SUDDEN DEATH ON A YACHT.

William J. Bruehl, Well-known Clubman, Dies at Still Pond, Md.

Rescued from drowning by two friends only to drop dead when helped to the deck of the yacht, on which he was a guest, was the fate which overtook William J. Bruehl, assistant manager of the Union News Co. in Philadelphia, and a well-known Clubman of that city, recenty. The Maryland coroner, who held in inquest aboard the yacht, which is owned by August Eisenlohr, as she lay at anchor off Still Pond, Md., decided that death was caused by paralysis of the heart.

The drowned man belonged to many of the leading clubs, including the Union League, the Pen and Pencil, the Jewelers', the Philadelphia Yacht Club and the Philadelphia Athletic Club. He also ranked high in the Masonic order. He was about 43 years of age and had for the past 30 years been identified with the Union News Co., rising from one position to another until he some years ago reached the assistant managership. He lived at No. 831 North Sixty-third street, Philadelphia, and is survived by a widow and five children.

There's Hard Shell Fact Here.

A farmer works and produces wealth and takes it to the market and asks the buyers what they will give him for his labor already performed. The other workers know beforehand what they are to get. The farmer is thus worse off, more dependent than the daily laborer.

He has to perform his work first and take what is offered. The "independent farmer" is an "iridescent dream." He puts the price on neither what he sells nor what he buys. He is jollied by the office seekers into giving them his vote every year.

He feeds and clothes the world, and works long hours in isolation and with no advantage of the great progress in which his masters wallow. He never studies politics, and though he has the majority of votes, he is kept ignorant of the game he plays.

Things Well to Remember.

The average number of teeth is 32.

The weight of the circulating blood is 29 pounds.

The average weight of an adult is 150 pounds six ounces.

The average weight of the brain of a man is more than twice that of any other animal.

A man breathes about 20 times a minute, or 1,200 times an hour.

The average weight of the brain of a man is 3½ pounds; of a woman 2 pounds 11 ounces.

Over 540 pounds, or one hogshead and one and a quarter pints of blood, pass through the heart in one hour.

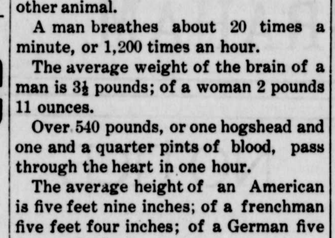

The average height of an American is five feet nine inches; of a frenchman five feet four inches; of a German five feet seven inches.

There are 175,000,000 cells in the lungs, which would cover a surface 30 times greater than the human body.

Prominent Talbot Countian Dead.—Mr. James Hopkins Caulk, a former Talbot county commissioner, and one of the most prominent citizens of St. Michaels district, died at the residence of his brother, Charles E. Caulk, late Saturday night. Mr. Caulk had been in feeble health for the last year as a result of kidney trouble, but had been confined to the house for about three weeks. The deceased was very well-known in Chestertown. He is survived by a widow, who was before marriage Miss Annie McDaniel, a relative of Prof. Wm. McDaniel, acting president of Western Maryland College, and of Miss Alice McDaniel, of the Easton High School. Miss Imogene Caulk, of the St. Michaels Primary School faculty, is a daughter.

Jackson Headquarters in Baltimore.

Rooms 168 and 170 at the Hotel Rennert in Baltimore, have been secured as headquarters for the Republican Campaign Committee of the First Congressional district. It was thought that Mr. Jackson's fight could be pushed better from Baltimore than from any point on the Eastern Shore. Each district will have separate headquarters, and chairman Hanna will look after arranging for meetings and speakers and the distribution of reading matter bearing upon the issues of the campaign.

"What did you get out of that will case?" asked the first lawyer.

"Two huudred and fifty thousand dollars," replied the second lawyer.

"Good round sum, eh?"

"Yes; but I thought the old man left more than that."—Louisvlle Courier-Journal.

A Remarkable Story.

Gustave Becker, the chef of the Holland House in New York, recently bought an apartment house worth $300,000.

In a discussion of this purchase, Mr. Becker said:

"I am one of the owners of the Holland House, and for a number of years I have been interested in real estate. Chefs in America get, I am happy to say, good salaries, but to state that they get salaries big enough to allow them, every little while, to invest their surplus savings in $300,000 apartment houses—well, that is an exaggeration, like the pie story of the Breton farmer.

"There was a farmer in Brittany who wished to tell a visitor how his farm had been overrun with pies. Pies, you know, are large birds, black and white, with long tails—a kind of crow.

"The farmer said the pies devastated his fields horribly. If he put up scarecrows, the birds tore them down. One day his young son ran into the granite farm house and shouted:

"'Oh, father, hundreds and hundreds of birds; the wheat is being all eaten up!'

"The father loaded his gun. But where was the shot? It couldn't be found. He put in a few handfuls of tacks instead. Then he ran out.

"The wheat field was black and white, like a checker board, with pies. The farmer gave a loud yell, and the birds all flew up into a tall poplar. He fired, and lo, every bird was nailed fast to the tree.

"They were nailed fast. Their flapping wings filled the air with a loud whirr. The farmer, amazed, stood watching them. Then a strange thing happened.

"The birds, with one grand, united effort, pulled up the huge tree and flew away with it."

A Fish Story.

A remarkable example of the of the voracity of a trout, accompanied by fatal results, has just come to light. A young man employed at Mr. Sargent's mill at Tipton, St. John, on the river Otter, noticed a fine trout lying dead in the mill leat. He got the fish out and was astonished to find that tightly twisted in the most extraordinary fashion into the trout's gills was an eel, which had undoubtedly strangled its captor. But this was not all. Firmly stuck in the mouth of the eel was a little fish, probably a stickleback, which, being too big for the eel to swallow, had caused its death also. All three fish were very recently dead, and it was quite clear that the eel, which was a foot long, had attempted to swallow the stickleback, but had only succeeded in getting its head far enough down to choke itself. The trout, no doubt, seeing the eel in difficulties, had attacked it and attempted to swallow it, with the result that his slippery, writhering victim had managed to choke him by entangling itself up in a wonderful way in its captor's gills. Thus the little stickleback chocked the eel, which in its turn strangled the trout.—London Telegraph.
