Literary Note from The Century Co.

"The Story of the Captains" in the May Century will mark the climax of that magazine's Spanish War series, giving, as it does, an account by every American commanding officer but one of the part played by his ship in the famous fight off Santiago, that resulted in the annihilation of Cervera's fleet. Captain Evans describes the doings of the "Iowa," Captain Taylor of the "Indiana," Captain (now Rear-Admiral) Philip of the "Texas," Captain Cook of the "Brooklyn," Captain Chadwick of the "New York," and Lieut. Commander Wainwright of the "Gloucester," while Captain Clark of the "Oregon" endorses Lieutenant Eberle's story of the "Oregon" and contributes a criticism of the Spanish admiral's strategy. The text of this novel group of firsthand accounts of one of the most remarkable naval battles ever fought is profusely illustrated with portraits, drawings and photographs, the latter from snapshots made from each one of the ships during the progress of the fight.

THE MODERN QUILT.

OLD TIME PATCHWORK REVIVED AND BROUGHT UP TO DATE.

White Grounds, With One or Two Colors Only—Original Designs of the College Girl and Clubwoman. Easy but Showy Patterns.

Old fashioned patchwork quilts are coming into favor again, though there is a modern look about them that considerably modifies the old time effect. For instance, they now have a white ground, with but one or two colors for variety; they are made up in a light weight, answering merely for a foot spread or for a little extra warmth for bed or couch, and they are usually ruffled about the edge with the prevailing color used in the pattern.

Elderly ladies welcome this revival of patchwork with pleasure, and many are the pretty effects they evolve for the grandchildren. There is no lack in variety. Original designs are drawn on white squares and then outlined with heavy colored linen floss.

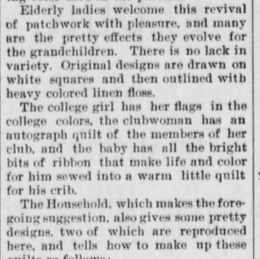

The college girl has her flags in the college colors, the clubwoman has an autograph quilt of the members of her club, and the baby has all the bright bits of ribbon that make life and color for him sewed into a warm little quilt for his crib.

The Household, which makes the foregoing suggestion, also gives some pretty designs, two of which are reproduced here, and tells how to make up these quilts as follows:

To make up the quilts a number of sheets of white wadding will be necessary. First cut a square from common white cambric just the size you require. The popular size is a 10 inch square, although 8, 9 or 12 inches are sometimes preferred. Upon this square of white cambric baste a square of white sheet wadding of the same size, and over this place the regular square that is to serve as the outside of the quilt. The squares are then placed together edge to edge and covered with strips of the darker color, which is stitched on by machine. The quilt is then lined with cheesecloth, linen or sateen and finished on the edge with a double ruffle of the same.

A ribbon quilt is an excellent way to use up all the odds and ends and bits of ribbon that have been accumulating in the family, and if there happen to be two or three young girls to help this accumulation there is usually material enough for a quilt of good size. It should be put together in stripes, and sash ribbons are used to form the alternate stripes. Failing these long ribbons, strips of silk matched and sewed together may be used, the silk to be cut about the ordinary sash ribbon width. An old silk skirt can be utilized for this purpose to good advantage. For all of the wider stripes take pieces of ribbon, any width or style or coloring, and baste them on a cambric foundation lined with sheet wadding. The edges of the ribbon should just meet and are caught together by catch stitching them with colored silks. Some very pretty effects may be made with a judicious mingling of the colors.

The Greek cross design is a showy, effective pattern if brought out in two shades of yellow, either on a white or black cotton duck ground. This cotton duck sells for about 12½ cents per yard, and, though it has considerable body, is very soft and pliable. The two shades of yellow on the black ground are very handsome and are carried out in place of the white shown in the sketch. It has something of the oriental look. The ruffle should be of the deeper shade of yellow, and the entire lining should also be of the same shade.

Bits of Fashion.

The new saffron and dull yellowish laces are charming on white, and white gowns in cashmere, serge, thin cloth and fine silky alpaca promise to be fashionable this season. Alpaca is making rapid strides in favor, and Parisians are using it for early summer and Riviera gowns, so that we may expect it to be worn here.

Stockings seem to grow smarter and more elaborate every day. A wonderful pair, hailing from Paris, is of pale blue openwork silk, with lilies of the valley embroidered up the foot and ankle. The flowers are worked in their natural colors, and in the center of each is a small sparkling crystal representing a dewdrop.

How to Look Good.

Good looks are really more than skin keep, depending entirely on a healthy condition of all the vital organs. If the liver is inactive, you have a bilious look; if your stomach is disordered, you have a dyspeptic look; if your kidney are affected, you have a pinched look. Secure good health and you will surely have good looks. "Electric Bitters" is a good Alterative and Tonic. Acts directly on the stomach, liver and kidneys, purifies the blood, cures pimples, blotches and boils, and gives a good complexion. Every bottle guaranteed. Sold at M. A. Toulson's Drug Store. 50c. per bottle.

Christianity Is Truth.

Christianity has nothing to dread from the facts. It is the truth, and it matches with the truth, all of it. As Christianity is a thought, a spirit, a temper, so the larger our knowledge, and the completer and more adequate our thinking, the more can Christianity be to us.—Rev. David N. Beach, Congregationalist, Denver

BLACK ROT.

A Growing Trouble With Cabbages. How to Recognize and Prevent It.

