Mr Croney, on leave, submitted a bill entitled "an ordinance to appoint a superintendent of the mud machines, and to prescribe his duties", which was read, laid on the table, and ordered to be printed in bill form.

Mr Dallam offered the following resolution, which was read and adopted:

Resolved by the First Branch of the City Council, that the joint committee on water, be requested to ascertain whether or not a portion of the large appropriations annually made for the repairs of pumps, in portions of the city where they are of little or no use, might not be more beneficially expended in the erection of a larger number of hydrants.

Mr Leonard offered the following preamble and resolutions which were read and laid on the table:

Whereas, the General Assembly of Maryland, has, at its late annual session, in violation of every obligation of right, and every principle of equity, passed a law imposing a special, unjust and onerous tax upon the City of Baltimore, which in its operative and in all its tendencies, must be ruinous to the trade of the city, and paralize all her mercantile energies.

And Whereas, the said body has also passed a law for the completion of the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, and transferring the right of the State to a lien on said work, and thus relinquished its security for the payment of the interest and final reimbursement of the large amount of money loaned by the State to the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal Company

And Whereas, the said work + + always has and always must be injurious to the City of Baltimore and said General Assembly has in this
