Harry H. Jones, Eva W. Jones, his wife, vs.
Frank C. Jones, Fannie Jones, his wife; James Jones Seay, George Seay, Eva Jones McClure, Irvin McClure, George Nevitt Jones.

In the Circuit Court for Kent County.

No. 1636 Equity.

The object of this bill is to procure a decree for the sale of the real estate of Clayton H. Jones, late of Kent county, deceased, and to distribute the proceeds to the heirs at law. The bill states that Clayton H. Jones, late of Kent county, deceased, was at the time of his death in the year 1894 possessed of real estate of large value and died leaving a last will and testament, duly executed, admitted to probate and recorded in the office of Register of Wills for Kent county, Maryland, by which will he left his real estate to his wife Clara J. Jones for life, which will fully appear by reference to said will.

And the bill further states that Clara J. Jones the widow of Clayton H. Jones, has since departed this life, and upen her death the said real estate passed to the heirs at law of the said Clayton H. Jones, viz:

Frank C. Jones, who is married, whose wife's name is Fannie Jones, both of whom reside in the City of Cincinatti, in the State of Ohio.

Harry H. Jones, who is married, and whose wife's name is Eva W. Jones, both of whom reside in Kent county, Maryland.

Jennie Jones Seay, whose husband's name is George Seay, both of whom reside in Baltimore, Maryland.

Eva Jones McClure, whose husband's name is Irvin McClure, both of whom reside in the State of Virginia.

George Nevitt Jones an infant, who lives in Baltimore, Maryland.

And the bill further states that said real estate is not susceptible of division without material loss and injury to the parties entitled, and in order to make division of said real estate of said interest it will be necessary to have said real estate sold and the proceeds thereof divided among the parties according to their several interests, therein.

And the bill further states that it is for the benefit and advantage of all the parties hereto to have said property sold and the proceeds divided, under the jurisdiction of this Honorable Court. To the end therefore, that a decree may be passed for the sale of the said real estate and the proceeds distributed to the heirs at law of the said Clayton H. Jones, according to their respective interests, it is thereupon this 7th day of Nov., 1907, ordered by the Circuit Court for Kent county in Equity that the plaintiffs, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Kent county, Maryland, once in each of four successive weeks before the 9th day of December, giving notice to Frank C. Jones and Fannie Jones who are alleged are in the State of Ohio, Eva Jones McClure and Irvin McClure, who are said to reside in Virginia, non residents of the State of Maryland, of the object and substance of this bill and warning them to appear in this court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 27th day of December, 1907, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

WOMEN'S WOES.

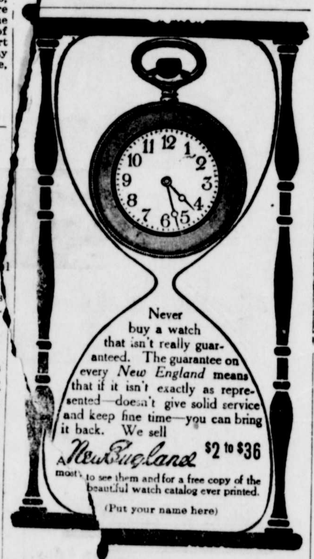

Chestertown Women Are Finding Relief At Last.

It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity; the must "keep up," must attend to duties in spite of constantly aching backs, or headaches, dizzy spells, bearing-down pains; they must stoop over, when to stoop means torture. They must work with racking aches and bend and work with racking pains and many more suffering than Kidneys cause aches from kidney ills. Kidneys cause the body. Keep the kidneys well and health is easily maintained. Read of a remedy for kidneys only that helps and cures the kidneys and is endorsed by people you know.

Mrs. Thomas C[illegible] Mill street, Chestertown, Md., says: I have suffered from kidney trouble all my life. When a child I was afflicted with rheumatism and had almost every symptoms of diseased kidneys. The kidneys did not act properly, my back ached a great deal and my limbs were so swollen that I could hardly walk at times. At night I was hardly able to rest, and thought I was hardly able to without success. Although I tried many remedies at last I finally began using Doan's Kidney Pills, which I procured at M. A. Foulson's drug store, and they relieved me in a short time. I am glad to say I have not been troubled since, symptoms of kidney disease and take pleasure in recommending them to others."

