Fertilizers of all Kinds

WE WOULD CALL ATTENTION TO OUR

Special Brands for the Spring Crops of 1900,

Corn and Tomatoes.

We are also prepared to fill orders for special mixtures for all crops, Potatoes, Oats, Asparagus, General Truck, Pear and Peach Trees, etc.

In consequence of the prevalence of late years of insects and worms destructive to the spring crops, we use in all of our Spring goods an insecticide which will tend to check the ravages of these pests.

All of these goods will be in first-class condition, and can be used in any machine without becoming pasty and sticky. Only the best materials obtainable will be used in their composition. They have been used by a number of our prominent farmers for the past eight years, and in all cases have given satisfactory results. We would be glad to refer intending purchasers of Fertilizers to the parties who have used them. All our brands of goods are prepared under the personal supervision of Mr. P. B. Hollis, who is well-known in this community as an experienced agricultural chemist.

GUERNSEY MILKERS

SOME OF THE CHARACTERISTICS OF THE POPULAR DAIRY BREED.

Some idea of the popularity of the Guernsey may be gathered from the fact that there are now registered 15,200 Guernseys, one-third of which number has been added since 1895, since the time when the cattle attracted general attention at the Chicago fair. The half and three-quarter blood heifers and cows sell readily at from $50 to $75, and the demand is greater than the supply.

Although the variety bears the name of the island of Guernsey in this country, says the New York Tribune, it is called the Alderney breed in its native country. The name Alderney has been given indiscriminately to any of the cattle of the Channel islands, to both Jerseys and Guernseys. A writer on the subject says that the Guernsey has little or none of the peculiar deerlike style and expression that characterize the Jersey. They are coarser in bone, heavier in carcass, larger in every way and naturally less precocious. They are allowed to calve first at about 2½ years, which gives them more size and possibly, also, a tendency to carry flesh.

Some people have said that the Guernseys are not things of beauty, but the contrary is true of many specimens. There are those whose sloping rumps, big heads and heavy limbs are not ornamental, but as these are likely to be the best milkers and butter cows of the herd their defects are easily overlooked. When one visits a herd of these cattle either in this country or abroad, the long head and broad muzzle are pointed out as characteristics of value. The colors which predominate in Guernsey cattle are yellow, reddish yellow, fawn, brown shading to nearly black, light fawn and yellowish fawn, dun of various shades, never including gray, as is usual among Jerseys. A star or a triangular spot on the forehead, with a white switch, is regarded as characteristic, even though scarcely any other white is seen.

The interest shown by breeders and owners is remarkable from the fact that ten years ago there were only a few Guernsey cattle in the United States. In 1888 the Rev. G. E. Gordon of Koshkonong exhibited a part of his herd at the Minnesota state fair, and the cattle were greatly admired at that time because of their peculiar orange color with white markings, their intelligence and docility and their decided dairy type. The similarity of the Jerseys shows a common origin. The buff nose where the Jersey is black and the deep orange about the eyes show that the two breeds, although they have the same foundation blood, have diverged in minor but noticeable points.

Drying Up Cows.

To dry up a cow reduce the feed, take away the grain, and when the milk yield drops, milk first once a day, then once in two days, and in one to two weeks the average cow will be dry, with her udder in good condition. With persistent milkers there is seldom difficulty if alfalfa only is fed for a time. If a cow continues to give milk under this treatment or if the udder is hard and feverish, the work of drying up must stop and the ration be changed to a light milk ration, with loosening feeds, and the cow milked regularly. Forced drying up under these conditions injures the cow. If by oversight the drying up process has been neglected until within three or four weeks of calving, do not attempt it, as there is risk of injury to the health of the cow and her udder. After becoming dry the cow will need little attention before calving if she is on good pasture.—Live Stock.

Oleomargarine Sales.

Recent frequent convictions of persons in New York state found with oleomargarine in their possession are taken to indicate that traffic in that commodity continues in the face of the laws of the state board of agriculture. Some idea of the extent of the oleomargarine trade may be gained from the statistics just published at Washington, which give the quantity made and sold during the fiscal year ending July 1, 80,495,628 pounds, an increase of 25,106,901 pounds over the previous year. This is in spite of the fact that the "anticolor" law exists in 24 states. It is on the point of color that the legality of oleomargarine sale hangs. In its natural state, that of pearly white, there is no law against it.

Silage Crops.

