up. There are 95 bushels of oats and 121 of wheat but B. said it wasn't very clean. Mary Stone sent me some beautiful peaches today, but I am the only one of the whole family who can eat any. Col. W. T. B. was to see Ma this morning. We are now having a beautiful rain. Mr. Pope delivers an address this afternoon at the Chapel.

I have written to Aunt Lucy asking her to get some medicine and shall enclose this to her, to be mailed in Washington. All join I love to you. The children are only a little sick. They have been eating too much. I will bid an affectionate goodby.

Your devoted daughter Kate

Sunday morning

Ma is about the same. Sometimes I think the place on her will scatter, but this morning it is swollen worse. Beauregard is up and has just come up to wake B.
