RELIGIOUS MATTERS.

Wilmington Methodists are busily engaged in making preparations for the coming conference session, to be held in Asbury Church, beginning March 18th. The conference will be the third held in the historic old edifice, where the first session of the Wilmington Conference was ever held.

Bishop Samuel A. Goodsell will peeside at the conference, his appointment having been made sometime ago by the Board of Bishops. This will make the third conference at which the venerable bishop has presided in Wilmington. In 1901 and in 1905 he was in Wilmington.

The evangelstic work of the conference will be in charge of Rev. H. W. Bolton, the conference evangelist, and will be one of the many features of the session.

At a meeting of the vestry of St. Paul's Parish, Centreville, held last week, the plans for a parish house submitted by William Draper Brinckle, architect, of Wilmington, were accepted, and a building committee composed of Messrs. Walter T. Wright, Clayton Wright, W. Hopper Gibson and Rev. Walter B. Stehl, ex-officio, was authorized to secure bids and proceed with the erection of the building.

Among the layman of the Episcopal Church there is much speculation as to the election of a bishop to succeed the late Bishop Leighton Coleman and the names of several prominent clergymen are being mentioned in this connection. The diocesan convention, at which a bishop is to be elected, will be held in St. Andrews Church, in Wilmington, on Wednesday February 19th.

Rev. Nathaniel S. Thomas of Holy Apostles Church, Philadelphia, is probably the one most talked of for bishop at the present time. Bishop Kinsolving, the missionary bishop to Brazil, has also been mentioned.

Rev. Floyd W. Tompkins, of Holy Trinity Church, Philadelphia, is probably better known to Delawareans than any other clergyman who has been mentioned. He has often addressed the noonday meetings in St. Andrew's Church.

There are many of the laymen who believe that if a clergyman in the diocese is not selected the next best thing should be done and a man elected who is a native Delawarean. They claim that there are several native Delawareans in the clergy in other dioceses who could be chosen and who are well fitted. Among them is mentioned Rev. Edward Henry Eckel, rector of a large church at St. Joseph, Missouri, who was born in Wilmington and spent his early life there. Rev. Alexander G. Cummins, who comes from Smyrna, and who is now rector of a church at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., is also mentioned in this connection.

The supper given by the Ladies Aid Society held in the storeroom on High street adjoining the Kent County Savings Bank, on Wednesday evening was largely patronized, and $40 was realized.

Mr. Charles N. Satterfield led the Christian Workers' service in Christ M. P. Church last Sunday evening and delivered an able address on the subject of "Love." Miss Avis Dodd sang a very pretty solo.

One of the most interesting Sunday evening services is that of the Junior C. E. Society of Christ M. P. Church, held every Sunday evening at six o'clock, in charge of Miss Fannie Baker. About sixty children of the town are members of it and deeply interested in the society. Miss Baker is doing a splendid work with the society which is doing a world of good by bringing the children to church and helping the poor with their pennies. Master Norman Crouch led the meeting last Sunday evening. Little Misses Helen Kendall and Evelyn Russell sang a sweet duet, and Misses Ida Smith, Reba Davis and Elizabeth Russell sang a pretty trio. The topic was "Jesus and His Disciples." The music under the leadership of Mr. J. Frank Wheatley is splendid. Miss Virginia Little is the leader for tomorrow evening.

The Methodist Protestant Christian Endeavor Union concluded its sessions on Friday evening at Alnutt Memorial Church, Lombard and Chester streets, Baltimore. The following officers were elected to serve for the next two years: President, Rev. G. W. Haddaway; vice presidents, Rev. F. C. Klien, Mr. M. Bates Stephens and Dr. James E. Shreeve; secretary-treasurer, Rev. E. S. Wooten; superintendent, Rev. T. O. Crouse; junior, Mrs. Charles W. France; temperance, Mr. Charles R. Wood; executive committee, Messrs. B. L. Henderson, W. C. Perkins, George Mather, Rev. E. T. Reed and Henry Gilligan; district superintendents, J. Bibb Mills, Baltimore; H. Clyde Grimes, Washington; Rev. E. C. Makosky, Western Maryland; C. R. Strausberg, Northern Maryland; Rev. E. D. Stone, Eastern Maryland; Rev. Clayborne Philips, Southern Maryland; conference appointees, Rev. J. M. Sheridan, ex-officio; Revs. T. O. Crouse, F. T. Benson, G. W. Haddaway, Messrs. Walter Gale, Alexander Dodd, Jr., and E. S. Wooten.

'Phone Receiver Saves Life.

H. W. Carty, district manager for the Diamond State Telephone Company, had a narrow escape from drowning and freezing to death on the marsh across Nanticoke River from Vienna, a town twenty miles from Seaford, late last Saturday afternoon. That he did not succomb to the weather and exhaustion was due to the fact he had a telephone receiver in his pocket and strength enough to climb a pole and connect with a wire. His horse got off the road into the river, taking vehicle and driver after him. He unfastened the harness and swam to a nearby pole. With but sufficient strength to climb it, he cut in with his receiver, and told the operator at Salisbury of his plight, and asked that help be sent him. After a delay of an hour or more, men in boats were sent to his rescue. They found him partly unconscious, his spikes in the pole holding him. He was taken to Vienna and later sent to his home in Salisbury. The horse swam to an island, and was taken off late in a scow. —Caroline Sun.
