a frequent visitor to the Americans, and, like all the other notables, talked with the utmost frankness to our officers.

One day, watching the Columbia as she rode the waves as lightly and with the easy grace of a blue wing teal, the grand duke said to a captain: "I'm glad you Americans are rebuilding your fleet. Do you know what most impressed me when I visited your country? Let me tell you. The first thing was your wonderful national wealth; the second, the absolutely inadequate means at your disposal for national defense. You were like a drunken man with pockets full of money and two or three hungry ruffians on the dark side of the street waiting a chance to attack him."

"Why, do you mean to say"— began the somewhat startled captain, when the Russian put his hand on the other's arm and said: "Twice in my career I have heard the project of capturing one or two of your great cities and holding them for ransom deliberately discussed by officers of European fleets whose countries had hard work to make ends meet. And they meant it too. I once made a sensation when, after listening to a conversation of this kind, in which the officers of four different fleets took part, I said: 'Gentlemen, the United States and Russia are friends. Should she be unjustly attacked, Russia would help to see that the wrong was righted.' Ah, I can't tell you where or who it was. Come over to the Kurik [the Russian flagship] and have a glass of wine." —Washington Post.

The Faust Legend.

Almost every renowned man of antiquity in the middle ages was believed to be attended by a spiritus familiaris, and not a few were suspected of being in direct league with the devil. Probably the oldest legend of which the Faust legend is a continuous thread is that of Simon Magus, mentioned in the history of the apostles.

According to Justin, he was a native of Gitton, a village in Samaria. He was, no doubt, a man of great intellectual powers. He was the father of the school of the Gnostics. It is also reported of him that he could make himself invisible, that he could pass through flames unharmed, could transpose matter, make gold and exorcise demons—in fact, he laid claim to all these powers and his name lived in the mouths of the people as a sort of Demiurg through many centuries until some other miracle working personality took his place at the popular fireside. Unusual accomplishments, great erudition, were attributed to the supernatural influence, and the general disposition to superstitious assumption was strengthened on the one hand by dogmatic affirmation on the part of the church of the existence of a personal satan, with his numerous household, and, on the other hand, by incorporating the magic arts among the practical sciences, of which astrology and alchemy occupied no mean part.—Menorah.

Man Overboard.

The presence of mind of a certain well known actor was always very remarkable, but was never put to so severe a test as on the following occasion: While acting the part of a pirate chief he was being conveyed in a vessel across the stage with his band of brigands on deck beside him.

One of the supers, whose duty it was to work the waves under large sheets of gauze, was so unfortunate as to put his head through the gauze and to appear standing in the middle of the mimic sea before the full view of the audience.

The actor on the vessel, without losing his presence of mind, called out, "A man overboard!" and the astonished super was hauled upon deck by the pirates amid the applause of the spectators, who imagined it was a part of the play.—London Spectator.

HAIR UNDER THE MICROSCOPE.

One of the Many Important Factors In Murder Cases.

In centuries past the human hair played an important part in all judicial proceedings. Those that were permitted to wear beard and hair had rights that could not be claimed by the shorn and shaved. When men made oath, they touched their beard and hair, and women placed the finger tips of the right hand on their tresses.

Servants were obliged to have their hair cut, and if a freedman went into slavery he had to divest himself of his hirsute adornments. An adult adopted by foster parents was obliged to have his beard shaved and the shaving of beard and hair was a punishment inflicted on criminals. The jurisprudence of our ancestors dealt with punishment "by skin and hair" for small offenses and "by neck and hand" for greater crimes.

There has always been more or less superstition about hair. Great strength was implied by it, and wizards and witches knew of concoctions of hair by which they poisoned enemies. Cats' hair was especially named in the category of poisonous hairs, and even at the beginning of the seventeenth century Paulus Zacchias, a famous physician, writes of the virulent poison of the hair of cats.

Among civilized people such superstitious beliefs have gone out of existence, and only Malays give their enemies tiger hairs in broth to kill them.

Hair today, however, is one of the important factors in deciding murder cases, and the microscopic examination of hair, where it is found in criminal cases under suspicious circumstances, is invariable.

The first thing the coroner is called upon to determine is whether the hair is from man or beast. The microscope determines this beyond peradventure. Animal hair differs in construction from that grown on a human head. In human hair the upper skin is smooth and thin. The circular section is comparatively broad, forming the main part of the hair shaft. It is striped in appearance and carries the color matter. The tubular part is thin, extending to about one-fifth and certainly not more than to one-quarter of the entire width of the hair.

Animal hair also consists of three parts, but these are differently constructed, the tube often filling the entire hair. The ends of the hair must be closely watched, and especially woman's hair will be found ragged and torn at the ends.

The hair from beards is usually the thickest, its diameter being as much as 0.15 millimeters, while hair from female heads can be as fine as a diameter of 0.06 millimeters would make it.—St. Louis Republic.

Inoculation For Yellow Fever.

At the meeting of the American Public Health association at Denver, Dr. Manuel Garmona y Valle of Mexico read a description of his discovery of a certain cure for yellow fever, which he has used successfully in hundreds of cases. His method is to make a subcutaneous injection in the cellular tissue of the arm of a secretion taken from a yellow fever patient between the fourth and fourteenth days of the fever. This effects a cure, but the disease can be guarded against in this way, just as smallpox is guarded against by vaccination.—Baltimore Sun.

Women wearing Worth dresses and men wearing diamonds, are just as unhappy and uncomfortable over stomach and bowel troubles as are those who have only calico and bone buttons. None of us live natural lives. We eat too much and are careless about our health. Abused nature finally revolts. The rebellion is slight at first, but it grows. Occasional constipation becomes chronic. Bowels won't work. Stomach gets sour and generates gas. Liver gets full of bile. Bile gets into the blood. Headaches come, dizziness, loss of appetite, loss of sleep, foul breath, distress after eating—and all because Nature did not have the little help she needed.

One of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets would start the poisonous matter in the way it should go. If there's a good deal of it, better take two—that's a mildly cathartic dose.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets never gripe and they cure permanently. You needn't take them forever—just long enough to regulate the bowels—then stop. In this way you don't become a slave to their use as with other pills. Once used, they are always in favor.

Some designing dealers do not permit their customers to have Dr. Pierce's Pellets because inferior pills afford greater profits. Such dealers are short-sighted. They overlook the fact that next time you will go where you are supplied with what you ask for.
