of the sale of the sale of the old Alms House property falling into the hands of the trustees) could be used to great advantage in the erection of a house of industry on the alms house lands, this subject has arrested the attention of the Councils for several years; and its necessity has been clearly manifest to all who may have considered the condition of the large number of Juvenile delinquents who are for slight offences arraigned before our Courts of Justice without having a suitable place to confine them & correct their morals, which place could be provided at a comparatively small expense on the construction of a house of industry as above stated the Committee would respectively suggest to the Councils the propriety of pressing the subject upon the attention of the trustees.
