My dear Pa.

Joe has just left the house for Carrol bringing me yours of the 25th, before leaving. He & I laughed at the lick you gave him - I read it aloud to cousin Tize, who joined in the laughter.

She says "Mr Forse" can scarcely find time from his store to eat his meals. He eats & runs off before we have fairly begun the meal - that his clerk may go to his meals. Mr Forse is a very high tempered man, but - with all this