The reports concerning sweet corn for silage are quite conflicting, says Hoard's Dairyman. Some say that it has a tendency to make a very sour silage, and others claim that it is as unobjectionable in this respect as any. If we had the sweet corn growing, we would not hesitate to put it in silage, but we would not plant it especially for this purpose; neither would we plant Kaffir corn for silage when the ordinary maize grows to perfection. Kaffir corn is especially adapted for semiarid climates because of its drought resisting capacity. We are not aware that teosinte has ever been tried in the silo, but alfalfa has been, and successfully so, especially in California.

Profitable Skill.

If the dairyman is a skillful farmer, he can so manage his cows that they become fresh in August or September. Then he can give the calves (raised by hand, of course) a good start with new milk, and in a week or two after the cows come fresh he can begin to make butter—that is to say, when he cannot make it more profitable than to sell milk. If he can sell milk at fair prices, he saves labor and time, and that is money. Dairy products in the United States bring more money, according to verified statistics, than raising cereals, including corn and other grains to feed cattle and swine. Only the product of the domestic hen brings more cash than dairying.—St. Louis Republic.

It is very hard to stand idly by and see our dear ones suffer while awaiting the arrival of the doctor. An Albany (N.Y.) dairyman called at a drug store there for a doctor to come and see his child, then very sick with croup. Not finding the doctor in, he left word for him to come at once on his return. He also brought a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy which he hoped would give some relief until the doctor should arrive. In a few hours he returned, saying the doctor need not come, as the child was much better. The druggist, Mr. Otto Scholz, says the family has since recommended Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to their neighbors and friends until he has a constant demand for it from that part of the country. For sale by M. A. Toulson.

A NEW KIND OF CORNER.

A Cozy Place In Which to Indite Occasional Notes, Etc.

In flats or small houses, where space is scarce and a goodly amount of room has to be given up to seats of all sorts—chairs, lounges, cozy corners, and so forth—it is often advisable to use combined furniture and to turn to profitable account the angles which are generally mere waste space. Everybody wants a writing table, but as tables encroach upon room space the family desk frequently has to do duty for all the members of the home circle.

The sketch suggests a writing corner that can be easily carried out and that will be found very convenient in many homes where, owing to insufficient room, it is impossible that each member of the family should be provided with a desk proper.

The table itself consists merely of a triangular piece of wood about a couple of inches thick, the front being afterward curved. This is fitted into the corner of the wall at a convenient height and is supported by and nailed to wooden brackets screwed to the wall.

It is a good plan to have, above the table, a little corner cupboard for a relay of stationery and ink and also to add a series of pigeonholes for letters and notebooks and bills that can be cunningly concealed by a small curtain of silk; or the cupboard could be used for these things and a shelf take the place of the pigeonholes. Such useful articles as a wall calendar and a waste paper basket must be added to complete the writing corner, the table itself being of depth and width sufficient to hold the blotting pad, ink, pen tray, scales and weights and stationery cabinet, some of which could, however, for the sake of more "elbow room," take up their places on the shelf above.

As corners are usually dark places, adequate means of lighting up must not be forgotten. A wrought iron suspended lamp with a rose or amber shade should be fixed to the wall unless a floor lamp happens to be situated close by.

If green paint would accord with surrounding fitments, the table, corner cabinet and shelf may be stained dark malachite green, and the little silk curtain should be in old gold color; also the cabinet should have brass clamps and key plate. One finds the convenience in every sitting room of having at hand a set of writing materials.

Another idea for a small, inexpensive occasional writing table is to fix a wooden shelf, about 18 inches long and 12 inches wide to a backing of wood of equal length and some 12 inches high. This backing can be secured to the wall by means of the usual brass plates and nails and the "table" be further supported by a bracket beneath. The wooden back can be decorated with hand painting or with a calendar, small framed picture, etc. This backing might, of course, be dispensed with altogether, but it is effective.

The whole coloring should be preferably cream or malachite green, but the wood could, of course, be stained mahogany or oak. A little writing table of this sort is useful for a hall.

The Egg Cocktail.

The egg cocktail is an appetizer which has lately sprung into prominence. It is prepared by taking for each person one-half of a teaspoonful of vinegar, one tablespoonful of lemon juice, one-half teaspoonful of horse radish, one-half teaspoonful of tomato catchup, mixing together and adding one beaten egg. It should be served in a tall glass with a long handled spoon. —Table Talk.

Fashion's Echoes.

Dainty handkerchiefs in pale colors embroidered with white are pretty trifles, which are exceedingly effective if they match the prevailing color in the costume.

The newest underskirts are made of fine black or colored French flannel and have numerous narrow ruffles of silk, bound with velvet or lace trimmed. The soft cling of the flannel is just what is necessary under the present close fitting skirts.

