SUCCESS IS IN THE AIR. The democrats have made up their mind to win every man on the ticket this fall, and they are going to do it.

THE QUEEN ANNE republican convention met on Tuesday, and after naming a State central committee and delegates to the State convention, adjourned to meet on September twenty-sixth, when a full local ticket will be named.

THAT OLD POLITICAL HERO, Dr. J. B. Schwatka, was at Tolchester on Thursday, and was as bright and smiling as a bare-foot school boy away from his books. The doctor is a Kent countian, and was personally acquainted with hundreds of visitors at the Beach, and accorded all a familiar smile.

THE WHITE-WINGED DOVE OF PEACE temporarily folded its wings in the republican convention when the "new recruit" to the grand old party peremptorily informed an old veteran that he had nothing to do with affairs in the fifth district. "We will take care of the fifth," said the sturdy probationer. And he will with a vengeance.

THE BALTIMORE AMERICAN MAN caught a glimpse of Col. William J. Vannort at Tolchester on Thursday, and here is his pen-picture of the gallant Kent countian: "Colonel Vannort, the republican candidate for governor in 1891, wore his usual pleasant smile on Thurs day afternoon at Tolchester, though the surroundings were depressing. It was democratic day at the fair, and democrats seemed to predominate."

EX-SENATOR JOHN S. WIRT has tendered his services for campaign work to Col. John Walter Smith. He will also give an unqualified support to the democratic ticket in Cecil. Mr. Wirt recognizes the fact that it is poor policy to defeat a good ticket as a means of retaliation because of unjust treatment by a few. It would, conceding all the charges which could be made against party associates, be a case of jumping out of the frying pan into the fire.

WHAT OTHERS THOUGHT OF IT.

The TRANSCRIPT'S Industrial issue was enthusiastically received, and the editors have every reason to feel more than pleased at the success of their undertaking. A great number of copies have been mailed to different parts of the country. Two ladies came in and purchased extras in order that they might get the pictures to be placed in souvenir albums, and declared them the finest they had gotten in Chestertown.

From every section have come words of the highest praise. Mr. James Dunbracco says the cut of the Emma A. Ford is the finest that he has ever seen of that beautiful steamer. These are only a few of many words of praise. The Easton Gazette said editorially:

"The Chestertown TRANSCRIPT, always as handsome and entertaining as its polished editors, Messrs. Collins and Hopper, looms up this week a la magazine print, in a fine industrial edition, illustrating Kent and especially Chestertown."

The Centreville Record said:

"Messrs. Collins & Hopper, editors and publishers of the TRANSCRIPT, Chestertown, issued this week an industrial edition, which is creditable in every sense or the word to themselves and is a publication which every citizen of Kent county should welcome with pride. It goes without saying it will be read with interest by all who are conversant with the history and industries of the State. It is just such enterprising publications as the one just issued by Messrs. Collins & Hopper that give encouragement and new business life in the business interests of the town and county and encourages investments of capital from other localities. There is so much of interest that can be written about the varied facilties of the peninsula, which the public want to know, and the wonder is, that so little is written. What nobody knows about this section would make a large book filled with valuable, instructive and interesting information. The county towns of the Eastern Shore, it seems, have at last aroused from their long sleep, and are now in the front ranks of the growing towns of the State. The enterprise of the TRAFSCRIPT shows it is published for the benefit of the community where it circulates and not solely for the benefit and greed of its editors and publishers."

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address,

WITH THE POLITICIANS.

The State press has made numerous references to politician's day at Tolchester.

Here is one on Dr. J. B. Schwatka from the American:

"Did you see Dr. Schwatka down at Tolchester last Thursday?" asked Chairman Vandiver, after he had locked the door and pushed the button for a pitcher of ice water. "Well, he was about the biggest thing on the fair grounds. He had his chest thrown out and seemed to be more of an attraction than Colonel John Walter Smith himself. How did you come to know so many people, Doc?"

"Now, look here, Murray, you know that I was born in Kent county and was reared here. Of course, I know the people," said Dr. Schwatka.

"Oh! was that it?" said the Chairman. "Well, what about this story that you were carrying Queen Anne county in you pocket because you once gave Johnnie George a black eye when you were both boys?"

"That's right," said the doctor, seeing that Chairman Vandiver was in one of his joking strains, and that there was no use in trying to stop him.

"And, by the way, Doc," continued Mr. Vandiver. "There isn't a bit of doubt in my mind that you would have been elected to Congress last fall if it had not been for your two rivals having such funny names. I know lots of instances where people voted for Watcher and Whipkey by accident on account of the similarity of names when they thought they were voting for you. You had better move into a new district or make Wachter have his name changed by the Legislature. He has got the start on you now."