SNUFFBOXES.

Once Held an Important Part in the Councils of Nations.

No longer applicable is an old diplomat's advice to "take snuff often and slowly," yet according to the Hon. John W. Foster, author of "The Practice of Diplomacy," the time was when snuffboxes held an important part in the councils of nations. The present which the Spanish government tendered to General Pinckney in 1795 and which congress withheld from him was a gold snuffbox.

The British plenipotentiary who attended the conferences at the close of the Napoleonic wars received as presents twenty-four snuffboxes of the value of £1,000 each. Richly jeweled boxes were the diplomatic fashion a century and more ago, but the fashion has changed.

As a reminder of the olden time, Sir Charles Russell, afterward lord chief justice of England, the British senior counsel in the Bering sea arbitration at Paris in 1893, a great collector of historic snuffboxes, carried a precious one and was constantly offering its contents to his colleagues.

After the treaty of 1856 was concluded with Persia the American minister to Turkey, who signed it, wrote to the secretary of state:

"I would suggest the following present: A diamond snuffbox of the value of $4,000 for the shah; to Mirza Agbra Khan, the grand vizier, a diamond snuffbox to the value of $3,000; to Farrukh Khan, with whom the treaty was negotiated, another of the same value; to Mirza Ahmed Khan, the Persian charge at Constantinople, a diamond snuffbox to the value of $2,000."

YPSILANTI.

Nearly Four Hundred Ways of Spelling the Name.

Curious postal officers in Michigan and Washington have been keeping for years past a record of the different ways Ypsilanti has been spelled on mail matters, and by comparing the notes they have preserved a list of veritable orthographic wonders has been compiled. This list easily establishes the claim that more different ways for spelling Ypsilanti have been devised than for spelling any other geographical name in America.

In all no less than 372 distinct ways of spelling the name have been counted, and it is probable that the greater number, perhaps all, have been used in good faith by persons who actually believed that the orthographic combinations reproduced were the correct combinations for representing Ypsilanti on the written or printed page. Every letter in the alphabet except "R" has been used as the initial letter of the name, though why so obvious a combination as Rypsilanti should be neglected when others much less obvious have been employed is difficult to explain. As a matter of fact the variations in the spelling are chiefly confined to the first syllable, "Y" being a letter lacking or having only an indifferent standing in many foreign languages.

Tipsy Lanti and Zyp Silanti are met with, and among the spellings farthest away from the accepted and official standard are Whypsorlanter and Hipasalandder.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

The Sawfish.

More energetic than any other sharks are the sawfish, whose snouts are prolonged into a broad blade of cartilage, which is horizontal when the fish is swimming in a normal position and has both its edges set with slightly curved teeth about an inch apart. The end of this formidable looking weapon is blunt and comparatively soft, so that it is quite incapable of the feats popularly attributed to it of piercing whales' bodies, ships' timbers, etc. It attacks other fish by a swift lateral thrust of the saw beneath them, the keen edge disemboweling them. Then it feeds upon the soft entrails, which are apparently the only food it can eat from the peculiar shape of its mouth. It has an enormous number of small teeth, sometimes as many as fifty rows in one individual, but they are evidently unfit for the rough duties required of their teeth by the garbage eating members of the family.

National Gardens.

There are two gardens of England—namely, Kent and Worcestershire. That of Ireland is usually said to be Carlow, in Leinster. Italy and Belgium are both called the garden of Europe, while that of France is Amboise, in the department of Indre-et-Loire. The garden of Italy is Sicily and of Spain Andalusia. In the east Ceylon and Burma have both received the title, and the district of India so honored is Oude. Glamorganshire is often spoken of as the garden of south Wales. To the region west of our noble Mississippi the title "garden of the world" has been given.

A Good Answer.

