A DOCTOR'S RECOMMENDATION.

J. Horton Kelley, M. D., of Still Pond, Kent county, a practicing physician of highest reputation, writes:

Still Pond, Md., Nov. 22nd, 1904.

GENTLEMEN:

It gives me pleasure to recommend the new preparation for indigestion, "Pepsimint," which has but lately been put upon the market. Knowing the formula from which it is prepared, I pronounce it perfectly safe and harmless, but an efficient remedy for ills resulting from imperfect indigestion. As a preventative of that feeling of fullness after eating and the accumulation of gas and wind arising from improperly digested food, it is the remedy par excellence. Its method of preparation (in granular, effervescent form) makes it very pleasant to take. I have both prescribed the medicine and used it personally.

J. HORTON KELLEY, M. D.

A MINISTER'S EXPERIENCE.

Rev. D. L. Greenfield, D. D., pastor Christ M. P. Church, Chestertown, says;

GENTLEMEN:

To me "Pepsimint" has proved a quick and effective relief for indigestion.

D. L. GREENFIELD

GENTLEMEN:

Have tried Pepsimint and pronounce it a fine medicine for Indigestion.

A LAWYER'S TESTIMONY.

Hope H. Barroll, Esq., one of the leading members of the bar in Maryland, says:

Chestertown, Md., Nov. 18th, 1904.

GENTLEMEN:

I have used "Pepsimint" prepared by The Pepsimint Chemical Company. It is a pleasant and efficacious remedy for headaches, resulting from overwork or deranged stomach conditions. I have used it frequently and believe it to be harmless and the same time pleasant and its effervercent properties particularly beneficial and agreeable. I have heard many people speak of it in terms of the highest possible praise.

Very truly yours,

HOPE H. BARROLL.

Townsend, Del. July 27th, 1905.

GENTLEMEN:

I have found your Pepsimint to be a pleasant and effective remedy for indigestion and sick headache. Its use is followed by no deleterious effects. Respectfully,

J. W. JONES.
Pastor M. E. Church.

Chestertown, Md., Aug. 3, 1905.

GENTLEMEN:

I am ninety-one (91) years old and have used your Pepsimint for Dyspepsia and Indigestion. Can highly recommend it, as it did me a great deal of good. Have never used it without good results Respectfully,

CAPT. JAS. H. THOMPSON.

Pastor M. P. Church.

Greenville, Tenn., May 25, 1906.

DEAR SIRS:

We have a number of employees in our office who think your Pepsimint one of the finest preparations they have ever gotten hold of for dull headaches and sickness incident to close office work. We notice they have ordered 2 doz. bottles for their own use and we feel sure that you will soon get an order from our druggist.

Very truly yours,

THE LICORICE PLANT.

Where It Grows and How Its Black Juice Is Treated.

Black licorice is made from the juice of the licorice plant, mixed with starch to prevent it from melting in hot weather. The licorice plant grows for the most part on the banks of the Tigris and Euphrates rivers, which flow through immense treeless prairies of uncultivated land. The climate of these great plains is variable. Half the year it is mild and pleasant, but for three months it is very cold, and for three months in summer hot winds sweep across the country, raising the temperature to 104 degrees for weeks at a time.

The licorice plant is a shrub three feet high and grows without cultivation in situations where its roots can reach the water. The usual time of collecting is the winter, but roots are dug all the year around. At first the root is full of water and must be allowed to dry, a process which takes nearly a year. It is then cut into small pieces from six inches to a foot long. The good and sound pieces are kept, and the rotten ones are used for firewood.

As the valley of the Euphrates contained one of the earliest civilizations in the world, it is probable that licorice is about the oldest confection extant and that the taste, which pleases nearly all children today, was familiar to the little brown boys and girls of Babylon and Nineveh 3,000 years ago.

THE FIRST ZOO.

China, It Seems, Counts That Among Her Many Records.

The Chinese had the first zoo. Menageries are thought to owe their origin partly to the cult of sacred animals and partly to the ambition of rulers to possess specimens of rare and valuable creatures from foreign lands or savage beasts from their own. In the simplest forms zoological gardens were one of the earliest developments of culture and were familiar to the Chinese, Indians, Greeks, Romans and pre-Spanish Mexicans in ancient times. The oldest recorded menagerie is Chinese, dating from 1150 B. C. The den of lions kept by Darius, as described in the book of Daniel, is an example of one of those primitive menageries, while the cult of sacred white horses by the ancient Greeks and Romans and that of so called white elephants in Burma and Siam are instances of a second type. A live giraffe was received at the menagerie of Schonbrunn as early as 1828.

The Paris establishment is regarded as the earliest entitled to the designation "zoological gardens" in the modern sense of that term, which owes its origin, however, to the formation of the menagerie in the Regents' park. Of German establishments of this sort the one at Berlin is the earliest.

American zoos, notable among which is New York and Chicago, are among the completest in the world.—Exchange.

Roman House Heaters.