"Look here, Murray," said the doctor, the last assault finally getting a "rise" out of him. "That thing was worked to death last year. I believe that you are the man who started the story that I ran a sweat shop. Now drop it."

"All right," said the chairman. "No business of mine. Say when."

The Baltimore News gets this off on Col. Smith:

"Well, sir," said Chairman Murray Vandiver at headquarters to-day, "people used to say that James G. Blaine was the greatest adept at greeting strangers that American politics had ever known, but I think John Walter Smith is his equal in every respect. I never saw anything like it in my life. The man seems never to tire and is just as fresh at the end of a big day as at the opening of it. Yesterday at Tolchester he must have shaken hands with at least a thousand people. I don't mean that he simply grasped their hands as a man would do at a reception, but to each one of these thousand he had something nice to say and a particularly warm grasp of the hand that meant something and sent the man away feeling that a personal interest had been taken in him. This is the way he does it," and Chairman Vandiver proceeded to give an illustration. He put his straw hat on, sided up to one of the committee of seven, removed his hat again with becoming reverence, and took the hand of the committeeman. "What did you say your name was? Ah! Yes. Smith! It seems to me I knew your father, didn't I? To be sure I did. I remember him very well. And so, the old gentleman is dead is he? Well, he was a fine man. Well, I know the clerk of the court in your county, the Register of Wills and I think all of the county commissioners. I think I know pretty much everybody in your town. Is your wife with you? I know you are having a good time. It's a great fair, isn't it? One of the finest I was ever at. Yes; I believe the corn crop is going to be exceptionally large this year. It certainly is in my part of the State. Rain? Well, we have had our share of it now, though there was quite a drought in the early part of the summer. Must you go? Well, I am delighted to have met you, sir," and Chairman Vandiver sat down amid the laughs of his associates.

CHESTERVILLE NOTES.

The sublime folly of living solely for things of time and sense; to shun evil influences that may lead us astray; to live for high and holier things, was the subject of Rev. J. E. Wilson's eloquent talk on Sunday, the 27th inst.

Miss Townsend, of Cecil, is visiting her sister, Mrs. J. E. Wilson.

Tomatoes have been thus far very unprofitable for those who did not contract with the canneries. One gentlemen shipped a load and received 26c. net proceeds.

A creamery here is an assured fact, we hear. It will commence operations about Oct. 1st. Messrs W. S. Dill, Mr. Elmer Jarman and some other gentleman, whose name we are unable to re call, are the prime movers.

Mr. Charles F. Burris, of near Smyrna, Del., paid a flying visit to Kent a few days ago.

Now the average school boy is looking for the teacher but the eye will not grow the brighter when she comes.

Mr. Hall, of Wilmington, Del., is the guest of his brother-in-law, Mr. C. Cole.

Mrs. E. S. Bratton has returned from a visit to Ocean Grove.

We are sorry to hear that Mr. J. N. Moffett, who has been ill for several months at his son-in-laws, Mr. Wilmer Ford, near Still Pond, shows but little sign of improvement.

There was a good attendance at the festival here on Saturday evening and but for the threatening weather would have been much larger. We have not heard what amount was realized. The M. E. Church held the festival.

A Mother Tells How She Saved Her Little Daughter's Life.

I am the mother of eight children and have had a great deal of experience with medicines. Last summer my little daughter had the dysentery in its worst form. We thought she would die. I tried everything I could think of, but nothing seemed to do her any good. I saw by an advertisement in our paper that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was highly recommended and sent and got a bottle at once. It proved to be one of the very best medicines we ever had in the house. It saved my little daughter's life. I am anxious for every mother to know what an excellent medicine it is. Had I known it at first it would have saved me a great deal of anxiety and my little daughter much suffering—Yours truly, Mrs. Geo. F. Burdick, Liberty R. I. For sale by M. A. Toulson, Druggist.

OFFICE OF THE

Local Board of Health

FOR KENT COUNTY.

CHESTERTOWN, Aug. 15, 1899.

The circular received by the Local Board of Health from Dr. John S. Fulton, Secretary of the State Board, published below, explains itself, and will, I feel quite sure, commend itself to the people of the community. The slaughterhouse question, like the hog-pen, has been a bone of contention between sanitarians and the commissioners of small towns for years. The great preponderance of proof that from time to time has been produced showing the great disadvantages and discomforts, to say the least, as well as the very great dangers to health from such sources, has prompted the health authorities to send an inspector over the State. Among the towns of from 2000 to 4000, who still allow these, unfortunately we find Chestertown. Many of the smaller towns, as well as larger ones, have ordinances in accord with suggestions of Dr. Fulton.