The really new French sleeve is innocent of any extra fabric at the top. The drop shoulder effects appear not only on dressy afternoon and evening dresses, but likewise on many of the recently imported bridal gowns, bolero jackets, tea gowns and costly French nightdresses.

Pale shade of gray and biege color are the tints in dress gloves and are quite as much worn as white.

Club or string ties with fringed ends are seen in plaid, striped and plain silk and satin.

Russian lace in heavy quality and fine venetian laces are very much employed for trimming handsome cloth gowns in the pastel colors.

The corners of men's cuffs are now cut square or with sharply rounded points.

Who Shall Work In a Dairy.

After a full consideration of the subject of a pure milk supply at the annual meeting of the New Jersey state board of agriculture a report was adopted emphasizing the importance of not allowing any person affected with a contagious disease to have anything to do with dairy work. Among the diseases to be specially guarded against is tuberculosis, which may be communicated to animals from filthy surroundings or from diseased caretakers. This may be regarded as a very practical forward step in prevention.

Dig down to the cause of your sickness if you want to get well and stay well. Most likely it's indigestion. The irritating poisons of fermenting, putrid food, left in the stomach by indigestion, cause headache, neuralgia, nervousness, dizziness, stomachache, nausea, irritability, and all the other well-known symptoms of indigestion.

They also cause many pains and disorders which are often laid to other causes and hence are not easily cured. But as soon as the poisons are removed, all these symptoms and disorders disappear, because there is nothing left to cause them. Nothing succeeds in this like Shaker Digestive Cordial, because it prevents the undigested food from fermenting in the stomach and helps the stomach to digest its food.

Sold by druggists, price 10 cents to $1.00 per bottle.

For the last year of the old century "THE NEW LIPPINCOTT" promises two features of especial importance. The first of these is a series of papers by author of "The Red Badge of Courage" on the

Stephen Crane

Since his first book, Mr. Crane has not until now, returned to the subject that made him famous. He alone among authors to day, can adequately describe the

The second of the striking features of the "New Lippincott" for 1900, is a series of

SHORT STORIES OF MORMON LIFE

BY MRS. J. K. HUDSON.

These are made timely by the new Mormon issue in Congress, but they owe their deep interest not so much to this as to the pathetic, often tragic, revelation of woman's heroic suffering under an odious tyranny.

Mrs. Hudson writes from inner facts, but drapes them in a cloak of glowing fiction.

PLOWS!

As the season for the use of this article is about here, you will naturally begin to look around for the best Plow the market affords. We've got it. We have scoured the markets for a Plow that would not only do good work, but one which would prove economical in its castings, quite an item, you will admit, in a great many of the Plows now in use. We want you to see this Plow, which we say is all right in every particular. It is called

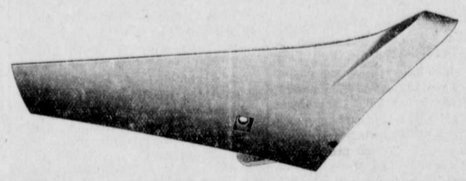

The "Vulcan."

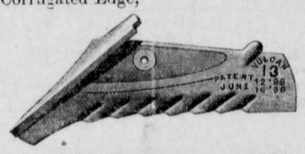

The construction of this Plow is different from anything else now on the market. You will notice the Standard is attached to the beam, not by a bolt, as is generally used, but by an improved Clamp, which does not weaken the beam, but rather strengthens it. The Wheel is also fastened securely to the Beam without a bolt.

One of the greatest features of the "VULCAN" is the construction of the Plow proper. The Point, Landside and Standard are held together by a simple locking device, which makes the base as one piece, and insures rigidity and strength. It is impossible for any part to become dislocated or out of place. Ordinary Plows are held together by the bolts alone, and the Plow soon gets out of proper alignment, with the result that the repairs fit imperfectly and perfect work is impossible. In the "VULCAN" the strain is not on the bolts, but on the entire frame, and distributed in such a way that it cannot get out of alignment, consequently, repairs will always fit perfectly. Every piece used in the construction of this Plow is of the best material, and made with a view of durability.

THE VULCAN POINT

is chilled over its entire surface, you do not need to be told of the advantages of this, over the old style share, which is only chilled along the cutting edge and not on the surface. We can furnish you with three styles of Vulcan Shares, the Plain Chilled, the Corrugated Edge,

And The SLIP POINT.

We have these Plows in all sizes, from small one-horse to heavy three-horse, and you can depend upon us always having a complete line of repairs for them.

We will be pleased to show you these Plows and go over their good points with you, at either of our stores, and can name you very reasonable prices, considering their high excellence.