In a public school examination an eccentric examiner demanded, "What views would King Alfred take of universal suffrage and printed books if he were living now?" The ingenious pupil wrote in answer, "If King Alfred were alive he would be too old to take any interest in anything."—London Telegraph.

It Is a Good Umbrella.

It was a sound, substantial umbrella, with a cheery wood stick. We found it hanging on a peg in the corner of our room in the hotel at Bruges (writes "P."). Such an umbrella could belong to none but an Englishman, and it at once occurred to us that it had been left behind by some former passing visitant. The umbrella was particularly interesting to me because I had foolishly come away from England without one. I eyed that umbrella as a small boy eyes a forbidden orchard. The next morning threatened rain, and I could not resist taking the umbrella tentatively from its peg, unrolling it and displaying its comfortable tent-like proportions. I put it back on the peg with a sigh and nobly went out unprotected. During the stay in Bruges my eyes and thoughts returned to the umbrella with strong fascination, and on the morning of leaving the temptation was still more acute. The angels of light and darkness struggled within me, but the good one triumphed, and we went to the station without the umbrella. We left our luggage in the hotel to be brought to us at the station by the boots. The Brussels train came in, but our luggage was missing. We took our seats, and at the last moment the boots rushed up, compensating for want of English by a large smile, and dragged our bags—and the umbrella. He threw it in to us, and the train departed. It is a good umbrella.—Manchester Guardian.

The Way to Succeed.

Here is a bit of advice that will go as far as any that was ever paid for: The only way to succeed is to be successful. Doesn't sound very profound, does it? It isn't. It's about as simple as anything that has ever been printed, and at first sight it may appear idiotic. But there is a lot in it. The man who succeeds is the man who brings to a successful termination every minute undertaking of every day's activity. The successful man's life is made up of a myriad of successes. If you let one little item of your day's work get by you without satisfying yourself that you have done your best on it you are preparing for a failure. A million treatises on how to be successful will not help you.

The trouble with too many of us is that we are so busy trying to see a great success in the future that we can't see the chances for little successes under our noses. Heaven is not reached at a single bound, and neither is success. The only way to succeed is to be successful. It is worth thinking over.—St. Paul News.

The Original Tobogganer.

The otter was the original tobogganer and his slide the first of its kind deliberately chosen. Whence came his information? I know not. Turn if you can the leaves of nature's wonderful volume back to the opening chapters of animal life for information upon this and countless other curious traits. Maybe the primal otter saw a cube of ice break from its parent glacier and go sliding down a polished path to the sea. He may have then tried the feat himself under the notion that such sliding was rare good fun for otters. Quien sabe? Wherever the otter may have obtained his idea of sliding, he has neither lost it nor improved upon it. He slides as his forbears did for love of sliding, but he does not altogether depend upon snow and ice. During summer earth slides serve well enough, and these will surely be found on the banks of streams frequented by otters.—Outing.

Westminster Abbey Customs.

Burial in Westminster abbey is not of course a question of money, but there are certain fees charged for interment within that ancient pile. Formerly the fees amounted to £150 or £160. Dean Stanley introduced many reforms in the scale of charges, with the result that the maximum cost is now £111 4s. 2d. It may, however, be £20 less. The variations in the cost arise in connection with the contribution demanded for the fabric fund, which is £26 or £36 or £46, according to the place of interment. Other items in the bill are £34 2s. 2d. for fees to the dean, canons, choir and vergers and £31 2s. on account of silk scarfs, hatbands and gloves to the clergy, choir and vergers, which were formerly provided by the undertaker and charged in his account.—Westminster Gazette.

Grounds For Suspicion.

The artist came in and seated himself with a foreign and unaccustomed air, a slight something of hauteur the woman thought.

"My landlord," he began, "came to me this morning and told me to have anything I wanted done in the way of improvements in my apartments. He told me to spare no expense."

The woman looked at him hard.

"I begin to suspect you," said she, "of having paid your rent."—New York Press.

Fish Have No Eyelids.