The two above-mentioned sources of complaint are not by any means the only ones. The town is not as clean as it should be. The executive officer of the Local Board of Health will at any time co-operate with the town authorities looking to this much-to-be-desired need.

W. FRANK HINES, Sec.

BALTIMORE, Aug. 10, 1899.

TO THE LOCAL HEALTH OFFICER:—We enclose herewith an abstract of the report of our inspector, Mr. Chas. N. Mitten, upon the slaughter-houses in Maryland towns. We call special attention to the reports upon the towns in your jurisdiction.

You will observe that the towns where slaughtering is not permitted are the younger towns. This shows the growth of popular regard for cleanliness and decency. The older towns have received the slaughter-house nuisance as a legacy from former and less enlightened generations, and the influences which foster these hereditary nuisances, seems in some instances stronger than the sentiment against them. Slaughter-houses in towns are not only offensive to municipal decency; they may be injurious to public health.

The worst slaughter-houge is perhaps that where the offal is disposed of as chance may direct, and where the fats are rendered on the premises in open kettles. The preparation of meats for human food in such a place must be to every person having even a rudimentary sense of propriety, simply disgusting.

Hardly less offensive are the slaughter-houses where the offal is fed to hogs. The pork produced by such food is not good to eat, and cannot be made sound pork by a course of grain-feeding preparatory to slaughtering. Slaughter-house hogs are particularly liable to trichinosis, and trichinous pork, aside from the danger of infecting those who eat it with trichinae, is not a proper food.

No slaughtering should be done in any incorporated town. It is an exceedingly difficult matter at best to preserve a pure soil in closely settled communities, and the slaughter house in town pollutes both soil and air. It also furthers the vagrant dog nuisance, and the plague of rats and of flies, all of which in turn have their effect upon human comfort and health.

Since slaughtering is a necessary trade, it should be specially provided for in such a way as to reduce its offensiveness to a minimum. If possible, all the slaughtering for each community should be done in one place and under sanitary regulations.

We trust that you will make such use of our enclosure as may best attract the thoughtful interest of your citizens.

Very truly yours,
JOHN S. FULTON,
a17-3t. [N] Secretary.

Office of the Local Board of Health.

CHESTERTOWN, MD, Aug. 21, 1899.

Below is the last analysis of drinking water taken from the supply pool and the reservoir respectively. The water company has furnished every facility possible in securing the samples and fowarding them to the chemist of the State Board of Health. We regret very much to have to notify the users of this water of its being in a condition unfit at present for drinking purposes without being boiled. Therefore, we advise everyone to boil it before using, and not to drink it unboiled. For culinary and washing purposes this is hardly necessary. We believe we have located the source of contamination, and hope soon to remedy the evil. Mr. Thomas, manager of the company, will at once proceed to this, and will have the full co-operation of the executive officer of this board. The contamination is in no way chargable to the company or its officers, but is, in our opinion, the result of draining at a point over which they have no control.

REPORT NO. 2—After Cleaning.

Chemical Examination of Water.

From Dr. W. Frank Hines, Chestertown, Md.

CONSTITUENTS.	FIGURES IN PARTS PER MILLION. No. 1—Pool.	No. 2—Reservoir.
Color	none.	none.
Odor	none.	none.
Reaction	neutral.	neutral.
1. Total Residue at 230 degrees F	104.	114.

8. " " " " Nitrites	trace.	considerable.
9. " " Earthy bases calculated
10. " " Sulphates calculated as SO3
11. Character of Water	bad.	Bad.

Good drinking water should be clear and colorless, without odor and neutral in reaction.
1. The "Total Residue" should not exceed 500 parts per million.
2. The "Ignited Residue" man constitute the total residue.
3. The smaller the amount of "Volatile Residue" the better.
4. The amount of "Chlorine" should not exceed 6.00 parts per million.
5. The amount of "Nitrogen as Free Ammonia" should not exceed .05 parts per million
6. The amount of "Nitrogen as Albumenoid Ammonia" should not exceed .15 parts per million.
7. The amount of "Nitrogen as Nitrates" should not exceed 5.00 parts per million.

9. The amount of "Earthy Bases" should not exceed 200.00 parts per million.
10. The amount of "Sulphates" should not exceed 100.00 parts per million.

Both of these waters are badly contaminated and unfit for drinking purposes.
