A SERIOUS FIRE.

The Large Planing Mill and Sash Factory of Wm. S. & A. M. Culp Destroyed by Fire on Monday Evening.

One of the most serious fires in years visited Chestertown on Monday evening at 6.15 o'clock when the large planing mill and sash factory of W. S. & A. M. Culp was destroyed by fire, entailing a loss of from $8,000 to $10,000 with no insurance. Mr. Wm. S. Culp, the senior member of the firm was the first to discover the fire. He was about to leave the building for the night when he saw smoke and flame leaping from the roof over the engine room. He quickly gave the alarm but before the people reached the scene the big factory was a mass of flames. Efforts were directed to saving the big piles of lumber stored in the adjoining building and in the yard, and only by the heroic efforts of the college boys, who deserve the greatest credit for the way they labored, and the volunteer firemen, was this partially accomplished. A large quantity of lumber, including about $150 worth of dressed lumber for the new home of Prof. T. H. Topping for which the Messrs. Culp had the contract, was destroyed, as well as about 15,000 shingles and a big quantity of lathes, which had only recently been received in the yard. All the valuable papers, drawings, books, safe and in fact everything was gotton out of the office, for which the Messrs. Culp feel deeply grateful to those who succeeded in getting the things out.

By the kind favor of Providence the wind was blowing from the south which prevented the flames spreading to the homes of Mrs. Jennie Maslin and Mrs. Nelson, and possibly to the whole town. Buckets of water were thrown upon the sides and roof of these buildings preventing their destruction. The destruction of this valuable property is a serious loss to the owners, especially as there was no insurance owing to the almost prohibitive rate upon such buildings. They had worked years to possess what was destroyed in a few moments, yet with that commendable energy and enterprise which is peculiarly characteristic of the firm, they will rebuild the factory, and indeed have already finished a temporary office where they are at work upon the plans and specifications for some large contracts. The Messrs. Culp are among the largest and most successful contractors on the Eastern Shore. They have such evidences of their skill in Chestertown as the high school building, the administration building at Washington College, besides a number of the finest residences in the town, and they havs recently contracted with Prof. T. H. Topping for a fine home at the mill. They have also built some splendid residences at Middletown, Del., have remodeled the splendid home of Capt. Andrew W. Woodall at Georgetown, and they built all the new stations along the Kent railroad. They are at present drawing plans for a handsome mansion on the Perry Cabin farm near St. Michaels, Talbot county. Though handicapped by the loss of their big factory, none of their employes have been out of work. Mr. Howard Dodd, one of the employes lost all his tools and several articles of clothing. Several of the employes had not reached their home before the alarm of fire was given. It was the most serious fire Chestertown has had for many years, and we trust that there may not be another. The origin of the fire is supposed to have been a spark from the furnace, which ignited the roof around the smoke stack. The town commissioners kept Officer Cooper and Mr. William Needles, their street man, at work with the hose until two o'clock on Tuesday morning when all the fire was put out. Watchmen remained at the scene all night. The debris is being removed preparatory to rebuilding.

A Fine Entertainment.

The entertainment given in Stam's Hall on Tuesday evening by the Schubert Symphony Club and Lady Quartette, was one of the social features of the winter, and was of a very high order of excellence. The singing by the quartette evidenced the beauty and scope of the cultivated voice, while the instrumental music was masterly. The violin solos by Mr. Purcell clearly demonstrated his mastery of the instrument, and his equal has seldom been heard by a Chestertown audience. The people of the town and county appreciate the efforts of the management to secure such entertainments for the winter, and they will always patronize such high-class entertainments. People were present from Millington, Kennedyville, Still Pond, and from all parts of the county.

OBITUARY.

MR. JAMES W. COLEMAN.

Mr. James W. Coleman, one of our wellknown brick masons, died at his home on Queen street on Sunday morning, after a short illness of a complication of diseases, aged 61 years. The deceased was the son of the late James Coleman, who in his day was a mason. He left three sons, James W., William B., and S. J. Coleman, each of whom adopted the trade of their father. The deceased was an industrious and conscientious workman, and many houses and beautiful walks in Chestertown attest the skill with which he performed his duties. He is survived by three children, one daughter, Mrs. Harvey Boggs, and two sons, Messrs. Marion R. and Clarence Coleman. Funeral services were held from his late residence on Queen street on Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock, conducted by Rev. Dr. F. T. Little, assisted by Rev. W. L. White. Interment was in Chester cemetery. The pallbearers were Messrs. William B. and S. J. Coleman, Wm. S. Carroll, Wm. A. Burke, Charles P. Hodgkin and John Bartley. Undertaker J. E. Ferguson had charge of the funeral arrangements.

MRS. JULIET GOVER STREETT.

Mrs. Juliet Gover Streett, wife of Joseph M. Streett, editor of the Harford Democrat and president of the Maryland Democratic Editors' Association, died Thursday of last week at her home in Belair of acute indigestion. She was a devoted member of Emmanuel Protestant Episcopal church, Belair, and was a constant attendant upon its services whenever her health permitted. Besides a husband she is survived by four daughters—Mrs. William J. Price, Jr., of Centreville, Mrs. Swepson Earle, Mrs. Frank H. Jacobs and Miss Grace Rogers Streett—and one son, Mr. G. Gover Streett, the latter being connected with his father in the newspaper business.

MRS. LAURA T. RONDO.