Goldfish do not close their eyes because they have no eyelids. There exist in fishes no genuine eyelids, but in some (mackerel and sea mullet) there is a transparent film over the anterior surface of the eyeball, and in certain sharks there is a nictitating or winking membrane that is regulated by a special muscle.—St. Nicholas.

Wonderfully Good Sight.

The Duchess of X. once went to Greenwich to see the marvels of the observatory. It was a lovely night, and for the fair duchess' benefit the great telescope was duly leveled at the dazzling field of stars.

"What is that star?" she said, pointing to a very bright one.

"Oh, that's Aldebaran, a star of the first magnitude."

"Is it very far off?" asked her grace.

"About six or seven light years, your grace."

"What is a light year?"

"Merely an expression which one uses to convey an idea of the distance which light travels in a year. Roughly speaking, light travels at the rate of 190,000 miles in a second, and there are about 31,000,536 seconds in a year. In one year, therefore, light travels above 5,921,840,000,000 miles. The expression 'light year' includes these figures."

"And is that star all those millions of miles away?"

"Yes, your grace, as nearly as we can calculate."

"Then all I can say," remarked the duchess, "is that you must have wonderfully good eyes to make out that star's name at that distance, even with this big telescope. It's really most marvelous."—London Tit-Bits.

Slaughtered the Anthem.

"When I went west first," said a Unitarian minister, "I was in a small town called L., and in the choir of my church the village blacksmith did noble work as baritone. He had a voice that could shake mountains, and whatever it lacked in any other feature it made up in volume. He couldn't read music any more than he could English, but he learned a tune very readily.

"One Sunday we were to be favored with a new anthem because it was a special occasion, and the baritone had one portion all to himself. Unfortunately he had missed many of the practices.

"The anthem went along excellently until it came to a beautiful part which reads, 'And, dying, bids us all aspire.'

"Here the rest of the singers stopped short in that quick, sudden way that choirs have, and in the ensuing stillness sounded the ponderous tones of the blacksmith:

"'And dying brides are filled with fire.'"—Boston Herald.

To a Higher Table.

John Barrett, chief of the bureau of American republics, after various other experiments in diplomacy, came to Washington from Oregon during President Cleveland's second term to get anything he could. He brought a bunch of Oregon boomers with him and for a time they stayed at the best hotels. The job was slow in coming, and they went from cheaper place to cheaper place, like Mark Twain's office seeker, until they were forced to eat at one of the lunch places on Pennsylvania avenue. One night while they were at dinner word came that President Cleveland had decided to appoint Barrett minister to Siam. Barrett rose from the table and put on his coat.

"Hold on, John!" cried one of his companions in misfortune. "Where are you going? Aren't you going to finish your dinner?"

"Gentlemen," said Barrett as he stalked out, "this is no place for the minister to Siam to dine."—Saturday Evening Post.

Not Certain About That.

Mrs. Verdigris was enumerating her various ailments. "I haven't kept track of all of 'em," she said, "but one of the first things I had was the lumbago in the small of my back. Then I had the influenzy awful bad. The next thing was the rheumatiz. Since then I've had neuralgy, nervous headache, sore throat, indigestion, a breaking out on my skin and ever so many other pesky little troubles that I can't remember."

"It would be an interesting list," said her sympathizing neighbor. "Why didn't you take an inventory?"

"I'm not certain but what I did," answered Mrs. Verdigris. "I took ever so many things. I'll try it if you think it'd help me, but unless it's very mild I just know it won't stay on my stummick."—Youth's Companion.

Made a Record.

"Yo' said in yo' sermon, Brother Dickey, dat Jonah wuz eat up by de whale?"

"I sho' did."

"Well, den, how comes he live ter tell it?"

That seemed to stagger the old man, but he gathered himself together and replied:

"Dat's easy. You see, Jonah wuz de fust fisherman, an' he had ter make a record!"—Atlanta Constitution.

What Dropped.

"I heard you let something drop in the kitchen just now, Kate. Did you break anything?" asked the lady of the house when dinner was being served.
