She is very fond of her carriage, Tell Aunt Puss if she could see her daughter she would want to eat her up. she is just the sweetest baby in the world. Yesterday I let the nurse go to see her Mother and I had Lulia and her carriage in the hall. after rixing her up & down till I was tired I gave it a push with my foot, and sent it two or three yds. it plead her as I thought I'd do it again. she was holding to my finger & walking, and when we got near enough she raised her little foot and tried to push it like she had seen me do. She never lets her Uncle Will go out of the house without crying for him. & last night, She was'nt very well, ~~she was~~ standing up by a chair. He said "bye" just to see what she would do. instead of a big mad cry like she some times takes; she laid her little head on the chair and cried so pitifully, I got half mad with Cousin Will, Lulie Pace was here and when she left she shook hands with her Granma & me, and didn't notice Lillia so L. begun saying "bye, "bye and stretched her little hand out to shake hands. She does lots of sweet things. I can't tell you how pretty and