The methods used by the Romans for warming their houses were clever. In Rome itself artificial warmth may have been brought rarely into use, though the Italian winter requires fires at times, but when the Roman took up his abode abroad as the conqueror he certainly lived in chilly climates. In the country houses he built in England he had carefully devised heating arrangements, which are called hypocausts. These are flues running under the tessellated floors. Fires were lit outside of the house, and the hot air passed under the floors. To do this much required a knowledge of the builder's art, with the necessary precautions against fire. Remnants of these hypocausts are found today in England, built during the Roman occupation.

The Popular Song.

The definition of popularity as given by a salesman in a large music store is one that may be applied to other things besides songs.

"Is this a popular song?" asked a young woman, holding up a sheet of music brilliantly decorated in red and green.

"Well, no, miss," said the salesman, assuming a judicial air, "I can't say it is as yet. Of course lots of people are singing it, and everybody likes it, but nobody's got tired enough of it yet for it to be what you'd call a popular song, miss."

The Contrast.

A small negro boy was putting his head against the marble steps of the capitol. He would step back a few feet and then run toward the steps, striking them full force with his head.

"What on earth are you doing that for, boy?" asked a senator who came by. "Are you going to fight a goat?"

"Naw, sah, I's doin' it cause it feels so good when I don't."—Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

The First Bull.

Charon, the boatman of the Styx, was thought by many to be of Irish blood, for invariably as he was casting off from the hither shore he would call out to his cargo of souls:

"Now, then, look alive!"

This was doubtless as near an approach to an Irish bull as the then state of civilization permitted.—Puck.

Two Kinds of Foolhardiness.

Some of the men who laugh when a woman gets off a car backward would pull the muzzle of a loaded gun toward them when crawling through a fence.—Washington Post.

Villains in the play have to be awfully bad in order to make good.—Daily (Okla.) Ardmoreite.

A QUEER HOUSE.

The Novel and Famous Fossil Bone Cabin In Wyoming.

"The queerest house in the world," said a zoologist, "is undoubtedly the famous bone cabin in Wyoming, near the Medicine Bow river. This cabin's foundations are built of fossil bones.

"Bones of dinosaurs—jaws of the diplodocus, teeth of the brontosaurus, knuckles of the ichthyosaurus, vertebrae of the camarasaurus, chunks of the barosaurus, the cetiasaurus, the brachiosaurus, the steglosaurus, the ornitholestes or bird catching dinosaur—all entered into this wonderful cabin's foundations, making it the most curious and most costly edifice in America.

"This hut was built by a Mexican sheep herder who had happened by chance on the grandest extinct animal bed in the world. This was a plot about fifty yards square, wherein lay in rich profusion the bones of all the animals of the reptilian age. The heaviest and the lightest, the largest and the smallest, the most tranquil and the most ferocious, lay side by side.

"The place was evidently once a river bar, and the dead bodies that floated down the stream were here arrested to lie for hundreds of thousands of years till a sheep herder came along and, rooting among bones as big as bowlders, set about the building of the world's queerest cabin."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The Danger.

A lawyer while conducting his case cited the authority of a doctor of law yet alive.

"My learned friend," interrupted the judge, "you should never go upon the authority of any save that of the dead. The living may change their minds."—Nos Loisirs.

The First Thought.

"What would be your first thought if you were to strike oil or in some other way become suddenly wealthy?"

"Well, I suppose, like all the rest of 'em, my first thought would be concernin' the shortest and quickest way to New York."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Grip Facts.

The grip is not simply a bad cold, and this fact is worth knowing. It resembles a cold in some respects, and colds are often wrongly diagnosed by the victims as grip. The grip is a malady which has laws of its own, both as to origin and progress after development. According to the doctors, it must run its course—"there is no special remedy that can directly destroy the infection, no drug that can kill the bacillus or neutralize its toxin." This also is worth knowing. The main thing is to nurse with care and give the system the best possible aid in its efforts to throw off the poison.—Baltimore American.

Not Thirsty.

Jane, the bright new maid, always anxious to please, had been intrusted with the care of a little aquarium, in which the goldfish had always thrived very well until Jane came on the scene. The first day she arrived she gave them fresh water, as instructed, and then left them to their own devices. But, alas, one morning the little fishes were found floating feebly on their backs. "Jane," called the anxious mistress, regarding her pets with concern, "have you given the fish any fresh water lately?" "No, ma'am. Bless their little hearts, they haven't drunk the water I gave them last month yet!"

A Normal Disadvantage.

"Why do reformers so often come to grief?"

"I have often asked the question," answered Senator Sorghum. "I think it must be because they take up politics as an incidental diversion instead of a regular business. It's the difference between the amateur and the professional."—Washington Star.

Shopping Politeness.

"Never point, my dear," said the mother gently.

"But, mamma," objected the little girl, "suppose I don't know the name of the thing?"

"Then let the salesman show you all he has in stock until he comes to the article that is desired."—New York Press.