Black rot is of somewhat recent recognition, but during the past few years has led to serious loss in southern Wisconsin, Michigan, New York, Maryland, Vermont and elsewhere. The Vermont station says the first indication of the disease in cabbage is upon the outer leaves of the plant, which turn yellow and die in spots, usually at or near the margin. Such leaves are also liable to wilt. Careful examination shows that the veins in the dead areas are blackened. The germs which are the cause of the malady spread exclusively through the vessels or fibrous portions of the tissue. These invaded vessels turn black, and this striking discoloration is a valuable diagnostic feature of the disease which every cabbage grower should learn to recognize. If the stem of a healthy cabbage leaf be cut across, these vessels are seen forming faint yellowish spots in the interior, in marked contrast to the black spots seen in the badly diseased leaf.

If rotting cabbage plants are left in the field, the germs pass the winter in the soil and reinfect cabbages, turnips or weed plants which may grow thereon the next season. If fed to stock, they pass into the manure, and are similarly propagated in that way. Consideration of these facts leads the station mentioned to recommend the following preventive or remedial measures:

Rotation of Crops.—Cabbages or turnips should not be planted a second year upon land where the disease is observed. In view of the dangers from this disease and club root it is better in any case to rotate these crops with others. The seed bed also should be made in new soil each year.

Fertilization.—Diseased cabbages should never be fed to animals uncooked. Manure from animals fed on garden refuse should not be used on soil intended for cabbages.

Destruction of Insects.—Keep the plants as free as possible from insects.

Removal of Diseased Leaves and Plants.—Where the disease has once appeared, the cabbage field should be watched and during August and September should be systematically gone over and all leaves removed and destroyed as soon as they show evidence of the disease. In case the germs have invaded the stem (as shown by the blackened vessels at the junction of diseased leaf and stem) the entire plant should be uprooted and destroyed. This destruction should be by fire or deep burial.

Suppression of Cruciferous Weeds.—No plants of kale, wild mustard or other related weeds which may harbor the disease should be allowed to grow in or near the cabbage field.

As Like as Two Peas.

The Rural New Yorker illustrates the Station pea and the Surprise, as here shown, and says:

"At the Rural grounds the Station pea was tried when first introduced, about 1893. The claim was made by the catalogue makers that it was the earliest wrinkled pea ever introduced. We tried it and found the claim correct. When the Surprise (Gregory) was introduced, the same claim was made. Last season the Station and Surprise were planted side by side, and we compared them closely in all respects without being able to detect any difference. Picked without selection, Fig. 1 shows the Station and Fig. 2 the Surprise. Both kinds were planted April 1, the first picking of each being June 7.

From replies to inquiries addressed to various seedsmen, the journal quoted finds that they are not all of the opinion that the two peas are alike, and that a letter from the originator of the Surprise gives evidence that these peas are of different parentage. The New Yorker, however, emphatically pronounces the 1897 Prosperity and Gradus to be the same pea, and is not prepared to say what name it should justly bear, but suggests Prosperity.

Agricultural Brevities.

Tomatoes which have an imperfect blossom end are most susceptible to rot or black mold, and care should be taken to grow the smooth fruited sorts.

If experiments of several stations may be considered conclusive, seeds from the tip of the ear of corn germinate more surely and yield better than those from the center of the cob.

Among the new blackberries is the Mersereau, which, it is claimed, is without an equal for hardiness, besides being of brilliant, sparkling black color, fine form and flavor and very productive.

Horse radish is said to thrive and form the best roots in a soil of medium texture, moist but not wet.

White of egg, milk or lime should never be used for cleansing maple sirup, and after the sirup has been drawn from the evaporator it should never be reheated, according to a sugar making correspondent of New England Homestead.

Whooping Cough.

I had a little boy who was nearly dead from an attack of whooping cough. My neighbors recommended Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I did not think that any medicine would help him, but after giving him a few doses of that remedy I noticed an improvement, and one bottle cured him entirely. It is the best cough medicine I ever had in the house.—J. L. Moore, South Burgettstown, Pa. For sale by M. A. Toulson, druggist, Chestertown, Md

Broken Altars.

The happiness of mankind begins at God's altar. The misery of mankind begins at the broken altar of God. But altars are seldom broken down by intention: rather by letting them alone, letting fires of personal piety become extinguished on the altars and by other acts of negligence. Forgetfulness of mother's prayer breaks down the first altar. The rush of business interferes with personal and family prayer, and those altars crumble. The altar of consecration is broken either by forgetfulness of covenant vows or lack of some definite act of service undertaken for Jesus' sake.—Dr. Lee, Presbyterian, Cincinnati.

Hacking COUGH

A hacking cough is a grave-yard cough; the sooner you get rid of it the better. Don't wait until it develops into consumption, but use the celebrated Dr. John W. Bull's Cough Syrup at once. It is a wonderful remedy for all throat and lung affections, and will cure a deep-seated cough or cold in a few days. Good for old and young.

Mother's advice is worth more than the advice of any other woman to the daughter who is perplexed by the problems of physical health and comfort. There's no need therefore to "write to a woman," who is a stranger.

There may, however, be need for a physician's advice to supplement the advice of the mother. In such a case the offer of free consultation by letter, made by Dr. Pierce, opens the way to health, and at the same time avoids the unpleasant questionings, the repulsive examinations and offensive local treatments which less experienced physicians often insist on.

Any sick or ailing woman is invited to write to Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, in the strictest privacy. Each letter is held as a sacred confidence and its answer is sent in a plain envelope, bearing no printing upon it.

Do not be misled by advertisements offering "medical advice," which are published by those who not being physicians are not qualified to give such advice. Any physician or doctor who has a legal and professional right to the title will publicly claim that title. Those who offer "medical advice" and invite you to "write to a woman" do not claim that the woman is a doctor. The "medical advice" of an unprofessional woman is just as dangerous as the "medical advice" of an unprofessional man. In more than thirty years Dr. Pierce and his staff of nearly a score of medical specialists, have successfully treated over half a million women. You can write without fear as without fee to Dr. R.