Mrs. Laura T. Rondo, widow of the late Bartholomew Rondo, and daughter of the late Captain Richard and Sarah F. Shaw, died at the aged Woman's Home, in Baltimore on Thursday of last week, aged 71 years. Funeral was held at 2.30 o'clock on Saturday afternoon at No. 118 West Mount Royal avenue. The deceased was an aunt of Mrs. Arlington L. Sparks, of Chestertown, and had frequently visited Chestertown in her younger days.

DR. THOMAS OLIVER CLEMENTS.

Dr. Thomas Oliver Clements, for over twenty years one of the most prominent physicians of Dover, died on Wednesday morning, after two weeks illness, aged 55 years. He removed to Dover from Centreville about 20 years ago.

FOUND HORSE, BRIDLE AND SADDLE.

Mr. Benjamin T. Rust, Foreman of the Railroad Section Men, Pulled a Riderless Horse out of the Mire in Rash's Branch.

Mr. Benjamin T. Rust, while at work on the railroad last Saturday found in Mr. B. T. Rash's branch a nice looking horse with bridle and saddle on. Mr. Rust thought the branch an unusual place for the horse in this condition, and went to get him out. The horse got stuck in the mire several times, and "Uncle Ben" thought he would have to call for help before he got him out, and he succeeded in extricating the animal only after building a bridge across the branch to terra firma. Mr. Rust delivered the horse to Mr. Rash's men, who took him to the stable to await developments. It has leaked out that the horse belonged to a prominent young man living near Porter's Grove in Worton, who went calling in the vicinity of Hopewell school house on Thursday night of last week, and while the young man was enjoying the evening the horse got loose and wandered into the branch, where he was found on Saturday morning by Mr. Rust. We have not learned whether the young man was compelled to walk to his home or not, but his horse has been returned to him.

Arrested for Stealing Wheat.—Mr. Thomas Faulkner, living on the Cochran farm near Goose Hill, came to town on Saturday morning and swore out a warrent for the arrest of Simon Chase, colored, on the charge of stealing about two bushels of wheat from his barn on Friday night. Mr. Faulkner went down to his barn on Friday evening and found the bags of wheat outside the barn door. He suspected something wrong, and returned to his house to get his overcoat and await developments. When he returned he found his wheat gone. He traced it to Chase's house on Goose Hill and found the wheat under the man's bed. Justice Calder held Chase for the action of the grand jury at his trial on Tuesday afternoon.

MR. WROTH RETIRES.

After a Successful Business Career of Twenty-five Years he Sells his Shoe Business to his Competent Salesman, Mr. Clinton C. Jones.

Mr. Thomas G. Wroth, the shoe man, has sold his business to Mr. Clinton C. Jones, who has been his competent salesman for the past four years, and will retire from the mercantile business February 1. Mr. Wroth has been engaged in business in Chestertown for twenty-five years, eight years of which were spent as the partner of Mr. Wm. R. Aldridge in the dry goods business, under the firm name of Wroth & Aldridge, and seventeen years in the shoe business. During all these years, there has been no more careful business man in the town than Mr. Wroth. By his careful business methods, his energy and public spiritedness Mr. Wroth has built up a splendid trade, from which he has made himself one of our most independent citizens. He now retires from business, and will devote his attention to the management of his fine farms. His successor, Mr. Clinton C. Jones, is one of the substantial young men in our community. He has had sufficient experience in the shoe business to make him a competent successor to Mr. Wroth, and he possesses that affable manner and genial disposition which are peculiar to popular salesmen. Mr. Jones will continue to conduct the business at the old stand in Stam's Hall, and you will find always a splendid assortment and excellent stock of footwear. The TRANSCRIPT wishes both Mr. Wroth and his successor, Mr. Jones, success in their new fields of labor.

TEACHING IN THE WEST.

Prof. Robert Clark, Formerly of the Washington College Faculty, is Winning Laurels in the West.

The many friends of Prof. Robert Clark, formerly of the Washington College faculty, will no doubt be pleased to learn of his flattering success in the educational world in the west. Since Prof. Clark retired from the college faculty he has risen from one position of prominence to another until at present he is professor of Pedagogy in the Montana Normal College, situated at Dillon, Mont. In a recent article on normal schools this college is placed in the top list. This is his second year in the college and he has recently secured a substantial increase in his salary. During the past two summers Prof. Clark has delivered a course of lectures on Pedagogy at the Connecticut State Summer School, and is expected there again next summer. He has also done some lecture work in Montana. During the past fall he spoke more than 75 times and travelled about 4000 miles on lecture trips. In speaking of his residence in Chester town in a recent letter to one of the editors of the TRANSCRIPT, Prof. Clark says:—"I have never lost my liking for Chestertown and her people. There was a quietness and peacefulness there that was charming. Here in my western home life is more openly intense, the scenery is of course grander, more sublime and awe inspiring in its rushing rivers, its snow-capped mountains, its massiveness, its vast extent. And yet though the town is a gem, especially in the fall, with its miles of wonderful flowering sweet peas, and acres of other blossoming plants, the people are unexpectedly refined and courteous, my pupils are as tasteful and nice, and likable as any I have ever taught, yet every once in a while my thoughts revert to the beautiful old town on the gently flowing Chester, and I enjoy again living there, this time in memoryland." Prof. Clark is one of our most esteemed subscribers, and his many friends here, with us, wish him continued success in his chosen profession.
